CHAPTER I.

General Rules.

1. Time and Place of Examinations—The times and places at which examinations are held are shown in Appendix A, page 556.

2 How to apply—Candidates for examination must fill up a form of application (form Exn 3), at the Port Office The form properly filled in, together with the candidate's certificate of apprenticeship, testimonials, and discharges, must be lodged with the Port Officer not later than three days before the day of examination As discharges and testimonials may have to be verified, it is desirable that they should be handed in, together with the form of application, as many days as possible before the date of the examination which the candidate desires to attend. In the absence of the necessary verification the candidates cannot be examined.

In all cases in which certificates of discharge in the home or other trade which have not been officially issued at a Mercantile Marine Office are produced as evidence of any part of a candidate's qualifying service, they should be submitted to the Port Officer for verification

3 Gaps in Service—The Examiner should be particularly careful to ascertain that there are no gaps in the candidate's service which are not properly accounted for, before he is allowed up for examination.

4 Calculation of Service—The candidate's services as shown on his discharges, should be reckoned by the calendar month, i e, the time included between any given day in any month and the preceding day of the following month, both inclusive The number of complete months from the commencement of the period, ascertained in this way, should be computed, after which the number of odd days should be counted The day on which the agreement commences as well as that on which it terminates should both be included and all odd days should be added together and reckoned at 30 to the month

5 Service must be Verified—Service which cannot be verified by proper entries in the articles of agreement of the ships in which the candidates have served cannot be counted

6. Application in Special Cases—In cases where the services of a candidate require verification, or where he is in doubt whether his service complies with the regulations and wishes to submit his case for special consideration, all certificates, discharges, and testimonials, together with the form of application,* properly filled in, should be submitted to the Port Officer who will either deal with the case or transmit it to Government for decision

7. Inquiries—All other inquiries regarding examinations should be made and dealt with in the same way The point on which information is sought should be clearly stated, and Certificates, discharges, testimonials, &c, should be forwarded when they are material to the inquiry.

8 Age—Should any doubt exist as to the age of a candidate, he will be required to produce a certificate of birth

9 Fraud and Misrepresentation—It is provided by section 104 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, that any person who makes, assists in making, or procures to be made, any false representation for the purpose of procuring either for himself or for any other person a Certificate of competency, shall in respect of each offence be guilty of a misdemeanour, which is punishable, on summary conviction, with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour, or with a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds

10. Testimonials, Shore Service—All candidates will be required to produce, in addition to the official discharge certificates, testimonials as to their workshop service and as to their service at sea. The testimonials as to workshop service must be signed by the employer, and must testify to the candidate's conduct and ability, and state what kind of work he was engaged on (e g, fitting, erecting turning, machine work, &c), and for how long (See paragraph 31)

11 Testimonials, Sea Service.—Testimonials as to service at sea must testify to the applicant's sobriety, experience, ability, and general good conduct for at least the last twelve months' service at sea preceding the date of application to be examined. They must be signed by the Master and Chief Engineer, or in the case of testimonials to Chief Engineers, by the Master and Superintending Engineer, and must clearly state whether the applicant was on regular watch, and in regular charge of a watch on the main engines or boilers It is desirable that testimonials of candidates should be endorsed by the Superintending Engineer. No time spent in clerical work will be allowed to count

12 Further as to Testimonials—In cases where a testimonial from the Chief Engineer, or from the Master, is for any sufficient reason not obtainable, one may be submitted from the Superintending Engineer in place of that of the Chief Engineer, and from the Marine Superintendent in place of that of the Master, or from the Managing Owner or Secretary or Chairman of a large Company in place of either, but in every such instance the testimonials must declare that the facts stated are in accordance with the reports made by the Chief Engineer or the Master, as the case may be, or else that the facts are within the writer's personal knowledge

13. Penalty for Misconduct—Candidates who have neglected to join their vessels after having signed Articles, or who have deserted their vessels after having joined, or who have been found guilty of gross misconduct on board, will be required to produce satisfactory proofs of two years' subsequent service and good conduct at sea, unless the Government, after having investigated the matter, should see fit to reduce the time

14 Physical Defects—When a candidate is observed to be hard of hearing, or is labouring under any other obvious physical defect, the signatories of his testimonials are required to mention that defect specifically, and to state whether it in any way interfered with the efficiency of the candidate as an engineer on watch When these modified testimonials are such as to completely satisfy the Examiner that the defect is not such as to interfere with the efficient discharge of the applicant's duties as engineer, the examination is proceeded with; otherwise the case is referred to the Government Candidates afflicted with nervous impediment in speech may write their answers to vira voce questions.

15 Foreign Service—The testimonials of service of foreign or British engineers serving in foreign vessels, which cannot be verified by the Port Officer, must be confirmed either by the Consul of the country to which the ship in which the candidate served belonged or by some other recognized official authority of that country, or by the testimony of some credible person on the spot having personal knowledge of the facts required to be established. The production, however of such proofs will not of necessity be deemed sufficient Each case must be decided on its own merits; and if the sufficiency of the proofs given appears to be at all doubtful, the point must be referred to the Government.

16. Foreign Engineers must know English.—Foreign engineers must prove to the satisfaction of the Examiners that they can speak and write the English language sufficiently well to perform the duties required of them on board a British vessel

17 Issue of Certificate.—If the candidate passes he will receive a form (form Exn. 16) authorising the Port Officer to whom it is addressed to issue the Certificate. The candidate's testimonials and other papers will be returned to him when the examination is finished It is therefore important that the port at which the Certificate is to be issued should be the same on both the form Exn. 16 and the form of application, Exn. 3. If circumstances should make any alteration necessary, the Examiner should see that it is made in both forms, otherwise delay in the issue of the Certificate may be caused.

18. Service found to be Insufficient.—If after a candidate has passed the examination it is discovered on further investigation that his services are insufficient to entitle him to receive a Certificate of the grade for which he has passed, the Certificate will not be granted to him; but if the Port Officer is satisfied that the error in the calculation of the candidate's services did not occur through any fault or wilful misrepresentation on his part, he may either have the fee returned to him or have it placed to his credit. Should his services entitle him to a Certificate of a lower grade it may be granted to him, and the difference, if any, between the fee paid by him for the superior Certificate and the fee payable for the inferior Certificate will be returned to him or placed to his credit The superior Certificate will not be granted until the candidate has performed the amount of service in which he was deficient, and has been re-examined in all the subjects, unless the Government see fit to dispense with the re-examination

19 Failure in Examination—If the candidate fails in practical knowledge he may not present himself for re-examination until he can produce proofs of three months' further service at sea as Engineer on watch on the main engines or boilers of a foreign-going steamer, or its equivalent in the home trade (four and a half months) subsequent to the date of failure If he fails in arithmetic, elementary questions, or drawing only, he may come up again at any time, but in all cases of failure any re-examination must begin entirely afresh

20 Fee must be Paid—Candidates for examination in making their application on the form Exn 3, will be required to pay the examination fee before any step is taken towards inquiring into their services or testing their qualifications, &c. If the candidate is found not to be qualified the fee will either be returned to him or placed to his credit until he is qualified

21. Payment of Fees, and Penalty for offering Gratuity.—The fee for examination must be paid to the Port Officer If a candidate offers a gratuity to any servant of the Department, he will be regarded as having committed an act of misconduct, and will be rejected, and not allowed to be examined for twelve months, either at the port where the offence was committed or at any other port

22. Fees not Returned on Failure.—If a candidate fails in his examination, no part of the fee he has paid will be returned to him

23. Table of Fees—The fees are as follows:—

	Rs	A	P
Second-class Engineer's Certificate ...	15	0	0
First-class Engineer's Certificate	30	0	0
First-class Engineer's Certificate, if the candidate holds a Second-class Certificate of Competency granted by the Board of Trade or by the Government of a British Possession under the Merchant Shipping Act	15	0	0

(i) He must understand the construction of, and be able to maintain in working condition the auxiliary machinery which is placed under his charge, viz refrigerating machinery, electric light engines and dynamos, electric motors fitted to ships' boats, hydraulic machinery, and the various descriptions of steering engines, &c

27. First-class Certificates without Second—The Government may see fit to allow an applicant who, in consequence of service abroad, has had no opportunity to obtain a Second-class Certificate, to be examined for a First-class Certificate, although he does not possess a certificate of the lower grade, provided he is able to satisfy them as to the satisfactory character of his services, but these should be ample both as regards length and experience.

If any candidate, who has not got a Second-class Certificate of competency, fails to pass the examination for the First-class Certificate, but passes that for the lower grade, he may be given a Second-class Certificate of competency, but no part of the fee will be returned. A candidate who has been permitted to be examined for a First-class Certificate without first obtaining a Second-class Certificate of competency or a Certificate of Service, and who fails in his examination in practical knowledge, may not be re-examined for a certificate of the higher grade until he has served 3 months as watch-keeper with a Second-class Engineer's Certificate of Competency or Service as required by the regulations. If the candidate fails in practical knowledge, both for the lower as well as for the higher grade of Certificate, he may be re-examined for a Second-class Certificate only, subject to the usual regulations relating to failure

28. On and after January 1st, 1915, a candidate for either a Second-class or a First-class Certificate who within two years from the date of application to be examined has attended an approved course comprising general mathematical and scientific instruction at a technical school recognised by the Government as suitable for the training of Marine Engineers, will be allowed to count time so spent as equivalent to sea service in the ratio of three months at the technical school to two months at sea Time so spent cannot be accepted as equivalent to more than one-sixth of the total sea-service required for either Certifiate but a candidate who has been allowed to count such time on examination for a Second-class Certificate, will not be debarred from counting similar subsequent time on examination for a First class Certificate

In every case in which an allowance is made for time spent at a Marine Technical School, the candidate will be required to produce the Principal's Certificate for continuous and regular attendance at all the approved classes and for satisfactory progress.

Certificates for Engineers of Home-trade Passenger Ships propelled by Oil Engines

29. Oil Engine Certificates—Candidates may be examined for Second-class Certificates of competency as Engineer of vessels propelled by oil engines

These certificates will entitle the holders to go to sea as Second-class Engineers of home-trade passenger ships propelled by oil engines but will not entitle them to go to sea as Second-class Engineers of foreign-going ships or of home-trade passenger steamships.

30. Second-class Engineer (Oil Engines)—A candidate for a Second-class Oil Engine Certificate must be at least 21 years of age.

(a) He must prove :—

(1) Four years' experience at the making or repairing of machinery, of which at least six months must be at the making or repairing of oil engines, or

(2) Three and a half years' experience in charge of engines and boilers at sea or an equivalent suitable experience on shore, and, in addition to either (1) or (2) —

(3) Six months' experience with oil engines at sea

NOTE—Alternative service to the above may be considered, but it is essential that the candidate should have experience with oil engines, and have sp nt at least six months at sea in the engine-room of a sea-going vessel.

(b) He must write a legible hand, and have a good knowledge of arithmetic up to and including vulgar and decimal fractions and square root. He must also understand the application of these and other rules to problems relating to spring and lever-loaded relief valves, and be able to solve questions about the relative speeds of a vessel at different revolutions, the capacity of oil tanks, &c,

(c) He must be able to give a clear explanation of the principle on which an oil engine works, and to shew by means of illustrative sketches and otherwise that he understands the construction of those in general use

(d) He must be able to describe the chief causes which may make the engine difficult to start, and to explain how he would proceed to remedy any defects.

(e) He must be able to show that he understands the mechanism of the starting and reversing arrangement, and is competent to deal with defects which may lead to failure in the prompt handling or reversing of the engine

(f) He must have sufficient mechanical ability to be able to overhaul the engine, to adjust the working parts, and to put the engine together again in good working condition

(g) He must be able to give satisfactory answers to the elementary questions numbered 305 to 310 inclusive in Appendix C (pp. 579 and 580).

(h) He must be able to prove (by actual trial if practicable) that he is competent to manipulate an oil engine when under way by starting, running the engine, stopping, reversing or slowing down.

(i) He must understand what is meant by the flash point, and have a knowledge of the explosive properties of the oil generally used in oil engines when exposed in the open air, and the danger of exposing any vapour from the oil to a light or of allowing any leak from the oil tanks, particularly into the vessel's bilges.

(j) He must understand the action of wire gauze diaphragms when placed in pipes and connections to oil tanks, &c., for the purpose of preventing the explosion or ignition of oil vapour therein.

(k) He must be able to take the necessary precautions to guard against the escape of inflammable vapour from the vaporiser when the engines are stopped.

(l) He must be able to explain the principle and construction of a dynamo and the construction and arrangement of primary and secondary batteries and induction coils, so far as is necessary for the efficient management of an oil engine.

31. Workshop Service.—Workshop service must have been performed in works where steam engines, boilers, &c., are made or repaired, but no time served before the age of 15 will be counted.

Not less than two years of the apprentice time must have been spent at fitting, erecting, or repairing engines and machinery either in the works or outside. The remaining two years may be made up of time spent in engine works at fitting, erecting, or repairing engines and machinery or at one of the other branches of the trade given below, or at an approved technical day school (see Appendix K); the time so spent to count as follows:—

Fitting, erecting, repairing, or turning.	Full time.
Working in drawing office	Full time up to one year, and beyond one year one-half time.
Pattern-making... ...	One-half time with a maximum allowance of one year.
Planing, slotting, shaping, ... and milling.	One-third time.
Boiler-making or repairing ..	One-half time
Smith work	One-half time with a maximum allowance of one year.
Coppersmith work ...	One-third time with a maximum allowance of six months.

In the event of the apprentice time being extended to five years or more, four years at turning followed by one year at fitting or erecting may be accepted as qualifying

32. Workshop service other than the above.—When the workshop service has been performed in a place where engines are made but not in the manner specified in paragraph 31 the case must be referred to the Government with a report upon the service performed. If the service be such as is useful training for an Engineer, the Government may accept the service, but in every such case the applicant must prove additional engine room or marine engine workshop service as required in the succeeding paragraph.

33. Workshop service where Engines are not made—When the workshop service has been performed in a place where steam engines are not made or repaired, and the class of work done is similar to that required in engine making, the service may be accepted with an additional year of qualifying service, that is, four years' workshop service and either two years at sea on regular watch, or one year at engine fitting in a suitable marine engine workshop and one year at sea in the engine room. The approval of the Port Officer must be obtained in every such case before the candidate is examined.

34. Technical Schools—Time spent after the age of 15 at a technical day school (recognised by the Government as suitable) where there is an engineering laboratory, may be taken into account and accepted as equivalent to artisan service, usually at the ratio of three years in the technical school to two in artisan service, provided that the applicant has taken the full engineering course and can produce the Principal's Certificate for regular attendance at all the approved classes and for satisfactory progress; and provided also that the remaining portion of the time has been spent in works where steam engines, boilers, &c, are made or repaired, in accordance with the scale of values indicated above

For list of approved technical schools and time allowed for attendance at each, see Appendix K.

35 Sea-service—The sea-service required by these regulations is, unless otherwise stated, service performed in foreign-going ships of at least the nominal horse-power specified for the respective grades of Certificate. The nominal horse-power, as given on the vessel's Certificate of Registry, may in all cases be accepted by the Examiners.

36. Qualifying Service defined.—In the case of candidates for First-class Certificates qualifying service means, as a rule, service on regular watch on the main engines or boilers as Senior Engineer in charge of the whole watch When, however, three or four Engineers are on watch at the same time the service of the two seniors may be allowed to count, and when not less than six Engineers are on watch together that of the three seniors, provided a certificate from the Superintending Engineer is produced stating the number of Engineers on watch, the rank held by the applicant and that he was in full charge of a watch on a definite section of the main engines or boilers. During the whole of the period claimed, candidates must have been in possession of Second-class Certificates

In the case of candidates for Second-class Certificates qualifying service means service as Engineer on regular watch on the main engines or boilers In no case will time spent in clerical work be allowed to count.

37. Further as to Qualifying Service.—Only such service as gives the experience required to make a man thoroughly competent as a sea-going Engineer is accepted as qualifying service. Even for a Second-class Certificate the candidate must prove to the satisfaction of the Examiner that he is qualified by experience and knowledge to act as Chief Engineer in an under-powered steamer of 99 nominal horse-power on a voyage, say, from England to Egypt, taking full responsibility for engines and boilers.

38 Foreign Engineers.—Foreign Engineers cannot be examined for a First-class Certificate unless they have performed the sea-service stated in paragraph 26 with the requisite British Certificate The service may have been performed in foreign vessels if the candidate can produce satisfactory testimonials as to conduct and character, and is able to prove that the service has been in the required capacities, and that during the period of service he has held a British Certificate of Competency of the rank required by the Regulations (see paragraph 15).

39 Names on Articles.—In all cases the candidates' names must have been duly entered on the ship's Articles as Engineers in their proper ratings.

40 Regular Watch—Being on regular watch means being on watch for at least eight hours a day

41. Home-trade Service—Service in the home or coasting trade is regarded as being equivalent to two-thirds of the same period of time served in the foreign trade except where other allowances are specified. See paragraphs 26 (a) (2) and (3), 42, 44, and 45. Also except in the case of Indian coasting voyages extending beyond a distance of 500 miles from the port of departure in steamships commanded by masters holding foreign-going certificates, when such service will count as foreign-voyages, and will be reckoned as full time; but the time spent in the port of departure or Home Port will not be allowed to count In all cases the length of service is deemed to commence on the date of sailing from the port of departure or Home Port and to end on the date of arrival at the Home Port. Such service must be vouched for in the form laid down in Appendix L.

42 Lake or River Service —Service as watch-keeper on a lake or river steamer of not less than 66 nominal horse-power may be accepted under the following conditions:—

(a) the service will only count half as much as sea service, i e, every two months of lake or river service is only equivalent to one month's foreign-going sea service;

(b) candidates for Second-class Certificates must prove, in addition to the lake or river service, at least three month's qualifying service at sea in a foreign-going steamship of not less than 66 nominal horse-power, or four and a half months, similar service in the home-trade,

(c) candidates for First-class Certificates must prove, in addition to lake or river service in vessels of not less than 99 nominal horse-power, at least six months' qualifying service at sea, with a Second-class Engineer's Certificate, in foreign-going vessels of not less than 99 nominal horse-power or nine months, similar service in the home-trade.

43. Service in Auxiliary Screw Steam ships.—Service performed on board auxiliary screw whalers and other vessels with auxiliary steam power of not less than 66 nominal horse-power, in the capacity of Engineer may be allowed to count towards qualifying candidates for examination for Second-class Engineers' Certificates of Competency to the extent of one-half the time the vessel is actually at sea. If the candidate is able to prove a larger amount of time under steam, he will be allowed to count the whole of such extended time

44. Service in Dredgers, Fishing-boats, Tug-boats, or Pilot-vessels.—Service in sea going steam dredgers, fishing-boats, or tug-boats, and in sea-going pilot-vessels when on their station or when going to or returning from the same, may be accepted under the following conditions:—Two months of such service is only equivalent to one month's qualifying service in a foreign-going steamer. Candidates for Second-class Certificates may perform all their sea service in sea-going steam dredgers, fishing-boats, tug-boats, or pilot-vessels, but they must have been on regular watch on the main engines or boilers, and the vessels must not be less than 66 nominal horse-power. Candidates for First-class Certificates must while in possession of a Second-class Certificate have served in vessels of at least 99 nominal horse-power, and have been in charge of a watch on the main engines or boilers They must, in addition, have served in a qualifying capacity for at least six months in a foreign-going cargo or passenger steamship, or nine months in a home-trade cargo or passenger steamship This rule will not apply to service on the steam pilot vessels at the Sandheads Service on the regular watch on board such vessels for the period the vessels are on the station, or when going to, or returning from, the same, shall be accepted as equivalent to two-thirds of the time performed in foreign-going trading vessels, as in the case of steam yachts.

45. Service in Yachts—Service performed in steam yachts, either within or beyond home-trade limits, may be accepted as equivalent to two-thirds of the time performed in foreign-going trading vessels, provided that the candidate's name is entered on the vessel's Articles, and that he can prove, to the satisfaction of the Examiner, that the time claimed was actually served at sea

Candidates for Second-class Certificates may perform all their service in yachts, but the candidate must have been on regular watch on the main engines or boilers, and the vessel must be of not less than 66 nominal horse-power.

Candidates for First-class Certificates must have served on vessels of not less than 99 nominal horse-power, and must have been in regular charge of the main engines or boilers In addition they must have served for at least three months in a qualifying capacity on board a foreign-going cargo or passenger steamship. This additional service will, however, not be required in the case of a candidate who has served for 18 months as First Engineer, or for 2 years as Second Engineer, of a steam yacht of the requisite power.

46 Certificates of Service.—An officer who has attained the rank of Engineer Lieutenant or Engineer Sub-Lieutenant in His Majesty's Navy or the rank of Engineer or Assistant Engineer in the Indian Marine Service, is entitled without examination, if an Engineer Lieutenant or Engineer, to a Certificate of Service as First class Engineer, and if an Engineer Sub Lieutenant or Assistant Engineer, to a Certificate of Service as Second-class Engineer These officers may be examined for a Certificate of Competency on the same conditions as Engineers of the Mercantile Marine

An officer who has attained the rank of Chief Artificer Engineer in His Majesty's Navy is also entitled without examination to a Certificate of Service as Second-class Engineer

47 Examination of Engine Room Artificers—Artificer Engineers, Chief Engine Room Artificers, Engine Room Artificers, and Mechanicians in the Royal Navy may be examined for Certificates of Competency on the same conditions as Engineers of the Mercantile Marine

48 Application by Naval Officers—The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty have directed that applications from officers of the Navy for Certificates of Service or for permission to be examined for Certificates of Competency must, in the case of officers on the active list, be made through the Commanding Officer to the Secretary to the Admiralty, and in the case of officers who are on half-pay or who have retired, direct to the Secretary to the Admiralty, who in either case will forward the applications to the Board of Trade.

49 Masters' and Mates' Examination in Steam—Particulars of the examination of Masters and Mates in steam will be found in Appendix G, page 597.

50. Certificates—The term "Certificate" in these regulations means a Certificate issued by the Board of Trade, or by a British Possession under Order in Council in accordance with sec. 102 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. A list of the Colonial Certificates issued under Order in Council is given in Appendix H; and the holder of a Certificate so issued must not be examined in the United Kingdom for a Certificate of the grade already held

51 Colonial Local Certificates—The holder of a Colonial Certificate of Competency not granted under the Merchant Shipping Act, or of a Certificate of Competency granted after examination on board one of His Majesty's

Ships, who wishes to be examined for a Board of Trade Certificate of the same grade, must prove that he has performed the amount of service required by these regulations for that grade, and complied with the conditions laid down as to testimonials. No fee will be demanded for the first attempt, but if the candidate fails the usual fee will be demanded on any subsequent attempt

All Colonial Certificates for marine purposes, whether local or issued under Order in Council, must be given up before a further Certificate is issued by the Board of Trade.

CHAPTER III.

CONDUCT OF THE EXAMINATIONS.

52. Commencement and Duration of Examinations.—The examinations will, as a rule, commence at 10 A M., and will be continued from day to day until all the candidates whose names appear upon the Port Officer's list on the day of examination are examined

53. Candidates to be Punctual—Candidates are required to appear at the examination room punctually at the time appointed.

54 Tables to be Cleared—Before commencing the examination, the tables and desks must be cleared of all scraps of paper, or books that are not used in the examination, and care should be taken that the candidates while in the examination room do not have in their possession any book or paper.

55. Strangers not Admitted.—No person will be allowed in the rooms during the examinations other than those whose duties require them to be present

No instructors will be allowed on the premises

56. Face Sheet and Blotting Paper - At the commencement of the examination a face sheet should be given to each of the candidates and they should be instructed to read the rules contained therein A sheet of blotting paper will be issued to each candidate with the first examination paper, and it must be returned to the Examiner when the last paper is completed each day. The Examiner will be careful to see that the blotting paper has not been used by the candidate in solving his problems, or for conveying information to other candidates.

57. All Work to be Shown.—No candidate will be allowed to work out his problems on a slate or on waste paper, or to write on the blotting paper supplied for his use in the examination. Violation of this rule will subject the candidate to all the penalties of failure.

All worked papers must be signed and dated and the name of the port of examination inserted by the candidate.

Additional sheets of paper will be supplied by the Examiner if required, but they must be attached to, and form part of, examination papers.

58 Books and Papers strictly Forbidden.—All books necessary for the use of candidates under examination will be provided by the Government and candidates are prohibited from bringing into the examination room books or papers of any kind whatever. The slightest infringement of this regulation will subject the offender to all the penalties of failure, and he will not be allowed to present himself for re-examination for a period of three months.

59. Drawing Instruments.—Candidates for First-class Certificates have to pass an examination in rough working drawing, which may, in the candidate's option, be either hand sketches clearly dimensioned and complete in the necessary views and sections, or drawings to a scale. Drawing boards and T squares will be provided by the Government, but the applicants will have to bring with them any drawing instruments they may require.

60 Candidates' Places.—Candidates should be so placed as to prevent one copying from another, and no communication whatever between the candidates should be allowed.

61. Penalty for Copying, &c.—In the event of any candidate being discovered referring to any book or paper, or copying from another, or affording any assistance or giving information to another, or communicating in any way with another, during the time of examination, or copying any part of the problems for the purpose of taking them out of the examination rooms, he will subject himself to all the penalties of failure, and will not be allowed to be again examined for a period of six months.

62 Leaving Room or Building.—No candidate may leave the examination room without permission and without giving up the paper on which he is engaged. Under no circumstances will the same paper be returned to him but the Examiner may substitute other data, or another question.

63. Injury to Books—If a candidate defaces, blots, writes in, or otherwise injures any book or form belonging to the Government, his papers will be retained until he has replaced the damaged book or document He will not be allowed to remove the damaged book or document, and will be subjected to all the penalties of failure.

64. Silence.—Perfect silence is to be preserved in the examination room.

65. Penalty for Breach of Rules.—Any candidate violating any of the regulations, or being guilty of insolence to the Examiner, or of disorderly or improper conduct in or about the room, will render himself liable to the postponement of his examination, or, in the event of his having passed, to the detention of his Certificate for such period as the Government may direct.

66. Order of Examinations--The examination of candidates for Second-class Certificates consists of three parts: arithmetic, elementary questions, and vivâ voce, and that of candidates for First-class Certificates of four parts; arithmetic, drawing, elementary questions, and vivâ voce. See paragraphs 25 and 26

67 Examination Papers—One sheet only at a time should be given to the candidate and not more than two hours should be allowed for any one sheet

68. Arithmetic.—When the number of marks obtained in arithmetic amounts to 28, that is, two-thirds of the maximum, the candidate passes in arithmetic

If the marks obtained amount to 21, but not to 28, and if the applicant has had long experience, his testimonials and service should be taken into account, and his examination continued, if deemed advisable by the Examiner, and he may be passed or failed, having due regard to his practical knowledge, and to whether he is being examined for second class or first class.

69. Drawing.—With regard to a candidate's drawing, when the word "consider" is telegraphed instead of either of the words "fail" or "pass," it must be understood to mean that the examination may be proceeded with so far as the drawing is concerned, and the candidate passed if in the remaining part of it he shows a superiority in practical knowledge.

70. Elementary Questions—All Engineer applicants presenting themselves for examination will be required to give written answers to ten questions selected from Elementary Questions shown in Appendix C, page 558. These questions are intended to furnish a record to some extent of the candidate's knowledge at the time of his examination and also to induce the candidates to pay more attention to their handwriting and spelling

Examiners will require all candidates to fill up a form Exn 15b, and they will forward it to the Chief Examiner of Engineers with the report of the examination

The elementary questions will, as a rule, be given on the second day of the examination to candidates for second class, and on either the second or third day to candidates for first class, but candidates who have time after working the arithmetical papers on the first day or the drawing on the second day may be allowed to go on with the Elementary Questions

The questions for both classes of Engineers will be taken from the same series of Elementary Questions, and candidates for First-class Certificates are expected to show their superiority by giving answers more complete than those of the other candidates.

71 Vivâ Voce — Having regard to the fact that when the verbal examination is held, the candidate has already passed in arithmetic, and, if a first-class candidate, in drawing, and has also written answers to the elementary questions, the Examiners should deal with practical, rather than theoretical, questions in this division of the examination; and no candidate should be failed in the verbal examination without having been well cross-questioned on the points for which failure takes place. Candidates may, however, be failed in the written elementary paper without being examined vivâ voce In cases where the Examiner approves of the elementary paper, but fails the candidate for lack of either practical or elementary knowledge, a written account of the points on which he failed must be forwarded to the Chief Examiner of Engineers with the elementary papers and the Report Exn. 15.

The elementary questions to be answered on Form Exn. 15b are good starting points in vivâ voce examinations. With the candidate's written answers before the Examiner, the same question can be put in a way requiring the answer in another form. Each question may be developed into several according to the circumstances of the case, e.g. —

1. What is made of? Of what parts does it consist?
2. What is its use?
3. What attention does it require at sea?
4. What attention does it require in port?

5. When it becomes defective, what is it that principally goes wrong with it?
6. How is it repaired?
7. What alteration may prevent a recurrence of the defect?

It is considered of great importance that Engineers presenting themselves for examination should have an extensive knowledge of the particulars of actual casualties which have occurred at sea, and be able to state how those might have been prevented, and how remedied. Sometimes an Engineer presents himself who has had no personal experience of any defects, and who can tell nothing about casualties to machinery which have occurred in the experience of others: such candidates should be closely questioned as to their knowledge of boiler and engine construction and the repairs of same.

The management of engines and boilers at sea, the duties of the Engineer on watch, the work to be done to the engines, boilers, and auxiliary machinery in port, and the periodical examinations of the working parts, should form part of the vivâ voce examination.

72. Reports of Examinations—Reports of Examinations on the form Exn 15, together with the examination papers, forms Exn. 57 and face sheets, should be forwarded to the Port Officer immediately the examinations are completed, together with the candidate's application to be examined, (form Exn. 3) duly filled up, and his previous Certificate, if any.

APPENDIX D.

EXAMINATION IN ROUGH WORKING DRAWING FOR A FIRST-CLASS ENGINEER'S CERTIFICATE OF COMPETENCY (Form Exn. 17.)

1. The regulations in regard to the qualifications of a candidate for a First-class Engineer's Certificate of competency specify that,— > "He will be required to make an intelligible hand sketch, or a working drawing of some one or more of the principal parts of a steam-engine, and to mark in, without a copy, all the necessary dimensions in figures, so that the sketch or drawing could be worked from"

> "He must be able to state the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other"

2. In accordance with these clauses, a candidate for a First-class Certificate is required to make a rough working drawing of the parts specified as on page 583. An Engineer who has been some years in charge of marine Engines and boilers ought to have familiarly in his mind the general construction of at least one set of engines and boilers, say that set he was last with Fine drawing is not expected, and in the proportions of the parts a wide margin will be allowed, absurd dimensions will entail failure in practical knowledge

3. The drawing must, however, be practically a working drawing, giving a sufficient number of views to show the parts fully—sections, plans, or elevations, just as the candidate would require to be supplied to him if he had to make the parts represented to the design of another person.

4. A clear hand sketch showing the construction completely, and fully dimensioned, will be accepted if the candidate prefers this alternative.

5. A portion only of the parts specified may be accepted in-place of the whole, if that portion is sufficient to show that the candidate has a good practical idea of the construction of the parts, and a fair notion of their general proportions or dimensions.

6. Candidates are cautioned not to put on paper what they have not fully considered, and deliberately intend to be understood, as evidence of what they know about the construction of any part required.

7. The statements given in by a candidate may be in themselves, apparently, of little importance, but, as sample material from which the extent of the candidate's knowledge of engines and boilers is to be inferred, every detail which is glaringly inconsistent with a sound knowledge of the use of the part, or in which an essential consideration has evidently been overlooked, is an important element in the description which the candidate is giving of his own qualifications

8. The candidate is advised not to begin more than he can clearly finish in the time allowed. An important object in this part of the examination is to ascertain whether the candidate can be trusted to mark all necessary dimensions upon a sketch or a drawing The test of this is, pratically, the making of the part from the sketch without having to supply additional dimensions, and without measuring the drawing To prove this ability the candidate must fully dimension the parts shown in his sketch or drawing, notwithstanding that the parts may be correctly drawn to scale A drawing is fully dimensioned when no part of it is left to the option of the party who is to work to the drawing

9. To prevent misunderstanding, however, when the candidate has been led into showing more of the details than he has time fully to finish, he should name, in the statement on the other side, the particular parts which he has not fully dimensioned

10 All dimensions should have lines and darts, to indicate distinctly the points between which the dimensions are given

11 Beware of writing cross dimensions upon centre lines, or upon longitudinal dimension lines. This is not an order but a recommendation

12 The candidate is not expected to design anything; he has merely to sketch or draw something with which he has expected to be already familiar. At the same time he should call attention to any defect in the design of the article or apparatus Omission to do so will imply want of practical knowledge

13. Pencil in noting after half-past 3, all the dimensions, the figures, and the drafts must be inked in; employ the remaining time in examining the drawing and in inking in any figure which may have been before overlooked, and in checking the dimensions.

14 Make sure that you will have sufficient room on the drawing sheet to show all the necessary views. You can have another sheet of drawing paper if necessary. All the paper used must be forwarded with the drawing.

READING THE WATER-GAUGES.

Notwithstanding that the reading of the water-gauge is made a special feature in the examination of Engineers, many boiler casualties from result the Engineer of the watch either not understanding the construction of the water-gauge fittings or not satisfying himself by actual trial that the cocks, pipes, &c , are clear

In one case, two furnace crowns came down in a steamer that was just starting on a voyage The Engineers were satisfied that there was plenty of water in the boiler because the water-gauge showed full glass, and they called the attention of a Board of Trade Surveyor to this fact as being conclusive evidence that the casualty could not have resulted from shortness of water. On examination of the fittings, however, it was found that the cock between the boiler and the steam pipe leading to the gauge was shut, having been carelessly left in that position on the previous day when the mountings were overhauled for survey Directly the cock was opened the water disappeared from the gauge glass, and the Second Engineer admitted that he had blown down the boiler in order to lower the water level, as the glass was full

Many steamers have had their furnaces brought down at sea in a similar manner to the above through what the Engineers of the watch have called "false water in the glass," and which on examination has been found to result from the top communication being choked.

These casualties resulted from what, to say the least, was bad management, not false water.

Unless a candidate under examination is able to prove that he understands how to verify the indications of the water-gauge, he should not be passed in practial knowledge and, as failure in practical knowledge involves the candidate going to sea for another three months before being eligible for re-examination, the Examiner should explain to such candidate his error, after failing him, in order to prevent further casualties resulting from his want of knowledge on this subject.

The sketches, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, Plate I., represent the usual methods of attaching water-gauge mountings to marine boilers The important features in each gauge and the method of verifying its indications are dealt with separately in the following remarks:—

In this case the water-gauge cocks are attached direct to the boiler, and the accuracy of the gauge when the boiler is under steam can be tested as follows.—

First —Let B remain open, then close cock D and open cock E, and if steam issues it proves that cock B and the passage through the top fitting and gauge glass are clear. If no steam or water issues, either cock B or the passage through the top fitting and gauge glass is choked and the gauge cannot act properly until the obstruction is removed.

Second —Close cock B and open D and E, and if water issues, cock D is clear. If no water or steam issues, either cock D or the passage from the boiler through the lower fitting is choked and must be cleared before the gauge can act properly

In this case the gauge cocks are attached to a bent pipe of comparatively large diameter (at least 3 inches in the bore), the upper end of which communicates with the steam space, and the lower end with the water space of the boiler owing to the bore of the pipe being large it is not liable to become choked or stopped under the ordinary conditions of working. The water gauge is, therefore, in practically the same condition as if it were attached direct to the boiler, as in Figure 1 This gauge, when at work, is tested in precisely the same manner as the one shown in Figure 1

Screw plugs are inserted at P.P and Q Q, by the removal of which the apertures in the pipe can be cleared, if necessary, by the insertion of a wire or rod when steam is down.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 3 ONLY.

In this gauge there is an open communication from A to C through the column Y, and in order to "blow through the glass" it is only necessary to shut cocks D and B alternately keeping E open. But to "blow through the water-gauge," including the pipes H and I, it is necessary, after blowing through the glass as described above, to shut A and C alternately at the same time keeping B, D and E open for such time as will ensure the complete discharge of the contents of the gauge and its connections When B, D and C are clear and A choked the steam lodging in the glass and in the pipe I leading from column Y to A becomes condensed and the water flowing through C to take its place rises in column Y and in the glass to a level above that of the water in the boiler In other words, the gauge shows a false level. If now E be opened and water is blown out, then on E being again closed the water in the gauge will rise higher than before and be still further misleading. On the other hand, when B, D and A are clear and C choked, the water, if any, in the glass is trapped and no longer rises and falls with the water in the boiler or with the motion of the vessel; it, however, slowly rises in the glass owing to the condensation of the steam in the upper part of the gauge until such time as E is opened when the whole of the water in the glass is blown out, and on E being closed the glass does not show any water notwithstanding that the water in the boiler may be at the proper level When the test cocks T T T are attached to column Y, as shown in Figure 3, they case to be reliable when either cock A or C or the pipe in connection therewith is choked, or nearly choked.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 4 ONLY.

Sometimes the water-gauge fittings are arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5, with no passage up the column, the central portion (N) of the column being simply a pillar or connecting piece of any convenient section between the upper and lower portions to which the cocks B and D are attached

By this arrangement double communications are obviated and there is no need for what is known as "double shut off" in testing the accuracy of the gauge. When, however, the gauges are constructed in this manner the cocks B and D are unreliable as test cocks in the event of there being no glass in the gauge. This feature should be carefully noted. Moreover, when in working condition the reduction of pressure in the glass which arises when E is opened causes the water in pipe H to rise above its normal level This objectionable feature should also be noted

REFERRING TO FIGURE 5 ONLY

Sometimes there is a bend, L, in the steam pipe, I leading from cock A to cock B. This has occasionally escaped observation when new boilers have been fitted on board ship In most cases this bend arises from the pipe being led in an abnormal direction to escape other pipes, beams or fittings near the smoke box With such a bend the condensed steam collects in the pipe and falls to the bottom of the bend, and in time it completely fills the pipe from J to K The steam from K down to the level of the water in the glass is thereby trapped and, as condensation proceeds, leads to a reduction of pressure in the pipe below that of the boiler and an equivalent rise of the water in the bend and also in the gauge glass When the vessel is quiescent the water in the gauge glass increases in height until cock E is opened or until the pressure in the boiler is so much in excess of that in the lower part of pipe I, as to cause the water in the bend to be blown into the gauge glass. In either case instantaneous change to water level in the glass ensues.

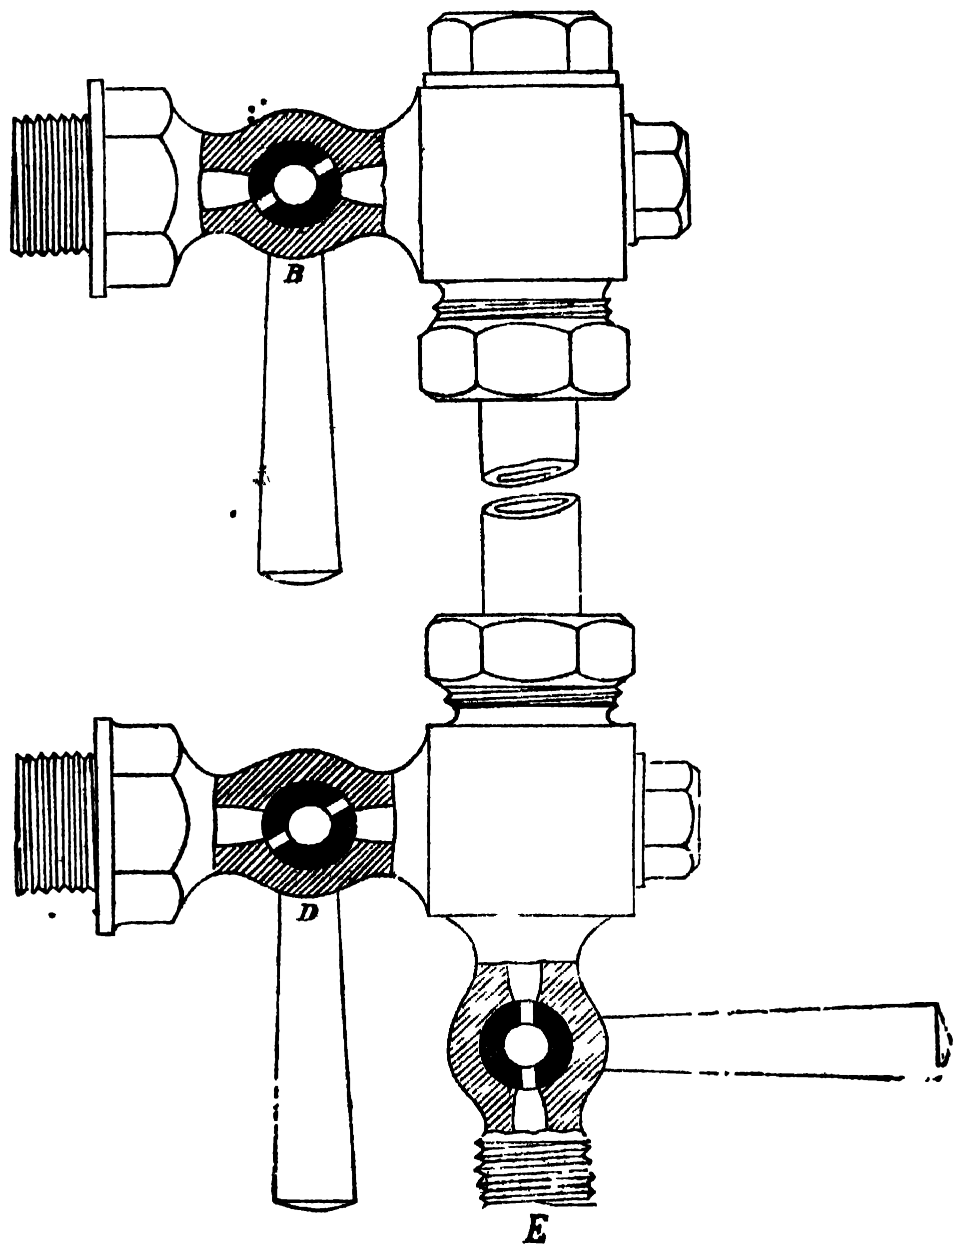
In the ordinary course of working the phenomenon described above is more or less modified by the presence of air in the upper part of the gauge and by the rise and fall of the water in the boiler and gauge glass arising from the rolling or pitching motions of the vessel

OTHER SPECIAL POINTS TO BE NOTED

When the cocks A and C are omitted, as in Figure 2, it is owing to the bore of the stand pipe being sufficiently large to enable it to be regarded as part of the boiler Such pipes require, however, to be examined and cleared at intervals by passing a rod through the holes provided for the purpose at P P and Q Q

Cocks at A and C are not necessary for the testing of gauges arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5 Examiners ought, however, to make sure that candidates are aware of the impossibility of testing the reliability of the indications of water-gauges arranged as in Figure 3 when the cocks A and C are absent and of the effect which the choking of cook A or C, or pipe H or I has on the indications of the test cocks T T T attached to column Y

Probably more than half the steamers afloat are fitted with water-gauges as shown in Figures 3 and 4, and it is therefore specially important that engineer candidates should thoroughly understand their construction, the principle on which they act, and the steps which must be taken to keep them in an efficient condition



When fitting a gauge glass into its place it is specially important that it should not be placed so high as to prevent a clearing rod being inserted at G, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. This defect, especially if it occurs in a water-gauge attached to a boiler subject to priming, permits a rapid accumulation of scum around the top of the glass and results in the choking of the orifice leading from cock B to the gauge glass in each of the figures.

When a gauge glass is too short or is placed either too high or too low in the fittings, it is also liable to become choked by the packing material being forced over its ends by the glands whilst being screwed up.

The use of unsuitable or insecure internal pipes in connection either with the ordinary glass gauge cocks of the description shown in Figure 1, or with test cocks which are jointed to the boiler itself should also be carefully guarded against.

Boiler casualties have resulted from the cocks B and D having the parts wrongly placed as shown in Figure 6, Plate II In one case of that kind which forms the subject of Report No 208 under the Boiler Explosions Acts, the Engineer in testing the water-gauge omitted to see that the passages in the cocks B and D were clear when the handles were in their proper working position This defect could easily have been discovered if proper attention had been paid to the condition of the cocks A defect of this nature may be due to faulty construction originally, or to the handle of the cock having been overstrained, and the neck twisted. Whether the passages in the plugs are fair and clear can, however, be verified in a few minutes As an illustration, the water cock D, Figure 6, Plate II., can be verified by blowing through E with B shut and then moving the handle of D to one side until it is just closed, and then to the other side until it is again just closed, the proper working position of the handle is about equally distant from each of the above positions The other cocks can be verified in the same manner.

Another serious casualty occurred through the handle of the cock A, Figure 3, having been twisted from its original position relatively to the orifice of the cock, resulting in the cock being shut when apparently open

When a water-gauge, that is clear in all its parts, has been thoroughly blown through, the water in the glass rises above the level at which it formerly stood, immediately the drain cock E is closed, but if left undisturbed for a time it gradually falls to its former position The amount of rise which occurs on these occasions depends chiefly on the temperature of the contents of the boiler and on the length of the pipes by which column Y is connected top and bottom to the boiler, but in cases where the gauge is of the description illustrated in Figures 3, 4 and 5, it amounts in high pressure boilers to about 4 inches, while the time occupied by the water in returning to its former level ranges from 30 to 40 minutes. The cause of this rise is twofold, namely (a) the displacement of the comparatively cold water in pipe H by hotter and proportionately lighter water from the boiler, and (b) a slight condensation of the steam and a corresponding fractional reduction of pressure in pipe I. The cause of the gradual subsidence of the water in the glass to its former level is also of a dual character, namely (a) the cooling of the water in pipe H, and (b) the diminution in the condensation of steam in pipe I owing to the collection therein of air released from the steam condensed

These results will, however, be somewhat modified if the water in the boiler is of higher density than in pipe H, and this will nearly always be the case owing to the condensation of the steam in the glass and upper fittings of the water-gauge, causing the water in the lower part to be fresher than that in the boiler.

The Examiner should impress upon candidates the necessity for periodically blowing through the water-gauge on each boiler (no matter what the form may be) in a systematic and thorough manner, and, in cases where a boiler is fitted with two water-gauges, of keeping both in constant use, finally, he should further impress upon them the necessity for keeping the water-gauges well lighted, clean, and in all

APPENDIX F.

DANGERS ATTENDING THE EXISTENCE OF A VACUUM IN BOILERS.

The attention of Examiners of Engineers is called to the following report relating to a fatal accident to an Engineer on board a British ship, and they are requested to see that all candidates for Engineers' Certificates realise the danger of removing a manhole door without taking the necessary precautions

Board of Trade Surveyors' Office,
79, Mark Lane,
London, E C.,
December 1st, 1898.

SIR,

WE beg to report that in accordance with your instructions we visited the S S "Elderslie," O N. 89,929, and inquired into the cause of the death, at Smyrna, of Ernest Marshall, Third Engineer of that steamer, on the 15th October, 1898.

The "Elderslie" is a screw steamer, built in 1884, of 2,761 tons gross and 1,801 tons net register The engines are compound, direct-acting, and there are two double-ended boilers of the usual marine type, each boiler having six furnaces, three at each end, W. P 90 lbs Mr E Marshall, the Third Engineer, was found dead in one of the boilers under circumstances which are not readily understood.

The Chief Engineer, Mr Bishop, repeated to us a statement which he had previously made, and he was corroborated, so far as his personal knowledge went, by the Second Engineer, and also by a Greek fireman, Spiloni, and the other firemen in the engine-room and stokehold at the time It is clear that on the vessel's arrival at Smyrna on the 14th October, after the fires had died out, the boilers were blown down between 5 and 6 P M, and, by the instructions of the Chief Engineer, the Third Engineer proceeded at 7 A M. on the following morning to take the manhole doors off. (The manholes are 16½ inches by 12½ inches, and are in the end plate at the after end of the boiler) He was assisted by Spiloni, who was usually detailed to work with him, and who says that one nut and one dog or cross-bar had been taken off the door, and the other nut started, when the Third Engineer sent him to prepare to take the door off the manhole of the other boiler. Spiloni left the Third Engineer, went down a ladder into the stokehold, across the stokehold, up another ladder to the starboard boiler, and immediately afterwards, hearing a loud report, went back to the port boiler where he had left the Third Engineer, and saw nothing but that the door was off and not in sight What happened in the interval between this fireman leaving the Third Engineer and his return in a few minutes can only be reasoned out from the conditions and circumstances of the case as there is nothing definitely known.

The Engineers and Engineers' crew were at this time engaged as follows:—

Chief Engineer on deck

Second Engineer in engine-room at H.P. cylinder; one fireman with Second Engineer; one fireman with Third Engineer; four firemen cleaning engines, and two trimmers cleaning tubes in boilers.

The Second Engineer in the engine-room heard the report—he says, about 7-15 A.M—and describes it as being like the sound caused by coal falling in the bunkers. The Chief Engineer knew nothing until informed that the Third was missing. Spiloni and others had been looking about and inquiring for him. The Chief joined in the search and finally went to the manhole, when he noticed that the door was off, and not to be seen. He states that the boiler was so hot inside that he could not keep his hand in, and that on trying to put his head in the manhole he found it impossible to do so. Hot vapour was coming out of the manhole. His first thought was that the Third Engineer had allowed the door to drop into the boiler, and, attempting to get it out, had gone into the boiler, and been overcome by the heat. He tried to look in with lamps, &c, but could not see anything. He then got the bottom doors off, first the after bottom door and then the forward one. He could not see anything through the after door, but on looking in the forward bottom door he saw blood on the sides of the furnaces —that is, he explains there was some fresh blood as if running down on the side of the centre and wing furnace near to the forward end of the boiler. This was at 7-45 A.M The boiler was allowed to cool down and in about four hours the body of the Third Engineer was got out It was found lying on two of the longitudinal stays close to the forward end plate, and opposite the manhole.

The door was found on the top of the tubes almost underneath the body, and one of the dogs beside it,—both of the studs in the door were bent and a small piece of rope was fastened to one of the studs. A spanner was found on the top of the combustion box girders—that is halfway between the manhole and the position of the body, and a lamp, hammer, and chisel and broom-head or brush were found in the bottom of the boiler. When the body was got out it was found that the skull was fractured, and that the skin where exposed peeled off when rubbed. A surgeon certified that the skull was fractured but does not appear to have examined the whole body, contenting himself with seeing sufficient cause for the man's death. The Master, however, says that the arms and the shoulders looked to him as if seriously injured or broken, and that there was a deep mark on the forehead and the clothing torn in places.

The foregoing statement contains the important points of the case so far as we can gather them. We both have entered the boiler, examined the manhole and door, had the exact position where the body was found pointed out, and also that of the door, &c., and spanner. The whole story appears straightforward and is easily realised, but the causes which brought the body of the Third Engineer to the position where it was found are not so readily explained. Accepting the statements of the Master, engineers and firemen (and we have no reason for doubting them), it is clear that the Third Engineer either (1) got into the boiler of his own accord, (2) was put in by others, or (3) met his death accidently by causes unforeseen and unnoticed, and which no one contributed to, except, himself, and that unknowingly. The first two causes must it appears to us, be dismissed—the position of the body and the statement as to the high temperature of the boiler and other reasons rendering them absolutely inadmissible; and after considering the whole circumstances of the case, we are of opinion that the death of the Third Engineer was brought about in the following manner:—

The boilers were blown down and left, neither safety-valves nor cocks were opened (the Chief Engineer says he gave instructions to open the gauge cocks, but found them shut) so that when the steam condensed there would be a vacuum in the boilers. The manhole is in the after end plate, there is a small platform almost in a line with the door. The deceased took off both the nuts without moving the door, one dog was taken off, the other turned partly round, a piece of small rope (which the Second Engineer says was very weak stuff) was fastened to one of the studs of the door and to the gauge glass stand. He then stooped down in almost a lying position, probably holding the door by one of the studs, or by the rope, with one hand, and perhaps tapping it with the spanner in the other hand, when the door started, was suddenly driven inwards by the pressure of the atmosphere with great force, the rope broke, and the deceased, involuntarily tightening his grip on the stud or rope, was drawn into the boiler—the inrush of air assisting this movement, as his body became near to or partly filled the hole—and he was propelled with such violence as to fracture his skull on the other end of the boiler, or it may be by striking the plate at the manhole as his head was entering it.

This explanation which, from its singularity may at first appear somewhat doubtful, is the only one which we think fits all the known facts of the case, such as:—the short interval which elapsed between the time when the fireman Spiloni left the Third Engineer and his return to the manhole; the short time from starting work at 7 A.M. until the report was heard 15 minutes later; the sudden disappearance of the Third Engineer; the condition and position of the body when found, the position of the door, spanner, &c; and also the high temperature of the boiler.

It certainly appears extraordinary that a man could be drawn into a boiler through a manhole with such force as to fracture his skull on the end plate, 16 feet from the hole, and in a direct line with it, but the stays would form a sort of guide to keep the door and body travelling in a horizontal and direct line, and it may be added that the deceased was not a big man. He is said to have been about 10 stone in weight and 5 feet 5 inches high. It can be seen by examination of the small platform at the manhole that the occurrence is at least quite possible. At any rate, unless the whole story is disbelieved, a manhole door weighing 86 lbs. was found along with the body of the Third Engineer, close to the end plate furthest from the manhole, and had been in that position for some hours and from a time when the condition of the boiler was such that no one would have entered it, or could have lived therein.

We wish to add that, although death under the above circumstances is probably unprecedented, the violent inrush of a manhole door due to vacuum in the boiler has been frequently experienced. A case somewhat analogous occurred in one of the steamers of the —— Line, which hearing about, we inquired as to the facts from the Superintendent who kindly sent a letter describing the case, a copy of which is given below.*

We have inquired in reference to the circumstances of this case of the Master, First and Second Engineers Spiloni, and the other men The firemen are Greeks and understand very little English The present Third Engineer, who is a native of Smyrna, and can speak English and Greek acted as interpreter.

The area of the manhole, 16½ in. by 12½ in is about 156 square inches, and assuming a temperature of about 18 degrees in the boiler, there might exist an external pressure of 7 lbs. per square inch, which, if suddenly applied, would exert a force of 1,092 lbs.,—at any rate sufficient force would be exerted to set up a high velocity on the door when suddenly relieved.

Referring to our conversation this morning, relative to the death of an Engineer in a boiler on board a British steamer at Smyrna, it affords me some pleasure to give you the details of an almost similar occurrence on board one of the steamers of the ——— Line some few years ago. They are as follows —

The vessel arrived on a Saturday evening, and it being necessary to get the men in the boiler at the earliest possible moment for cleaning purposes, one of the junior Engineers was ordered to the ship on Sunday morning His instructions were to pump the remaining water out of the boiler, and he did this without admitting air. So far as we were able to gather at the time, it seems that the Engineer, together with a Chinese fireman, went to take off the lower manhole door. This door was some few inches above the stokehole floor, and, as is the usual practice of Chinamen, the fireman assumed the "squatting" attitude He was left to himself to remove the nuts and dogs of the door, and when he had done so, he started the door, and was instantaneously drawn in towards the boiler, his stomach practically closing the aperture, and the door swinging to the back of the boiler with a loud report

Hearing the fireman's cries, the Engineer opened the gauge cocks in order to admit air to the boiler, whilst the fireman in the meantime suffered great agony, being pinned in this position until the vacuum was destroyed.

When the matter was reported to me the next morning, I saw the fireman, who complained of internal injuries These, however, do not appear to have been of a severe nature, as the man was able to resume his work in a few days.

APPENDIX G

EXAMINATION OF MASTERS AND MATES IN STEAM.

These examinations are provided for the purpose of giving Masters and Mates who are possessed of Certificates of Competency an opportunity of undergoing a voluntary examination as to their practical knowledge of the use and working of the steam engine. The Examiners are appointed by Government.

The examination is open to any person who holds a Certificate of any grade in the Foreign or Home trade or as Master of his own pleasure yacht. Candidates should fill up the form of application, Form Exn. 2, at the Port Office, pay the fee of Rs 15, and deposit their Certificates and testimonials with the Port Officer who will inform the applicant when and where to attend to be examined If the candidate fails to pass his Certificate will be at once returned to him

If he passes, the report (Exn 15) will be sent to the Port Officer and the Certificate together with the Form Exn. 2, will be sent to Government, the words, "Certified to have passed in Steam," with the date and place of examination, will then be entered on the Certificate and its counterpart, and the Certificate will be sent to the Superintendent of the Mercantile Marine Office of the port named in the Form Exn 2, and be delivered to the candidate in the usual manner

If a candidate fails he may not present himself for re-examination until the expiration of three months from the date of failure.

The examination is for the most part viva voce, and extends to a general knowledge of the practical use and working of the steam engine, and of the various valves, fittings, and pieces of machinery connected with it, and of the way in which electric lighting is carried out on board ship Theoretical questions on calculations of horse-power or areas of cylinders and valves, or any of the more difficult questions relating to steam engines and boilers, will not be asked.

Examiners are to satisfy themselves that the candidates know the names and understand the uses of the various parts of engines and boilers, and their connecting pipes, valves, cocks, &c Practical knowledge, as distinguished from theories and abstruse calculations, is to be the test of the candidate's fitness to have his Certificate endorsed.

The Examiner should arrange to conduct part of the examination in the engine room of a steamship, unless, from circumstances, he finds it impossible to do so; but in the event of the candidate passing, the Examiner should state in writing what circumstances prevented a visit to an engine room. If an opportunity offer, the candidate should be permitted, under the guidance of the Examiner, to start and stop the engine of some vessel which may have her steam up

The Examiner, in sending in his report of the examination, should state where the examination has been held

Candidate will be required to give written answers to sixteen out of twenty questions taken from the Elementary Questions printed in Appendix C These questions will be altered from time to time without notice" The twenty questions are not to be difficult, theoretical, or book questions, but are to be such as any man of ordinary capacity, who has any practical knowledge of the use and working of the steam engine ought to answer

These questions, with the candidates' answers should be sent to the Port Officer, with the reports, after each examination.

If a candidate refers to any book or paper or memorandum, or obtains information from another candidate or any other person during the examination, he will be treated as having failed, will forfeit his fee, and will not be allowed to be re-examined for a period of three months

The Examiners will report in the case of failure, the nature of the question or questions that decided the failure, or the point in the management of the engine in which the candidate was deficient

There is nothing in the regulations requiring that applicants for the voluntary examination shall have served on board steamships, all that is required is that they shall have a practical knowledge of the use and working of the steam engine. Examiners will not fail to appreciate the fact that practical knowledge is best gained in the engine-room; and the examination of an officer who does not produce official evidence of service in steamships, and of experience of engines, must necessarily be more searching than in the case of one who produces evidence of such service and experience.

Examiners will require all candidates to fill up a Form Exn. 15 b, and they will forward it to the Port Officer with the report of the examination.

Masters and Mates may cancel questions A, B and C, but they should fill up the form for questions D, E, F and G as evidence of their practical knowledge.

A candidate for this examination is required to have a thorough grasp of the construction of the steam engine and boiler, to enable him, in the first place, to understand the nature and importance of any defect which may be reported to him by the Chief Engineer, and so that he may work in harmony with him in affording time and facilities for disconnexions, inspections, adjustments, and repairs; to have a looking-on knowledge of what the principal repairs are about engines and boilers and pipes, and how these repairs are accomplished;

to be able to form an independent opinion as to a breakdown, and the consequent propriety or impropriety of proceeding under steam with temporarily repaired or defective machinery;

to understand how to estimate approximately the reduction of fuel required for reduced speed, and consequently to sanction such reduction of speed as may seem to him to be warranted by the report of the Chief Engineer, and to satisfy himself before leaving port that there is sufficient coal for the voyage;

to have an intelligent grasp of the general run of pipes and connexions in the engine-room, the marking of cocks, the opening and closing of cocks and valves how mistakes of importance may be made in the confusion of an accident, and how best to guard against such mistakes, to be capable of being left in charge of the feeding of a set of boilers, to understand the working of the water gauge, and to be able to guard against being misled by false indications of the gauge glass;

to understand about blowing down and surfacing, the reasons for doing so, and the danger which may result from the neglect of these under certain circumstances

A Master or Mate presenting himself for examination in steam must be understood to have made up for his want of practical experience by reading up about the steam engine. He ought, therefore, to show that he has given his mind to intelligently understanding the rationale of the action of the steam engine. Under this head he should, therefore, be able to state approximately the quantity of heat required in the formation of steam, the remarkable relation of "latent" heat to "sensible" heat, how much steam can be raised by the combustion of one pound of coal, what horse-power measure is, what indicated horse-power is, what is the action of the slide-valve, the course of the steam through the engine, and the advantage of working expansively and how the expansive action is shown by the indicator diagram. To know the uses of the various parts of the engines and dynamos used for electric lighting, and how they and the cables are fitted in the hull, how wires are jointed, insulated, and cased; why it is desirable that they should be led along places which are dry and accessible; what is "short circuiting," and what are the causes which produce it; what is its danger in coal bunkers and petroleum carrying steamers, what are the uses of switches and cut-outs, and why is it so important to prevent short-circuiting taking place

The candidate has to answer in writing 16 out of 20 questions selected from the Elementary Questions (see Appendix C).

Selections for this examination are given on the alphabetic sheet for "Steam." Generally, these answers are given by candidates as learned by rote from a book, the candidate should therefore be asked such vivâ voce questions as will necessitate his giving his answers in different words, so as to discover whether he has the root of the matter in him

The principal part of the vivâ voce is the examination on board a steamer, preferably one with which he is unacquainted He is told to look about and try to find out the run of the machinery without the assistance of anyone; the Examiner to be in the engine room to see that this independent examination is properly carried out. When the candidate reports that he thinks he knows the whole arrangement of the machinery, the Examiner will then question him on the uses of the parts, get him to point out the different cylinders, pumps, valves, condenser, &c; also the dynamo, its field-magnets, armature, commutators, brushes, cables, &c. He must show that he understands the run of the pipes in the bilges, not necessarily that he has gone over every one of them, but he ought to be directed to trace, at least, one important range of pipes, and to thoroughly satisfy the Examiner that he could be safely trusted to manipulate the valves or cocks in connexion therewith. It will not often be practicable for the candidate to be asked to actually work engines under steam, but he must satisfy the Examiner that he knows how to do so, and that he is aware what precautions have to be taken in regard to water in the cylinder, &c It is most important that a candidate should show that, in the event of an accident depriving him of the assistance of engineers, he knows what to do to safely take his vessel to an anchorage, or to stop the engines and proceed under sail alone.

The examination of a mate in steam is the same as that of a master. The knowledge required has no reference to the mate's position A mate may be examined, but such examination implies that the mate will one day be a master, when the possession of the knowledge will be an advantage to him in the discharge of his duties as master.

* This Code consists, not only of rules made under ss 24 and 25 of the Cantonments Act, 1910 (XV of 1910), but also of certain enactments applied in exercise of the powers conferred by s 23 Thus the provisions contained in, for example, s 174 of the Code could scarcely be made the subject of a rule under the Act, and would probably be held to be ultra vires if the rule making power were relied upon to give them validity, but they are taken, mutatis mutandis, from s 188 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911 (III of 1911), and their validity rests on the power of the Governor General in Council to "extend to any cantonment any enactment for the time being in force in any municipality in British India, and declare its extension subject to such restrictions and modifications, if any, as he thinks fit" See ante, p 17 In the case of each section of the Code which appears to be, in whole or in part, an "applied enactment", a reference to the original has been added on the margin

† In addition to these definitions the definitions in s 2 of the Cantonments Act, 1910 (XV of 1910), apply and should be borne in mind—see s. 20 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (X of 8971). Further, the provisions of the latter Act are applicable.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR FEBRUARY 1912.

I. Character of the season.—During the month under report rain fell in all the districts of the Province. The fall was below the average in all the districts of Bihar and Bengal Proper except Midnapore, Howrah and the 24-Parganas. In Orissa and Chota Nagpur it was in excess of the normal except in Hazaribagh and Manbhum, where the fall was slightly below the normal. The usual rainfall statement showing the rainfall in each district is appended.

II. Progress of agricultural operations.—Pressing of sugarcane continued during the month. Preparation of lands for the next season's crops commenced. Threshing of winter rice continued.

III. State of standing crops.—The standing rabi crops and vegetables were in good condition. The rainfall received in the first half of the month proved beneficial to the standing crops in Howrah, Bhagalpur, Sambalpur and Ranchi, but more rain was required for them in Murshidabad, Patna and Purnea.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn of harvests.—A normal outturn is expected of the wheat and oilseed crops. Prospects of other rabi crops are also good.

V. Damage to standing crops.—Slight damage was done to standing crops by rain and hail in parts of Sambalpur and Hazaribagh. Insects also did some injury to linseed and barley in parts of Patna.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of agricultural stock was on the whole good. Cases of cattle-disease were reported from Bankura, Midnapore, Nadia, Murshidabad, Jessore, Saran, Muzaffarpur, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Angul, Puri, Sambalpur, Hazaribagh, Ranchi and Palamau.

VII. Failure of pasturage and fodder.—Fodder was reported to be insufficient in parts of Burdwan, Murshidabad and Midnapore. The water-supply was reported to be getting scarce in parts of Midnapore.

VIII. Prices of food-grains.—During the second fortnight of the month under review the price of rice rose in thirteen and fell in two districts. It varied from 10 seers a rupee in Burdwan, Hooghly, 24-Parganas and Darjeeling to 15½ seers in Patna.

IX. Condition of agricultural people.—The condition of agricultural people continued satisfactory.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

NEW BUILDING FOR THE PATNA COLLEGIATE SCHOOL

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN asked :—

I. (a) Is the Government aware that the term of the lease of the house which is rented for the accommodation of the Patna Collegiate School at Bankipore expires within a few months?

(b) Is the Government aware that the owner of the house has declined to renew the lease?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it has made any arrangement for the location of the Patna Collegiate School elsewhere after the expiry of the term of the present lease?

(d) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what arrangement has been thought of?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it has already made any provision in the Budget for the construction of a building for the Patna Collegiate School?

(f) If not, will the Government be pleased to state whether this matter has been kept in view in preparing the Educational Budget for the new Province of Bihar?

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied:—

(a) & (b) "Government is aware that the term of the lease of the house, which is rented for the accommodation of the Patna Collegiate School at Bankipore, expires on the 31st July, and that the owner has declined to renew the lease.

(c) & (d) No arrangement has yet been made for the location of the school after the 31st July, but the Inspector of Schools is endeavouring to secure a suitable house for the temporary use of the school.

(e) & (f) No provision has been made in the budget for 1912-13 for the construction of a building for the Patna Collegiate School. The selection of a suitable site has been under consideration, but must be left over for the decision of the Government of the new province of Bihar and Orissa."

PRESIDENT OF THE BENCH OF HONORARY MAGISTRATES AT BARH.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN asked:—

II. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether a Junior Honorary Magistrate has been appointed President of the Bench in the Barh sub-division of the Patna district, in preference to a Senior Honorary Magistrate with second class powers? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reason for such appointment?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether any and if so what, special qualification is necessary for such an appointment?

The Hon'ble MR. STEVENSON-MOORE replied:—

(a) "The present President of the Bench of Honorary Magistrates at Barh was appointed in 1903 and has ever since performed the duties satisfactorily. He was vested with second class powers and the power to sit singly in 1909 It is true that there is another Honorary Magistrate who has exercised similar powers since 1901, but in 1903 it was decided that he was less well qualified for the post of President than the Honorary Magistrate who was then appointed to it and has now held it for more than eight years.

(b) The rule under which Presidents are appointed is as follows:—

'The Chairman of the Bench for the time being shall be the Magistrate of highest powers present at a sitting. Where two or more are of equal powers the Bench may elect its own Chairman, provided always that it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate of the district to appoint the Chairman for each time of sitting, or generally.'"

DECLARATIONS UNDER SECTION 61 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE (ACT V OF 1908.)

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN asked:—

III. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to section 61 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908)?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it has made any declaration, as permitted under the above section, either by general or by special order?

(c) If not, does the Local Government propose to take early steps in that behalf?

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied —

(a) "Government is aware of the provisions of section 61 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Its attention has not been specially drawn to them by any one except the Hon'ble Member.

(b) No declaration has been made by Government under the section.

(c) The subject will be noted for the consideration of the new Government, but this Government is unable to commit it to any kind of action."

APPLICATIONS UNDER SECTION 158A OF THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT, 1885 (VIII OF 1885)

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN asked:—

IV. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether any application under section 158A of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII 1885) has been presented by any landlord in this Province?

(b) If so, how many such applications have been filed, in what areas, and with what result?

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied:—

(a) & (b) "Since section 158A of the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed in 1907, eight applications have been received by Government for the extension of the section to different estates. Of these estates, one was in Champaran, one in Monghyr, one in Gaya, one in Shahabad, one in Jessore, one in Patna and two in Muzaffarpur. All the applications were refused by Government, because the necessary conditions were not fulfilled."

APPOINTMENT OF BEHARIS IN THE SECRETARIAT OF THE NEW PROVINCE.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN asked:—

V. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether applications have been invited from Biharis for appointment in the Secretariat of the new Province?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether the Divisional Commissioners of Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa have been authorised to invite such applications and to enrol the names of suitable candidates?

The Hon'ble MR. STEVENSON-MOORE replied:—

"The attention of the Hon'ble Member is invited to the reply given to Questions VII (b) to (e) on the same subject which were put by the Hon'ble Babu Braj Kishor Prasad at the Council meeting of the 26th February last."

APPOINTMENTS IN THE SUBORDINATE JUDICIAL AND EXECUTIVE SERVICES IN BIHAR, CHOTA NAGPUR AND ORISSA.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN asked:—

VI. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of appointments which will be available for Munsifs, Subordinate Judges, Deputy Magistrates and Sub-Deputy Magistrates in Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa, separately?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state how may Biharis and Uriyas are serving in Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa, and how many in other parts of Bengal?

The Hon'ble MR. STEVENSON-MOORE replied:—

(a) & (b) "The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply to be given to Question No. VIII (a) to (g) to be asked by the Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad."

FORMATION OF NEW CADRES FOR THE NEW PRESIDENCY OF BENGAL

The Hon'ble SIR GOLAM HOSSAIN CASSIM ARIFF, on behalf of the Hon'ble DR. ABDULLAH-AL-MAMUN SUHRAWARDY asked:—

VII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what principles are being followed in determining the position of individual officers of—

(i) the Indian Civil Service,
(ii) the Provincial Executive Service, and
(iii) the Subordinate Civil Service, respectively, in the cadres which are to be formed for the Presidency of Bengal?

(b) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the fact that in recent years promotion has been more rapid in Eastern Bengal and Assam than in this Province, with the result that a large number of officers serving in Eastern Bengal have attained to higher grades than their seniors in service in this Province?

(c) Is the Government aware that if, in the new Presidency cadre, the officers in Eastern Bengal referred to in question (b) are allowed to retain their present grade, it will greatly retard the promotion of many officers in this Province who are senior to them in service, and who, in some cases, will have little chance of promotion in future?

The Hon'ble MR. STEVENSON-MOORE replied:—

"The difficulties to which the Hon'ble Member has drawn attention have been experienced in arranging the division of the cadres. Officers of the Indian Civil Service will be placed according to their relative seniority before the 1905 partition or, if appointed subsequently, according to the India Office list. With regard to the Provincial Civil Service and the Subordinate Executive Service, no officer will loose grade promotion already given, but within their own grades officers appointed prior to the 1905 partition will be placed in the same relative seniority as before. This principle will, however, admit of exceptions due to success or failure at the departmental examinations, to special promotion, etc. The position to be taken on promotion by officers thus placed in grades lower than their juniors will be a matter for decision as each individual case arises."

APPOINTMENT OF BEHARIS IN THE VARIOUS SERVICES IN THE NEW PROVINCE.

The Hon'ble Mr. SAIYID WASI AHMAD asked.—

VIII. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the following passage in the despatch of the Government of India, dated the 25th August, 1911, and published in the Gazette of India Extraordinary, dated the 13th December, 1911?:—

"The cry of Bihar for the Biharis has frequently been raised in connection with the conferment of appointments, an excessive number of offices in Bihar having been held by the Bengalis."

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether it intends to allot to Biharis as many posts as are practicable in the various services in the new Province?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of gazetted appointments held by Bihari and Uriya officers in the various services under the present Government of Bengal?

(d) What will be the total number of such appointments in the various grades required for the new Province of Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state how many of the appointments, ordinarily reserved for members of the Civil Service and open to members of the Provincial Service, will be allotted to Bihar?

(f) It appears from the Civil List that 217 Deputy Collectors are serving in the five Divisions which will form the new Province of Bihar. In other words about two-thirds of the total number of Deputy Collectors, serving at present in the Province of Bengal, are employed in Bihar Will the Government be pleased to state whether it intends to observe at least the same proportion in allotting posts of different grades to Bihar?

(g) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it intends to move the High Court to observe the same principle with regard to the Judicial Service?

The Hon'ble MR. STEVENSON-MOORE replied .—

(a) "The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) Practically all the Biharis and Uriyas already in service have been allotted to the new province. The selection of any additional officers who may be required to fill vacancies is not within the competence of this Government.

(c) A statement which gives the information required for the Executive and Judicial branches of the Provincial Civil Service is laid upon the table. If the Hon'ble Member so desires, a supplementary statement for the Gazetted officers of other Departments will be furnished.

(d) The total number of officers in the various grades of the Executive Branch of the Provincial Service in Bihar and Orissa will be approximately as follows:—

First grade	4
Second ,,	5
Third ,,	12
Fourth ,,	36
Fifth ,,	53
Sixth ,,	54
Seventh ,,	59

Similar information for the Judicial Branch is not yet available.

(e) No final decision has yet been arrived at with regard to the allotment of appointments reserved for members of the Civil Service but open to members of the Provincial Service.

(f) & (g). Government follows the principle of making the allotment of Provincial Service officers to the two new provinces with due regard to the number of posts actually to be filled in each"

STEEPING OF JUTE IN THE RIVERS SITUATED WITHIN THE LIMITS OF THANA JHIKARGACHA IN THE DISTRICT OF JESSORE

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR asked:—

IX. Will the Government be pleased to state what action has been taken on the representation submitted on the 23rd September 1911, by Babu Jogendra Nath Ghose of Ballah, in which that gentleman protested against the steeping of jute in the rivers situated within the limits of thana Jhikargacha in the district of Jessore?

The Hon'ble MR. STEPHENSON replied :—

"The petition was sent to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, as the matter is primarily one for the consideration of the local officers, and they should be applied to before such a matter is referred to Government"

APPOINTMENT OF A JUNIOR OFFICER AS ADDITIONAL INSPECTOR OF SCHOOLS IN THE PRESIDENCY DIVISION

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR asked :—

X. (a) Is the Government aware of the circumstances which have led to the temporary appointment of a comparatively junior officer to the post of Additional Inspector of Schools in the Presidency Division?

(b) If not will the Government be pleased to inquire into the matter and consider the claims of the officers superseded?

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied:—

(a) "It is presumed that the Hon'ble Member is referring to the case of Babu Sripati Mukherji, who has recently been appointed officiating Additional Inspector of Schools in the Presidency Division. Government is aware of the circumstances which led to that appointment.

(b) Three officers were superseded in the appointment, of whom two had already been passed over for ordinary grade promotion on account of unsatisfactory work, while the third was on his third extension of service and was not considered suitable for the post. Government does not propose to take any further action in the matter."

ANTICIPATED DIVISION OF THE CADRE OF THE PROVINCIAL JUDICIAL SERVICE

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU asked :—

XI. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the article which appeared in the editorial columns of the Bengalee of the 5th March, 1912, regarding the anticipated division of the cadre of the Provincial Judicial Service?

(b) Is the Government aware that, if that division follows the lines of the existing cadre, the proportion of Subordinate Judges to Munsiffs in the new Province of Bihar will apparently be 1: 3·4, while in Bengal it will be 1: 5·8?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what steps are being taken to equalise the prospects of Munsiffs in Bengal with those in Bihar in the matter of their eventual appointment to the post of Subordinate Judge?

The Hon'ble MR. CHAPMAN replied:—

(a) "The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) & (c) The Government is in correspondence with the High Court regarding the formation of separate cadres for Bengal and Bihar. The points referred to by the Hon'ble Member have received and will continue to receive careful consideration."

THE ORISSA TENANCY BILL, 1912.

3. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant in the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore in the Orissa Division be taken into consideration.

He said:—

"I do not propose to weary the Council or to waste its time by going over the Bill once more, or by explaining the amendments that have been made in the original Bill by the Select Committee. These have been set forth clearly in the Report and will come under discussion when the amendments in Annexure A are taken up. In view of the proceedings at our last meeting when a motion to the effect that the Bill and the Report of the Select Committee thereon be not considered in this Council was lost by an overwhelming majority, I take it that the present motion is purely formal and will be passed as a matter of course."

The motion was put and agreed to.

4. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson also moved that the clauses of the Bill be considered in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

He said:—

"This also is a formal motion which has been accepted in anticipation by the Hon'ble Members who have moved amendments to the various clauses of the Bill. I will not detain the Council, except to make a few general remarks regarding the amendments that have been filed. They are 268 in all. Hon'ble Members will not, I hope, be appalled by their number. Many of them are duplications, many are formal and consequential, and many, I hope, will be withdrawn, when it is explained that they are based on misapprehensions. Nearly one hundred have been put in by Hon'ble Members from Bihar, and it is difficult to understand what is the cause of the lively interest that has been taken in the Bill by them. All the debatable ground of the Bill has been covered by the amendments filed by the Orissa members, and, if I may be allowed to use a homely phrase, the Orissa members are old enough to take care of themselves and do not require the helping hand of their Bihar brethren. Where the Bihar amendments do not cover the same ground as the Orissa amendments, they betray an imperfect acquaintance with the local conditions of Orissa, which must be almost embarassing to those whom they are professedly designed to help. If the Bihar amendments be deducted, and also those amendments which are either identical or consequential, the number which calls for serious consideration will be found to narrow down to about 100 and to centre round the five or six points which I mentioned at our last meeting as the principal subjects of the notes of dissent filed by members of the Select Committee. These are—(1) the registration of transfers of tenures and occupancy holdings, (2) the provisions regarding proprietors' private lands, (3) the treatment of produce rents, (4) the assessment of reclaimed lands, (5) the protection of communal lands, and (6) the maintenance or periodical revision of records The first of these alone has more than 60 amendments attached to it, and, I am glad to say, that with regard to it we have found a solution which is considered satisfactory by the members chiefly concerned, and if accepted by the Council, will obviate a lot of tedious discussion.

"With this preliminary explanation, which I hope will be received with relief by the members, I will ask the Council to accept the present motion and pass on to a consideration of the amendments in detail."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 3.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the following be substituted for clause 3 (2), namely—

> "Bajiafti lands mean lands, the title to hold which on special terms of revenue assessment having been declared invalid by the Cuttack Land Regulation of 1805, the Bengal Land-revenue Assessment (Resumed land) Regulation, 1819, of the Bengal Revenue Free Lands Regulation, 1825; the said lands were assessed in the course of a settlement of land-revenue at a jama fixed for the term of that settlement.

> "Bajiaftidar means a holder of bajiafti land, who was recorded in the record-of-rights published under Chapter X of Act VIII of 1885 between the years 1891 and 1900, or between the year 1906 and the commencement of this Act, as a bajiafti tenure-holder or bajiafti raiyat according as he cultivated the lands through tenants or cultivated them himself."

He said.—

"Sir, before I proceed to refer to the amendment, I shall, with Your Honour's permission, just speak two or three sentences with regard to the remarks which fell from the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. He says that the Bihar members are taking a lively interest in the provisions of the Bill, but the duty of fighting or being slain by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill devolves on two members who can take care of themselves. I cannot say that both of them are old enough to take care of themselves. With regard to these amendments, Sir, we are not fighting for anything which Government does not like to give and the people like to have. We are agreed as to what should be given. The only point of difference between us is how it should be given, and the form in which it should be given. I contend that the form in which it is proposed to be given in the Bill will not pass the right actually. It will remain a dubious point to be decided afterwards by the Courts, and Courts, Sir, are after all Courts of Law, and nobody can possibly predict what the decision of a Court will be on a particular point of law. Therefore my contention in this Council is that the form in which it is proposed to give should be much as would remove it beyond all doubt. Now, it is admitted that the bajiaftidars were people who held lands revenue free, they claimed to hold it revenue free at the first settlement of Orissa, where their title to hold revenue free was questioned and judged, and afterwards it was found that they were not entitled to hold it revenue free or hold them on a particular percentage of revenue, and then they were assessed. Now, this should be borne in mind, Sir, that what was assessed on them was the revenue, i.e., there was a contract between the Government and those people, and they had a proprietary right in the land. I should not have fought for these people if these people numbered only a few hundred people. These people hold lands which is equal to one-sixth of the total cultivated areas and they pay 7 or 8 lakhs of revenue. They form an important class. Well, what was done during the last revenue settlement was, that their status was altered under the Bengal Tenancy Act.* The Bengal Tenancy Act,* Sir, has always been responsible for the Bengal tendency of all these laws. The result is that they were made to fit in with the definitions in the Bengal Tenancy Act.* It is something like putting a round man into a square hole. I do not know whether anybody has tried the experiment.

"Now, what was done, made the consequences disastrous to these people. Their rights suffered and Government saw it, and this is very graphically described in Mr. Maddox's letter; and I reiterate the sentiment that I gave expression to the other day that I do admire and appreciate, not for myself but on behalf of these thousands of people, Mr. Maddox's statement that a mistake was made, rights have been injured, and his anxiety to do justice to these people. There is no difference between us

there. I say I admire this spirit in Mr. Maddox, and I hope that he may live long to associate this consciousness of human infirmity with a keen sense of justice in still higher offices than the one that he now fills. But then the question is, what is now being done. The bajiaftidar is made in some cases a raiyat and in some cases a 'tenant' and is recorded under the Bengal Tenancy Act.* Mr. Maddox in his letter dated the 6th April, 1909, says:—

'The bajiaftidars complain that they are by origin proprietors and not tenants Historically this is true In the settlement of 1837, and again in the settlement of 1890 and 1900, although Government fixed their rents for the terms of each settlement, they were ordered to pay for their lands (where the area was less than 75 acres), though the proprietor or proprietary or sub-proprietary tenure-holder, to Government, and these payments have been so made without objection for the last 70 years It must, however, be remembered that, originally, under clause 22, Regulation XII of 1805, the revenue, not the rent assessable on these tenures, was declared to belong to Government The bajiaftidars are not, therefore, by origin at any rate, tenants within the meaning of section 3 (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, because the person (proprietor or proprietary or sub-proprietary tenure-holder) under whom they now hold does not 'own' the bajiafti lands This is also very clearly shown by the fact that where the resumed grant exceeded 75 acres, a separate estate was created in 1837 and the holders paid revenue direct to Government Moreover, in the 1837 settlement, the zamindar retained only collection expenses and handed on the whole balance (without deduction for malikhana or proprietary allowance) to Government, and although in the settlement of 1890-1900 the zamindar was allowed to retain the same percentage of the bajiafti assets as he retained of the raiyats' assets, he was permitted to do so, only because the bajiaftidars had in the past paid pepper-corn rents, and because it was thought that without such a concession the rents enhanced at that settlement could not possibly be collected. On the other hand, they (except the holders of 75 acres and more) have, as already stated, made payments for their lands to zamindars for 70 years, and their lands have been included within the areas of the estates of zamindars for the whole of that period Possibly, therefore, by the custom of dealing therewith, their interests have now become tenancies. Nevertheless, it seems to me that something should be done in order to preserve to them their rights in their property . . '

"Then, further on, it says under the settlement of 1890 and 1900, some of them have been recorded as tenure-holders in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act.* The effect of this has been to reduce them from the position of tenure holders to raiyats pure and simple, more especially as estates have been distributed exactly as those of other tenants They have thus suffered material injury in the following way Zamindars are now treating them as ordinary tenants not permitting their transfer of right on salami and so on. It is admitted, Sir, that there is anxiety on the part of Government to compensate, to restore them to their former position. Now the Bill puts it in this form

'Bajiaftidar" means a person holding lands the title to hold which upon special terms was declared invalid by the Cuttack Land-revenue Regulation, 1805, the Bengal Land-revenue Assessment (Resumed Lands) Regulation, 1819, or the Bengal Revenue-free Lands Regulation, 1825, and which has been assessed, in the course of a settelement of land-revenue, at a rent fixed for the term of that settlement, and includes also the successors in interest of such a person'

"Now it will be seen that the word rent is used? That means he holds the position of a tenant, and consequently that he stood immediately under Government and the revenue has been assessed, and Mr. Maddox's letter says 'loss of property.' What can a tenant have? Tenants have no other right in land except the right of occupancy. Then again we find, of course there has been an anomaly in that the same class of people in some instances have been called tenure-holders and in other cases raiyats. Then an attempt is made in clause 6: I will draw Your Honour's attention to that hereafter—which runs thus—

(i) every bajiaftidar who is recorded, in any record-of-rights finally published under Chapter XI or under any other law for the time being in force, or in any Land Records published and finally framed under Chapter XII, as a tenure-holder, and his successors in interest, shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder for all the purposes of this Act,

(ii) every bajiaftidar who is recorded in any such record-of-rights or Land Records as a raiyat, and his successors in interest, shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder for the purposes of sections 13A to 13C and 91, and a raiyat for the purposes of all other sections of this Act, and

* i. e. Act VIII of 1885.

(iii) every sub-proprietor shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder for the purposes of sections 13A to 13C, 91, 92, and Chapter XVII, and to be a permanent tenure-holder for the purposes of section 67

"Now, the same man assumes a dual capacity. He becomes for certain purposes a tenure holder, and for certain other purposes a raiyat. For transfers what right has a raiyat? The raiyat has the right of occupancy to transfer. Well, he transfers it in a deed where he calls himself a tenure-holder. Now when a right of occupancy comes into the hands of a tenure-holder, it disappears by the doctrine of merger. What becomes of this doctrine of merger then? A man occupying a higher status sells a right to a man under him. the result is he cannot do anything and he sells nothing. We cannot do away with the doctrine of merger, unless we say we will disregard all established principles of law and introduce this new principle here. What becomes once the doctrine of merger is introduced into the Orissa Tenancy Act? What becomes of the position of the zamindar when lands get into his hands with a right of occupancy? Therefore the only way to do it—the difficulty arose out of an attempt to squeeze them as it were into the definitions of the Bengal Tenancy Act.* These definitions were never meant for this class of people: they are a separate class—I say treat them separately, and the treatment might be such, the definition should be such as to show their origin.

"I have been given to understand that though he is recorded as a raiyat, there is some entry there to show that he is not an ordinary raiyat but a bajiafti raiyat; consequently they form a separate class of raiyat by themselves and a separate class of tenure-holders by themselves, and they ought to be left as such. If we do not do that,—though it may be the intention of Government to compensate them for the wrong that has been done to them,—the intention will not be carried out in this way, because if the definition is one in which their origin is lost, the Law Courts will not go to inquire into what was the intention. This letter from Mr Maddox, whatever might be its value here, will have no value in a Court of Law, because a Court of Law will never construe an enactment in the light of the intention of the Legislature or the intention of Government. The intention should be inferred from the wording of the Act. I do not mean to say that I arrogate to myself such knowledge of law as to say that my amendment is perfect. I am quite willing to be convinced that a slight alteration here and there is necessary, or let the whole thing be done away with and let another amendment be made. But all that I say is that it should be left beyond doubt that the definition should be such as will show the origin to these people, that they were not raiyats, that they were actually men on whom Government revenue had been assessed. And if they pay their revenue to the zamindar, it is because they hold a small quantity of land for their convenience. This, of course, will require consequential amendments throughout the Act, and this has been suggested. And then with regard to clause 6, to which I drew the attention of the Hon'ble Members, that every bajiaftidar who is recorded in any record-of-rights finally published under Chapter XI—Chapter XI of course is a part of this Act—up to this day there has been no record, when this Act comes into force there will be a record. And then it says 'under any other law for the time being in force.' What that means I do not understand; whether it means any other law, subsequent to this date or prior to this date, hitherto in force. I do not understand what is meant by any other law for the time being. It may mean any law when they were first recorded. The record-of-rights is nowhere defined. Record-of-rights can be any paper which records the rights of the party. Now record-of-rights will mean a settlement of records of the early British administration. In Orissa they would show the names of people whose lands have been assessed. Therefore it cannot be said that this expression can refer to them. All that I contend, Sir, is that this should be done. What is done the definition does not cover, and then we are giving him a right as a raiyat which he cannot sell. Fancy, Sir, in the same deed he says I want to sell my raiyatwari right, but I am selling it as a tenure-holder, and as soon as these two coalesce, the things evaporate, and a long time after what may be the condition of these men. On these grounds I do sincerely hope that there will be a sincere and serious attempt to see that the intention of Government is carried out with some attention to what the decision of the Law Courts might be."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"This is one of a series of amendments on the subject of bajiaftidars which have been moved by the Hon'ble Mr Das. The others are numbers 11, 18, 128, 152, 156, 222, 253, 257 to 261. I oppose them, partly because they are entirely unnecessary, and partly because they are not likely to be advantageous to bajiaftidars but rather the reverse. This particular amendment refers to the definition of bajiaftidar. The first portion of the amendment makes no real difference in the definition of bajiaftidar. The second portion is based on a misapprehension regarding the nature of the distinction which was drawn at the last Revenue Settlement between a bajiaftidar tenure-holder and a bajiaftidar raiyat, and here I may remark that every bajiaftidar, whether tenure-holder or raiyat, has been clearly recorded in the settlement records as a bajiaftidar. The classification as tenure-holder or raiyat is an additional description; the word bajiaftidar is in no case left out. There is nothing in the record which can cloud or obscure the name or the origin of the right. The distinction drawn between bajiaftidar tenure-holder and bajiaftidar raiyat was based upon sub-section (5) of section 5 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The question was not whether the bajiaftidar cultivated his land through tenants or cultivated it himself. The question was whether the tenancy was a large tenancy or a petty one. So far as my knowledge goes, the great majority of bajiaftidars, if not all of them, are members of the higher castes who cultivate their lands through under-tenants. They do not cultivate with their own hands. According to the figures given at page 309 of Mr Maddox's Settlement Report, Volume I, there are in Orissa 233,200 bajiafti holdings with an area of 296,600 acres. The average is not much over one acre. It is obvious from these figures that the great majority of bajiafti tenancies are very petty. If all had been classed as tenures—that is as bajiafti tenures—in the last Revenue Settlement, occupancy-rights would have accrued in all cases to the under-tenants, who would have been raiyats holding under tenure-holders. The effect of classing the smaller bajiaftidars as bajiafti raiyats was to relegate their under-tenants to the position of under-raiyats and to prevent those under-raiyats from acquiring occupancy-rights. This was done in the interests of the petty bajiaftidars.

"Now, some of the local Associations in their criticisms of the Bill have asked that all bajiaftidars be classed alike as tenure-holders. We have not accepted this suggestion, because its effect would be to deprive the poorer bajiaftidars who have been recorded as bajiafti raiyats, of the protection which they now enjoy against the accrual of occupancy-rights. As the Bill now stands, we have secured for these bajiafti raiyats all the privileges of transfer and status which attach to bajiafti tenures. This is arranged by the provisions of sub-clause (2) of clause 6, to which the Hon'ble Member objects in amendment No. 18. We put the bajiafti raiyat, so far as transfer and all other rights are concerned, exactly in the same position as bajiafti tenure-holders. At the same time, we leave him that protection which he enjoys through being recorded as a raiyat instead of being recorded as a tenure-holder. At the present day in Bengal most people who have tenancy interests in land are endeavouring to be recorded as raiyats and not as tenure-holders, their object being to debar the people under them from securing occupancy-rights. We have conceded this to the petty bajiaftidars of Orissa by calling them bajiafti raiyats. So long as the word bajiaftidar is attached to their names, they cannot suffer injury as regards their peculiar origin and status. At the same time, we have taken care by means of the provisions of clause 50 that the bajiaftidar raiyat shall not be handicapped by the operation of the ordinary provisions of the law regarding rent recoverable from under-raiyats. I explained the position to the Orissa members of the Select Committee at a time when the Hon'ble Mr. Das was unfortunately absent, and they were all agreed that no change in the Bill was necessary or desirable.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Das has argued that because the bajiaftidars by origin had something of the nature of proprietary rights attached to their interests, we should regard them as proprietors or semi-proprietors, and not record them as tenure-holders or raiyats. It seems to me to be too late in the day to make a change of this sort, or to embody it in the Bill. We have made perfectly plain by our definition what was the origin of all bajiaftidar tenants, namely, persons holding lands on revenue-free grants which were found to be invalid. The Courts will have that definition before them, whenever any question of their rights comes up. At the same time we have provided that whenever they wish, they may transfer their tenures without getting the consent of their zamindars, or other superior landlords. We have taken care, in fact, in the Bill to preserve all their rights that are of a real or practical nature. The Hon'ble Mr. Das' definition merely differs from ours in saying that they were assessed to jama, which shall be deemed to be rent, whereas we say that they were assessed to rent. The bajiaftidars have been treated as tenants for the last 50 years; they have been sued for rent under Act X of 1859, and they have been sold up under the Bengal Rent Recovery Act of 1865. Why should we make this change now on grounds which are purely sentimental? It seems to me it will only create contention if we accept the Hon'ble Member's proposal. The Bill, as it stands, makes the position perfectly clear, and I therefore ask him to withdraw his amendment. If he does not see his way to withdraw it, I would advise that it be rejected by the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Sir, as regards the remarks of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that for a long time these people have paid rents to the zamindar, that was simply because there was an arrangement between the Government and the zamindar of the estate within the ambit of which those lands lay. That was in consequence of an arrangement: the zamindar there stood in the position of a farmer: he collected the rent, and they called it rent in order to give facilities for the collection. But of course it is too late in the day, for we recognise that these people have lost rights and then all that my amendment would introduce is that wherever in the Bill the word 'raiyat' occurs, I have added 'bajiafti raiyat', whereas in the Bill the word 'raiyat' only occurs. It may be that they have recorded it elsewhere, and that in the record-of-rights the word bajiafti is entered."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"We have used the word bajiafti everywhere in the Bill where bajiafti tenancies are referred to."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Only a raiyat is mentioned in some instances. I must say that it refers to bajiafti. All that my amendment introduces is that wherever you find tenure-holder say bajiafti tenure-holder and wherever you find raiyat say bajiafti raiyat.

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"When the word bajiaftidar is used alone, it covers both bajiafti tenure-holders and bajiafti raiyats."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said—

"Then the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has not taken any notice of the doctrine of merger. I can very well understand why, because it is supposed we can always look down with contempt on what the lawyers think about these things. I remember that this is not the first time in my experience.

I remember having raised a legal objection in this Council long ago when the Hon'ble Member in charge of a Bill gave me a sharp rebuke, and I remember the Advocate-General coming to my rescue, saying that it was a pure point of law and that it ought to be withdrawn. Fortunately, or unfortunately—fortunately for the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, but unfortunately for me—we have not got even the Standing Counsel sitting here. Of course, all that I can say is, do not let these things be given in a dubious form, and if the intention of Government is to give a thing right, and right whatever it is let it not be given in a form in which there is doubt as to how that clause would be construed by the Courts. If I am wrong, I do not want to arrogate to myself that knowledge of law as to say that my amendment is perfect. Let it be settled by somebody—whether the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill or some one else. He has never informed me that he has consulted some lawyers, the Advocate-General or Standing Counsel, or any of these men have been consulted—and the Bill should still stand as it is pointing out to them the difficulties. As it is, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill did not take any notice of the doctrine of merger.

The result of the division was, ayes 12, noes 30, and the motion was therefore lost

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"Before the Hon'ble Mr. Das proceeds to move his amendments, Nos. 2 to 4, I wish to explain to him that I am willing to accept his amendment No. 4 'except the power of hearing appeals' in a slightly modified form which comes to practically the same thing—I mean that the words 'other than functions covered by section 213' be added at the end of the sub-clause. This is the form which appears to be best from a drafting point of view."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said :—

"If the Hon'ble Member accepts my amendment No. 4 I am ready to withdraw this amendment."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I don't know whether you have understood it. The form in which Mr. McPherson is willing to accept No. 4 is not as you put it 'except the power of hearing appeals,' but with the words 'other than functions covered by section 213,' added after the word 'provision' at the end of clause 3 (4) (b). I believe it is practically the same thing."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said :—

"I accept it, Sir."

The following motions were then, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

2. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that clause 3 (4) (b) be omitted.

3. If motion No. 2 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "experienced" be inserted after the word "any" in line 1 of clause 3 (4) (b).

4. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the words ' except the power of hearing appeals" be added after the word "provision" at the end of clause 3 (4) b).

The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson suggested that it be put in the amended form, namely, that the words "other than functions covered by section 213" be added after the word "provision."

The motion was then put in the amended form and agreed to.

5. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that clause 3 (15) be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"I wish to say that I am willing to accept this amendment for reasons which I will explain. The clause contains a definition of proprietor's private lands. I am willing to accept the amendment because the ground covered by the definition is fully covered by Chapters VII and XIII, and the definition therefore seems to be surplusage. If this motion be accepted by the Council, then amendments 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 will automatically disappear. The ground of discussion raised by these amendments is covered by the amendments which have been proposed later to Chapters VII and XII and will be discussed later."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said :—

"I am thankful to the Hon'ble Member in charge."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

6 If motion No. 5 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the following be substituted for clause 3 (15), namely :—

"(15) 'Proprietor's private land' means,

(i) in temporarily settled areas, lands which were recorded as nij jote in the record-of-rights published between the years 1891 and 1900, or between the year 1906 and the commencement of this Act, and lands which were recorded as nij-chas between the years 1891 and 1900 and again between the year 1906 and the commencement of this Act, and which are held by proprietors and sub-proprietors, other than those referred to in sub-clause (i) of clause (22) of this section, or by tenants holding under such proprietors or sub-proprietors under leases for a term of years or under leases from year to year, and

(ii) in permanently-settled areas, lands which are known in such areas as nij jote, khamar, khudkast, nij-chas and which are held as nij jote by custom"

7 The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the word "nij-chas" be inserted after the word "nij jote" in line 2 of clause 3 (15)

8. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "nij-chas" be inserted after the word "nij-jote" in line 2 of clause 3 (15).

9. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "other than those referred to in sub clause (i) of clause (22)" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 3 (15) be omitted.

10. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "under leases for a term of years or under leases from year to year" in lines 5 and 6 of clause 3 (15) be omitted.

11. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the following be added as an Explanation to clause 3 (17), namely :—

"Explanation.—The revenue payable for bajiafti land to the proprietor of an estate, settled on special terms by the Government with such proprietor, shall be deemed to be rent."

Clause 5.

12. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad moved that the words "or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners," in lines 3 and 4 of clause 5 (2) be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, before I move my amendment for the consideration of the Members of Council I should like to make one observation in connection with a remark that fell from the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill He has told the Council just now that it struck him as rather unusual to see the Bihar Members taking such a keen interest in connection with this Bill. I must say that I was rather surprised to hear a remark of this nature from a Legislator of the object that has lead, at least some of the Beharis to take interest in this Bill, is primarily because I consider it the duty of every Member of this Council to take interest in any measure that may be brought before this Council, irrespective of the question whether it touches one part of the Province or the other. It would indeed have been a remarkable feature in connection with the discussion of this Bill if only two of the Hon'ble Members who came from Orissa had taken part in the discussion and all the others merely formed the audiance.

"The second reason why we particularly feel for this Bill is that it appears to me that after the separation of this Province and the creation of the new Province of Bihar, we shell be practically having two Acts in force in one and the same Province. In the Province of Bihar we shall have the Bengal Tenancy Act*. and I don't know how that will sound—the Bengal Tenancy Act* in Bihar as also the Orissa Tenancy Act, and the chances are that, in about a year or two's time, we shall have an Act, or rather a Bill introduced in the Bihar Council, very much similar to the Orissa Tenancy Bill; and probably the Bengal Tenancy Act* will not be in existence in Bihar. That is also a reason why we have thought it fit to take interest in this Bill.

"Now, my amendment is that the words 'or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners' be omitted in lines 3 and 4 of clause 5 (2). I am aware, Sir, that in the definition of 'Raiyat' in the Bengal Tenancy Act,* these words actually occur, but the question of hired servants and partners have been to my knowledge a cause of great anxiety to the petty zamindars in Bihar. Further it will appear from the definition of tenure-holder, and also the explanation in the Bengal Tenancy Act* that the Government has taken care to call a person holding a certain quantity of land not a raiyat but a tenure holder, for instance, we find that in the Bengal Tenancy Act* a person holding more than one hundred bighas of land will be presumed to be a tenure-holder and not a raiyat; also in the present Bill we find that, later on in sub-clause (5), it has been laid down 'where the area held by a tenant exceeds thirty-three acres, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shown.' So that there is already an attempt, both in the Bengal Tenancy Act* and also in the present Bill, to restrict the area of land actually held by a raiyat. We further find that under the Cess Act a tenant, paying more than Rs. 100 as rent, is presumed for the purpose of the Cess Act to be a tenure-holder and not a cultivating raiyat. There also the limitation has been applied.

"My intention in moving this amendment to do away with the hired labour is, that a raiyat, literally speaking, is really one who actually cultivates the land: that is to say, no raiyat should get his land cultivated either by a hired servant or by partners, because you will be simply making a raiyat, who may possess a lot of servants and who may also have a few partners, to unnecessarily get more land for the purpose of cultivation than he can actually cultivate himself. I certainly agree with the idea of putting the words that 'the members of his family' in the definition of 'raiyat.' It is with this object, Sir, that I think a raiyat should not get more land than he can himself cultivate or get it cultivated by the members of his family. A case has been put to me this morning by a friend of mine who asked me to reconsider this amendment, and if possible to withdraw it, viz., the case of a widow—a purdanashin widow—who has got no one to look after her land. What will be the fate of such a raiyat? A sufficient reply to that would be that we have got in this very Bill a provision for creating sub-tenants or under-tenants, so that the reply to the argument that if a purdanashin woman happens to possess certain land, and if she cannot cultivate herself and she may not have any other male member of the family, is that she can certainly let it out to others for the purpose of cultivation and create a sub-tenancy.

"I therefore, submit, Sir, that the Hon'ble Members of this Council will see the reason which has lead me to move this amendment. My only ground, as I have already said, is that a raiyat should only be one who can cultivate the land himself and not by hired servants or partners."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said.—

"Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment. My reason being that my friend seems to be labouring under a misapprehension about the definition of tenure-holder and a raiyat. By taking out the words 'or by hired servants or by the aid of partners' I think you will have to cut out a number of raiyats to a nullity, because almost in 95 per cent of the cases these raiyats have to employ at least ploughmen and they are also hired servants. Without ploughmen these lands cannot be cultivated. Then again respectable men, as for instance myself or my hon'ble friend the mover of this amendment, cannot purchase lands, because as soon as he purchases 'raiyati lands' he will have to employ his servants to cultivate them, and therefore the tenancy right would cease to exist. Therefore, I think it would be rather unsafe to cut out these words. In cases of purdanashin ladies without any relations, or in cases of widows or in cases of respectable people who have to employ hired servants, it will be impossible for them to cultivate the land. Now, if these words are omitted, those persons will have to lose their raiyati rights. Then we have got here in sub-clause (5) the words 'where the area held by a tenant exceeds thirty-three acres, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shown'

"My friend seems to think that even if a raiyat who has got only five bigahs of land but as he is incapable of cultivating it with his own labour and without the aid of servants or partners, his status will be that of a tenure-holder. I think this principle will be altogether unsound. If a man having five bighas of land will be a tenure-holder, what would be the necessity of defining the status of a tenure-holder in sub-section 5 of the clause under consideration? A tenure-holder has got a superior status than a mere cultivator. I therefore oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I am sorry to oppose this amendment, Sir. I am surprised that such an amendment has been brought in. It is a daily experience in Eastern Bengal, and in fact it is the case everywhere, that hired servants have to be engaged by ordinary raiyats, this is all the more necessary at the time of reaping the harvest. It is well known that large number of hired servants from different parts of the province go to Backergunge (the noted granaries of Bengal) and othe places for assisting the cultivators in reaping the crops, and each man is paid not in cash, but a certain portion of the produce. It would not be possible to carry on agricultural operations without hired labour. What would be the fate of infants and widows if they were prevented from engaging hired labour."

The Hon'ble MAULVI KHAN BAHADUR SARFARAZ HUSAIN KHAN said:—

"I am surprised to hear how this amendment has been put in. I need not say much, but those who have got experience in zamindary matters know well that it would be impossible to do without hired labour."

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said:—

"Testimony has come from Bihar as well as from East Bengal that this amendment is not sound. I can also bear some testimony as one representing Orissa in this Council. Now, Sir, it is a very well known fact that bond fide raiyats do employ hired servants, and those hired servants have got a peculiar name. They are called huthias. It is also a well known fact that bonâ fide raiyats cultivate land in aid of partners, and if this amendment is accepted it may benefit the zamindars, but it will be injurious to a large number of raiyats who depend for their livelihood on the produce of their land "

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR said:—

" I do not wish to take up the time of the Council, but I wish to say that this amendment is rather out-of-date. If my friend takes the trouble to study the literature on the subject he will find that in 1859, when Act X of 1859 was passed, this question was discussed threadbare, and in discussing the question whether the raiyat ought to have the right of occupancy or not the question arose as to whether a man, when he is not actually cultivating himself but has to cultivate by means of hired labour or by the members of his family, will be considered as cultivating the land. This was considered in 1859, and I think nothing has taken place since then to change the decision; so I think my friend might possibly think it worth his while to withdraw this motion.

The Hon'ble MR. SAIYID WASI AHMAD said:—

"I beg to withdraw the amendment.

The amendment was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

13 The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad moved that the words " or of grazing cattle on it " in lines 4 and 5 of the Explanation to clause 5 (v) be omitted.

He said: "The reason why I have moved this amendment is that it may lead to very nasty results if the tenants are permitted to hold land for the purposes of grazing cattle on it, and yet be called raiyats. The Explanation runs thus:—' Where a tenant of land has the right to bring it under cultivation, he shall be deemed to have acquired a right to hold it for the purpose of cultivation, notwithstanding that he uses it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it or of grazing cattle on it.'

" Now take a concrete case. Suppose a raiyat has got 5 bighas of land and he instead of cultivating it with a crop that is prevelant in that part simply grows fodder and grass for purposes of grazing cattle, he shall under this definition nevertheless hold all this land as a raiyat and the land will be still considered as cultivating land. I am not familiar with the name that is given in Orissa to land intended for grazing cattle, but in Bihar, such lands are called churuawa land and are usually found in every village. If you allow each tenant to graze cattle on any kind of land he desires, the danger is that the land may become, say after 20 years, almost useless for ordinary cultivation. Therefore I submit, sir, that that portion of the Explanation for the purposes of cattle-grazing be omitted."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said.—

" I rise to oppose this amendment too, because here again it appears that some misapprehension has arisen in the mind of the Hon'ble Member. Here it is said:—' Where a tenant of land has the right to bring it under cultivation, he shall be deemed to have acquired a right to hold it for the purpose of cultivation, notwithstanding that he uses it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it, or of grazing cattle on it.'

" Generally, it happens that these tenants set apart a portion of land for the purposes of making kullian. Even if that portion has been used for purposes of kullian for a number of years, still a person has got the right to bring that land within his cultivation in future. The meaning of this expression to my mind appears to be this, that although he had been using it for purposes of gathering produce or grazing cattle on it, he can use it for the purpose of cultivation, and he will not cease to have his rayati right simply because he failed to cultivate it for a few years or used it for any purpose other than cultivation for a number of years. If you do not give the raiyat this right, you place him in a most disadvantageous position. Therefore, I do not think, sir, that these words should be omitted, and I oppose the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Member, the Mover."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"The Hon'ble Member, after his attack on agricultural partnerships, which includes the great question of Co-operative Credit Societies, has turned his attention to another of the most serious agricultural problems of rural India—the question of grazing grounds. The Hon'ble Member, as in the other case, has his own way of tackling the problem. This is a difficulty everywhere in India, but it is recognized by everybody, except the Hon'ble Member, that the proper way to tackle the question is to do all that is possible to induce the cultivators to keep a reasonable proportion of their lands out of cultivation, and to reserve them for grazing purposes. In some parts of India landholders are given remissions of revenue on their grazing grounds to induce them to keep such lands out of cultivation. The Hon'ble Member, on the other hand, would penalise the reservation of grazing grounds, by destroying the raiyati rights of those who use part of their holdings for grazing. The provision which the Hon'ble Member asks us to amend is that a tenant who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivation may, without losing his status as a raiyat, use it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it or of grazing cattle on it. The provision is meant primarily to apply to little patches of waste land and jungle. The raiyats use the produce for fuel and similar purposes, and they graze their cattle on the land, and it is a very good thing, in the interest of agricultural economy as a whole, that raiyats should be encouraged to keep little bits of land waste within their holdings, instead of bringing the whole under cultivation One of the great difficulties of the cattle question in many parts of this country, is that cultivation has extended to such an extent as to leave insufficient grazing grounds. To a certain extent it is impossible, with the growing competition for land, to put a stop to this process, but we certainly ought to do nothing to accelerate it. The raiyat must have cattle and if there is no land on which he can graze them they must be stall fed but this is an expensive operation and bad for the cattle themselves, as young cattle, like young children, need exercise as well as food. The effect of the Hon'ble Member's amendment would be that, if a prudent husbandman kept a bit of waste for grazing his cattle or allowed a part of his land to lie fallow for a year or two and grazed his cattle on it, he would at once lose his status as a raiyat.

"Practically, therefore, the Hon'ble Member's proposal would compel him to bring the whole of his lands under cultivation every year. Anything more undesirable in the interests of individual raiyats and of the agricultural population generally, could not be imagined.

"I do submit that the first thing to be considered in Tenancy legislation is its effect on the economic condition of the country. As I have shown, the effect of this amendment would be wholly bad, and I must ask the Council to reject it."

The Hon'ble MR. SAIYID WASI AHMAD said:—

"It appears to me that there must be some misunderstanding or misapprehension on the part of my friend. In moving this amendment of mine, I had no desire that no part of the land should be kept apart in a village for purposes of grazing cattle, I have already stated, that in each village there is such a thing as churnawa land in existence and the cattle go there for the purpose of grazing. What I object to is that each raiyat may not be given, under this Act, the power to utilize or use a portion of his land which is meant for cultivation for purposes of grazing cattle, because my fear is that if you use the land for such a purpose for a long time it becomes useless, and if each tenant is allowed to grow anything he likes on land for cultivation, the land will become unfit for cultivation of the crop which is prevalent in that part of the country."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

14. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the word "and" be omitted at the end of clause 5 (4) (a) and inserted at the end of clause 5 (4) (b), and that the following be added as sub-clause (c), namely:—

"(c) the fact that a tenant cannot be a raiyat of one portion and a tenure-holder of another portion of a holding."

15. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din moved that the words "of a holding" be inserted after the word "area" in line 1 of clause 5 (5).

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said:—

"Of course, I believe that the intention of the legislature is that, if one holding consists of more than 33 acres, the owner of the holding will be presumed to be a tenure-holder. A man may have different holdings of different quantities. Now, if he has got 25 acres of land by inheritance, he may afterwards purchase another holding of 25 acres and then again by gift he may get another holding of 22 acres. Now the aggregate of all these holdings will no doubt exceed 33 acres, but each of the holdings will be less than 33 acres. Therefore, the definition of a tenure-holder should not apply to such a man who has got different holdings the aggregate of which comes to more than 33 acres Without the word "of a holding" after the word "area" some misapprehension may arise, and it may be a bone of contention in Civil Courts, and therefore, in order to have an explicit meaning of sub-clause 5 (5), I suggest that the words "of a holding" may be added after the word 'area' so that there may not be any grounds of misapprehension hereafter."

The Hon'ble MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said:—

"I brought this question forward in Select Committee, and I was told that it was quite clear that it meant "of a holding." I specially brought this question, because there had been one or two rulings which rather left this in doubt. I was told by the Hon'ble Member that there was no necessity of adding these words. I think in this statement the Hon'ble Maharaj Kumar Hrishikesh Laha and the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo will bear me out, and I should like to ask the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson to explain that to the Council."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I may say that I do not know yet whether there are many identical motions, but the ruling which I have given before in this Council may be applied now, that is, that if a member has a subsequent identical motion, he must remember that only the member who actually moves the amendment has the right of reply, and therefore whatever he has to say should be said while the amendment first moved is under discussion."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"I do not know what transpired in the Select Committee, as I was unfortunately not present there, but at any rate, if that was the interpretation put upon the clause by the Hon'ble Member in charge, I should say, why not give expression to one's intention. Intentions are like Goldsmith's wishes. 'If wishes were horses, beggars would ride.' Intentions are nothing. A man might intend to do many things, without giving effect in substance to his intentions. So it is much better to have intentions fully expressed. But apart from that, I am opposed to the principle underlying this clause This clause really means that as soon as an actual cultivator attains a prosperous condition, and becomes an owner of so much land, he must be removed from the position and condition of a raiyat. Directly he is presumed to be a tenure-holder, those cultivating under him, will have occupancy rights, consequently his position may be exalted in social status, without having enough to feed his stomach, or clothe his back with. But it is highly desirable on economic grounds that we should not have only raiyats with an average holding of an acre or ·80 of an acre, but it is far more desirable that these men, who begin life as cultivators with a holding of one acre should be given every facility and encouragement to become prosperous cultivators so long as they are cultivators and actually cultivate the soil. Without this class of people it is not at all possible Sir, to have anything in the shape of agricultural improvement We have been given, very kindly by Government, information about manure and other means of cultivation, but then, where is the means to come from? You tie down a raiyat in one acre of land, he will never be in a position to better himself Of course if a man does not cultivate himself, let him be a tenure-holder. Why create a presumption? The Hon'ble Member in charge may say it is only a presumption. Why have difficulties thrown in the way of a man bettering himself? He may have a number of men serving under him. Here we have just seen that he may go into partnership with a man when discussing the amendment on the definition of a raiyat

"The man goes into partnership and then the partner finds a presumption against the cultivator and taking advantage of this, he tries to raise the position of his partner to that of a tenure-holder with a view to get the right of occupancy

"That shows that a certain class of raiyats are being driven to poverty, while those who are thrifty and can manage their own affairs better are attaining a prosperous condition Consequently, it must be necessary on economic grounds that we must leave room for prosperity and growth of a certain class of raiyat and do nothing here which would encroach upon the tendency in that direction. On these grounds, Sir, I support the motion of the Hon'ble Member"

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said —

"I rise, Sir, to oppose this amendment and I do so to a great extent on the general ground that this Council ought to be very chary of sanctioning a departure from the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act* in dealing with this Bill. This is a general ground which we shall have to take in regard to a good many of the amendments before the Council and it may be well therefore if I explain the general views of Government in regard to the matter. We do not claim that the Bengal Tenancy Act* is a complete or perfect law. No human law is, but we do claim that the Bengal Tenancy Act* was passed 27 years ago, that it has stood the test of time remarkably well and that it is the admiration of experts in tenancy law not only in India, but also in other countries Moreover the principles of the Bengal Tenancy Act* were extended to Orissa in 1890 or more than 20 years ago. We do not claim that the Bengal Tenancy Act* in all its details is suited to the conditions of Orissa. This present Bill is a sufficient proof to the contrary; but we do claim that when any one contends that any particular provision of the Bengal Tenancy Act* which has been in force in Orissa for over 20 years is found unsuitable to the conditions of Orissa, the burden of proof lies on him to make out a case. This is the principle which has been consistently adopted in dealing with this Bill. I think my hon'ble friend Mr. Maddox will bear me out when I say that his original draft Bill was subjected to scrutiny on this principle, and I think it is only fair therefore that the same principle should be applied to the amendments brought forward by the non official members

"Now in regard to the particular amendment, the Hon'ble Mover has said that there may be a possible misapprehension on the part of the Civil Courts as to the meaning of this sub clause. Now the answer to that is, I think, that

* i e., Act VIII of 1885.

the section has been in force for the last 27 years, and there is no evidence that there has been any misapprehension. The Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan raised the question in Select Committee, and we told him that so far as we knew there was no ground for reasonable misapprehension in regard to the meaning. I think there is no doubt that the unit for the application of this sub-section is the particular tenure or holding of the raiyat or the tenure-holder whose status is under consideration.

"Now I would just point out the difficulties we shall encounter if we attempt to tinker with this sub-clause. The Hon'ble Mover wishes us to read the sub clause in the following way 'where the area of a holding held by a tenant exceeds 33 acres the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shown.' It is rather a technical point and I must try my best to explain it to the Council The word 'holding' is defined in sub-clause (8) of clause 5 as a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat. It is clear therefore that it would be a contradiction in terms to say that where the area of a holding exceeds 33 acres the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder. If a man has a holding he cannot be a tenure-holder, but must be a raiyat The Hon'ble Member's motion would therefore destroy the fundamental distinction between a tenure and a holding I submit, Sir, that the provisions of the law should be retained and the amendment rejected "

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"May I, Sir, supplement what has been said by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr? I would draw the attention of the Council to one point only When a general principle of law has been embodied in the Bengal Tenancy Act* and we make any modification of language in the corresponding section of the Orissa Tenancy Act, the inference to be drawn is that the alteration was intentional, and we may thus cause confusion by deviations of language. If the words 'of the holding' are introduced in the Orissa Bill the Courts may inquire why they were omitted from the Bengal Tenancy Act* The inference might possibly be that in the Bengal Tenancy Act,* the 'area held by a tenant' included more than the land held in one single tenancy That is the sort of danger to which I wish to draw the attention of the Council. We had better leave it as it is than tinker at the language that is used in the Bengal Tenancy Act* "

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said —

"The language is borrowed verbatim from the Bengal Tenancy Act,* substituting 33 acres in place of 100 bighas. I do not know that any difficulty has been felt in Bengal from that section, and I do not anticipate that any difficulty will be felt for this section as drafted in the Bill, but at the same time, a difference now, if introduced, might lead to a different interpretation of the section as it stands in the Bengal Tenancy Act,* and on that ground, firstly that there has been no difficulty, and that the provision which my friend the Mover wishes to bring, is one which has not been proved to exist in the past and the second ground that it may lead to a different interpretation, I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said.—

"The explanation which I have just heard from the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill has quite satisfied me, that as a matter of fact the intention of the legislator is that this will apply to the area of holding only. Now I do not find any valid reason for not incorporating these words 'of a holding,' after the word 'area' as admittedly that is the meaning of law. No doubt these words have been taken, or rather the whole definition has been taken from the Bengal Tenancy Act* but this is no reason why you should retain the same words in this clause if the sense of the Council is that hereafter there may be some misapprehension and there might be some bone of contention on this ground. Now, I do not understand how the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr pointed out to me that by putting the words 'of a holding' after the word 'area,' there may be difficulty. 'Holding' no doubt has been defined in clause 3 sub-clause (8), and if these words 'of a holding' be added after the word 'area' the meaning of this sub-clause would be very clear The definition of 'holding' would remain unchanged, and the area of the holding will mean the area covered by the holding which forms the subject of a separate tenancy, and if that area exceeds 33 acres, it will be considered to be a tenure. On these grounds, Sir, I beg to submit that the words 'of a holding' should be added after the words 'area'.

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

The result of the division was ayes 9, noes 31, and the motion was therefore lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

16. The Hon'ble Mr. M S. Das to move that the words "of a holding" be inserted after the words "area" in line 1 of clause 5 (5).

17. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the words "in the same estate" be inserted after the word "tenant" in line 1 of clause 5 (5).

He said:—

"The area of 33 acres cannot evidently mean parcels of land situated in different districts under different proprietors in different estates, or even under the same proprietor in different estates in different districts The words 'exceeds thirty-three acres' in this clause presuppose that so long as the holding does not exceed that quantity of land it remains a compact holding in the same estate under the same proprietor, but as soon as it exceeds that quantity it becomes a tenure, and the tenure-holder can assert his right as such if he has 75 bighas in Bengal and 25 bighas in Kujang This, I believe, is not the intention of the Bill, and as the sub-clause, as it stands, is vague, I move that the words 'in the same estate' be added in order to make the meaning clear"

The Hon'ble Mr. KERR said:—

"Sir, I beg to oppose this motion on the same ground as I have already explained in connection with the last amendment that it is undesirable to allow a departure from the provision of the law which has worked in Orissa for nearly a quarter of a century.

"The Hon'ble Member asks us to provide that where the area held by a tenant in the same estate exceeds 33 acres, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shown. Now the estate is the unit responsible for the payment of Government revenue, it is the unit which is recognised for this purpose in the Land Registration Act* and in the Partition Act†; but while it is suitable enough for the object for which it is intended it is unsuitable for any other purpose and particularly for the purposes of tenancy law. Orissa is a country with small proprietors and the sub-division of the estates owing to the operation of the laws in force is a growing evil; but this is not the whole truth. There are also very large estates and the large estates in Orissa are represented in this Council by the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, the Hon'ble the Raja of Kanika and the Hon'ble Mover of this amendment. An estate therefore may comprise a few acres of land in a village, or it may comprise a pargana or killa consisting of hundreds of villages. The term 'estate' has therefore no relevance to any considerations which apply when we come to deal with tenancies. The estate is a unit which concerns

†i.e Bengal Act V of 1897.

the proprietors only in their dealings with the Collector in regard to the payment of land-revenue I do not know whether the Hon'ble Mover of this amendment wishes to increase the number of tenure-holders or to increase the number of raiyats, but it really does not matter. What we have to look at in deciding whether a man is a tenure-holder or a raiyat is whether his individual tenancy consists of more than 33 acres or not. There are not infrequent cases in which tenants hold under more than one estate, that is to say, the rents are paid jointly to the proprietors of more than one estate. These tenancies are known in Bihar as shamilat tenancies, and I can see no reason why this general provision of law should not apply to such tenancies as well as to the ordinary cases of tenancies which lie entirely within the ambit of one estate The point which I am endeavouring to explain to the Council is that for present purposes, that is for the purpose of deciding whether a man is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, the question whether he holds in one estate or not is irrelevant. What we have to deal with is the area of land comprised in the particular tenancy in respect of which it is a question whether the man is a tenure-holder or a raiyat. The proposal of the Hon'ble Member would only complicate this simple issue and it is impossible to say what its precise effect would be. I would, therefore, ask the Council to adhere to the provision of the law which has been in force in Orissa for nearly a quarter of a century and decline to make the alteration proposed by the Hon'ble Mover"

The motion was then put and lost

Clause 6.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn —

18 The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that sub-clauses (i) and (ii) of clause 6 be omitted.

19. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "or as a raiyat" be inserted after the words "tenure-holder" in line 6 of clause 6 (i)

20. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause 6 (ii) be omitted.

Clause 10.

21. The Hon'ble Mr M. S. Das moved that the words "or by contract" in line 2 of clause 10 be omitted.

He said :—

"The clause in which it is sought to make an amendment is one which aims at preventing frequent enhancement and lays down that one enhancement having been made, a second one ought not to be allowed within a certain time—15 years. The clause speaks of enhancement having been made by the Court or by contract. When an enhancement has been made by an order of the Court, it should not be allowed to be revived or a second enhancement made within 15 years, and so also by contract. I have three motions 21, 22 and 24. If Your Honour will kindly allow me, I will take them up together and so deal with them. Pointing out the lines in which in my humble opinion the alteration of the section is necessary, and leaving it to the Hon'ble Member in charge to see whether he would accept the principle, how he would alter it and whether he would accept the proviso in amendment 24, or in some other form."

The PRESIDENT said —

"I do not think that it would be convenient for the Hon'ble Member to discuss the whole of the amendments together, but at the same time there will be no objection perhaps to discuss the principle with reference to this one, and to explain to the Council how he would like this section to be worded."

"All that I mean to say is that in the case of a contract, is, that a man makes a contract and afterwards there is a fresh contract, say for instance, the case of improvements. A man makes a contract that he should pay so much for the tenure of the zamindar, afterwards he enters into a contract with the zamindar that if he will make some irrigation here, or if you will make such and such changes, I will give you Rs. 500 more. In that case, there ought to be a further enhancement allowed I cannot see that that is not altogether an enhancement in the strict legal sense of the term. It is really altogether entering into a fresh contract on fresh new considerations, and that is what it is said to secure by having these alterations on the same ground, or at least if that be not acceptable to the Hon'ble Member in charge the proviso suggested in amendment No. 24, viz.,—

> 'Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to a contract by which a tenure-holder binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been, or is to be, affected in respect of his tenure by, or at the expense of, his landlord'.

"Of course that does not at all clash with the principle which is meant to be secured by the section. It actually contemplates a case outside the purview of the clause as it stands, and we have cases of reclaiming waste land, in which the tenants want to enter into a fresh contract, then, the section as it stands, or if it stood as it were, then there would of course be difficulty in having such a fresh contract. We have often been told that the Bengal Tenancy Act* has stood the test of 27 years. I have often heard this here and elsewhere and therefore it must be shown why it should be altered. We also know that the Bengal Tenancy Act* has stood the test in creating infringements on other people's right and creating a revolution in Orissa during the last revisional settlement, and exciting Mr Maddox's anxiety to remedy evils that had been created by this settlement, and we have been told that the Bengal Tenancy Act* has stood the test of 27 years. That is actually begging the question. We came here to legislate, to have a Code which is particularly suited to the condition of Orissa and we say that the Bengal Tenancy Act* should be adored, worshipped and strictly followed because it has been successful in Bengal, but the question we start with is that we know that the Bengal Tenancy Act* will not do. as it has done enough mischief in Orissa Let us have another Act and therefore now it comes to this, that we find reclaim waste lands. It actually shows that there are conditions in Orissa to which the Bengal Tenancy Act* ought not to apply, and in these circumstances I hope the Hon'ble Member in charge will see his way to accept it either as a proviso or in any form so as to give effect to the proposition as I have stated it, so as to provide for the further contract of a different nature altogether."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"I should like to draw the attention of the Council to the fact that clause 10 of the Bill corresponds with section 9 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* Now, I am afraid, I shall again have to annoy the Hon'ble Mr. Das by referring to the virtues of the Bengal Tenancy Act*. Section 9 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* has not only been in force in Bengal for the last 27 years, but so far as I can gather from the commentaries on the Act, it has never been the subject of any judicial ruling of the High Court. Now when a section has been in force for 27 years and has never been brought before the High Court, there is a very strong presumption that that section has proved extremely suitable, and I think that this Council should be very chary of altering it. The general object of the section, of course, is to prevent too frequent tampering with the rent of tenure-holders. The general object of the amendments, which have been brought before the Council, is to afford more frequent opportunities of tampering with those rents, and this, I think is most undesirable. It is for the movers of the amendments to bring forward good reasons for showing that it is necessary to allow more frequent alteration of tenure-holders' rents than was considered necessary by the legislature who passed the Bengal Tenancy Act in 1885. It was then considered that it was quite sufficient to allow a tenure holders' rent to be altered once in 15 years, and this, I think, is a sound principle When a superior proprietor divests himself of his rights in favour of a tenure-holder, it is only right that that tenure-holder should have a certain security of tenure. It is not only desirable in the interests of the tenure-holder himself, but also in the interests of the raiyats of the estate, because it is perfectly obvious that whenever an enhancement is made in the rent of a tenure-holder, he is bound in his own interest to pass it on to the raiyat. Now 15 years is, generally speaking, the period within which the rents of occupancy raiyats cannot be altered, and it is logical therefore that the same period should apply in the case of the rents of tenure-holders. In the particular amendment which is now before the Council the Hon'ble Mr. Das proposes that where a tenure-holder's rent has been fixed by contract between the parties, it should be open to the Courts to raise that rent as frequently as it pleases It seems to me that this proposal is not only undesirable for the reasons which I have already given, but also unnecessary The proprietor and the tenure-holder make their contract with their eyes open. Under the law as it stands at present, they know that the rent for which they have contracted will not be liable to revision by the Court for 15 years, and they take this circumstance into consideration in fixing the rent. It is clear that great uncertainty would be introduced into contracts of this description if the parties knew that the contract was liable to revision in the Court immediately after it was made I submit therefore that the Hon'ble Member's amendment would introduce an undesirable element of uncertainty into contracts, and should be rejected by the Council "

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

The Hon'ble MR DAS said :—

"I have simply to say this much. I expected, Sir, that there would be no objection. Finding that the Bengal Tenancy Act* is responsible for all the labour the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, and the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox have taken to have a special Act, I expected that there would be no serious objection to making matters plain. As regards the objection which has been stated in other quarters, that if the wording of the Bengal Tenancy Act* is altered in the slightest degree the probability is that the Courts would infer that there was some intention in making this alteration, and consequently would construe it differently, that is an argument which has force only in cases where the Bengal Tenancy Act* is used side by side with another Act, in which a certain section has been altered in a slight degree; but when it is said, as will be clear from the preamble and other parts of the Orissa Tenancy Act, that it was meant for special circumstances and conditions of the country and people, certainly there would be no difficulty whatever, and we are driven to the necessity of a special Code by the experience that the Bengal Tenancy Act* will not do.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

22. If motion No. 21 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Das to move that the words "on the same grounds" be inserted after the word "Court" in line 3 of clause 10.

23 The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "or during which enhancement has so commenced" be inserted after the words "so enhanced" in line 4 of clause 10.

24. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the following be added as a proviso to clause 10, namely:—

"Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to a contract by which a tenure-holder binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been, or is to be, effected in respect of the tenure by, or at the expense of, his landlord."

He said:—

"Sir, I have already explained myself that a proviso be added to this section which would make it clear. It is now only clear in a certain class of cases, instead of generally, and leaving the contract open. It says nothing shall apply to a contract whereby a tenure-holder binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been, or is to be, effected in respect of the tenure by, or at the expense of, his landlord.

"Of course, the general objection will be that the section really means that. That may be."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"May I be allowed to interrupt and explain? The section is clear on the point. When there has been an enhancement by the Court or by contract, the rent cannot be again enhanced, by the Court, within 15 years. All the section means, is that in the absence of a contract the landlord cannot go to the Court and sue for an enhanced rent. If five years after an enhancement the landlord induces the tenure-holder to enter into a contract for an additional enhancement on account of fresh improvements, there is nothing in the Act which can prevent him from doing so. The section only refers to what can be done in the Courts in the absence of contracts. The section is perfectly clear and covers all that you ask for."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"That is what I do not understand, sir. The Hon'ble Member must understand that he is negotiating for the most backward and stupid people. We are very slow in comprehension, and why not give us a little more light?"

The amendment was then put and lost.

Clause 12

The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad moved that the following be inserted at the end of clause 12 (1), namely:—

"provided that the entire tenure, and not a portion of it, is transferred or bequeathed."

He said:—

"Clause 12 runs thus: 'Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immovable property.'

"If a tenure-holder is permitted by this section to transfer or bequeath either all or any portion of his holding, the result will be that it will necessarily add to the number of holdings, that is to say, instead of one it is possible that 50 or 100 separate holdings may be created if portions are allowed to be sold or bequeathed. It will also, if it is allowed to be divided and sub-divided, increase the number of suits that the zamindar or the superior landlord would have to institute against the defaulting tenants. My amendment is that if a permanent tenure is to be sold, it should be sold in its entirety. Suppose that this amendment of mine is not accepted by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, what will be the result? If a tenure-holder seeks to sell his one holding to say a hundred persons, the holding will go on getting smaller and smaller, and the difficulty of the zamindars will naturally and necessarily increase. It is for these reasons that I wish to add this provision towards the end of this clause that whenever any such sale does take place the entire holding should be sold and not a portion."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

Before I discuss this amendment, I should like to make a personal explanation to the Hon'ble Members from Bihar. When I referred to the lively interest which they had taken in the Bill, I did not mean them to believe that a general interest in our proceedings would be other than welcome. What I was thinking of was an interest that ran to one hundred amendments out of two hundred and sixty, many of which betrayed very imperfect acquaintance with the local conditions of Orissa and some of which appeared to be opposed to the interests and wishes of the representatives of Orissa. The present amendment will illustrate what I mean.

'It is one of a series which has been proposed by the Hon'ble Members from Bihar with the object of placing a veto on the transfer of portions of tenures. Amendments Nos. 28, 38, 41 and 50 are similar and there may be others. The amendments are not in accordance with the local custom of Orissa nor with the provision of section 27 of Act X of 1859 which contains the existing law on the subject. Transfers of portions of tenures, by sale, gift succession and otherwise, are specifically referred to in that section. Such transfers of portions of tenures do not involve any division or distribution of the rent payable, and this has been made quite clear in the redraft of clauses 13A to 13D which I propose later to place before the Council. I would ask the Hon'ble Member, in the circumstances explained, to withdraw this amendment.

The amendment was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 13 A.

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"May I have your permission, sir, to move the fresh* amendments of the clauses relating to the transfer of tenures and holdings, which have been entered in my name on the separate list which has been laid on the table this morning?'

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The rules are suspended in order to enable the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson to move the fresh amendments."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"There are no less than 62 amendments dealing with clauses 13A, 13B and 13C which refer to the transfer of tenures, and with clause 25A which deals with the transfer of occupancy-rights. Nearly one-half of these amendments have been put forward by Hon'ble Members from Bihar. The remainder which have been filed by the Orissa Members cover all the debatable ground of the transfer clauses and have been very carefully considered by my hon'ble friend Mr. Kerr and myself with the object of finding a solution which will meet the reasonable objections of their proposers. The redrafts of clauses 13A, 13B, 13C, 25A and 91, together with the new clauses 13CC, 13D, 13E, and certain consequential amendments, represent the result of our joint deliberation with the proposers of the Orissa amendments and have been accepted by them as a satisfactory solution. The following are the chief points in which the redrafted clauses differ from those in the Bill as amended in Select Committee.

* These amendments (numbered 1A to 11A), which will be found set out in full in the proceeding of the 21st March and subsequent dates, were printed on a separate paper and laid on the table for the first time on the morning of the 20th March They embodied several of the suggestions put forward by Hon'ble Members in the amendments sent in by them in regard to clauses 13A, 13C, and 25A, but as they were not included in the original amendment list, they were referred to as "fresh" amendments.

"In clause 13A dealing with transfers by succession we have made an addition whereby an opportunity is given to the landlord to appear and be heard, and registration is not allowed till the Collector has satisfied himself that the applicant is the true heir or successor.

"In clause 13C dealing with transfers of tenures other than those specified in clause 13B, we have provided for an alternative fee which minimises the danger of a fraudulent understatement of the consideration-money in deeds of transfer. We consider this preferable to throwing on the Collector the burden of ascertaining true market value in all cases. Several of the previous amendments relate to market value.

"Sub-clause (3) of the same clause has been amended so as to leave the burden of proof of custom neutral. The complaint was made that the burden of proof had been laid unfairly upon the landlord.

"In new clause 13C(a) we have made it clear that the transfer of a portion of a tenure and its registration do not constitute a division of a tenure such as is contemplated in clause 91.

"Clause 91 has been redrafted so as to accord with the existing clause 88 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.†

"Sub-clause (3) of clause 25A, dealing with occupancy holdings, has been amended on the same lines as sub-clause (3) of clause 13C, but the explanations have been retained, and I regard them as essential to the acceptance of the compromise now proposed. Sub-clause (4) which made the orders of the Collector final, subject to revision, has been excised and this leaves the orders of the Collector subject to the ordinary course of appeal prescribed in clause 213 Sub-clause (5) which was added because the orders of the Collector were made final in the preceding sub clause has also been excised. A new sub-clause has been added which removes permanently-settled estates from the operation of section 25A, and with respect to these areas the Illustration which stood in the original Bill as Illustration (1) to clause 246 has been restored as Illustration (1a) The justification for this exception is that the evidence of custom of transfer on which the provisions of clause 25A were based was collected in the course of the revision settlement from the temporarily-settled area. We have no sufficient information regarding the practice of transfer in permanently-settled areas and have therefore left it to be governed by existing custom or usage, without attempting to define that custom or usage."

"With this explanation I propose to put clause by clause in their proper order, the redrafts or new drafts contained in the separate paper issued to Hon'ble Members. If they are accepted by the Council, the amendments standing in the names of other Hon'ble Members will automatically fall to the ground, but of course it will be open to any member to bring forward any point which he has raised in his amendment."

Clause 13A.

1A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the following be substituted for sub-clauses (1) and (2) of clause 13A, namely:—

(1) In the case of every transfer of a tenure or portion of a tenure by succession, the landlord shall recognise the transfer, provided that the transferee shall pay him a fee amounting to rupees two, except in the case of a bajyaftidar, when the fee shall be rupee one.

(2) If, in any such case, the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee, the transferee or his successor in interest may deposit such fee with the Collector, and, at the same time, apply for registration of the transfer. The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall decide whether the applicant is the successor or not; and, if satisfied that such applicant is the successor, he shall cause the fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Sir, I beg to submit that these amendments at this stage handicap us very much. This Bill has been in the hands of a Select Committee and I was told that this Bill has been thought over by Government for years and then the Select Committee went through it and recast it, and now, when we are considering the Bill, certain important amendments are made, and we find them on the table as we come to this Council. In justice and fairness to us, I think certainly a little more time ought to have been given to us. When I moved the other day that this Council had not time enough to discuss this Bill, and therefore further proceedings in connection with this Bill should not be moved in this Council, I was told that this Council was certainly the only competent Council that could deal with it, and now we are faced with amendments that are brought in at this stage; and unless the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill wishes us to take up the consideration of these amendments on some subsequent day, it really comes to this that certain amendments are made here on certain important provisions of the Bill, and, if this does not justify my saying that actually this Bill has been rushed, I do not know what does.

"Then, Sir, it has already been remarked by the Hon'ble Member in charge that there are only two persons here representing Orissa, and representing Orissa in a Bill which is framed because the Bengal Tenancy Act* is not suitable for us. To quote the language of the Hon'ble Member in charge, its features essentially differ from the other, and unfortunately I was not able to attend half the meetings of the Select Committee. With regard to that, I offered an explanation, but Your Honour ruled that even that explanation, which was of a personal character, should be expunged from my note of dissent, as being a part of the deliberations of the Select Committee. While I bow to Your Honour's decision, I fail to understand why a personal explanation that I could not attend the Select Committee should not form part of the proceedings of the Select Committee. That is the condition in which Orissa is placed here. Highly-paid official members of the most eminent service in the world have spent years, and then they produce a Bill which has undergone considerable change in the Select Committee, and now at the last moment we are faced with certain changes of an important character! And I submit that certainly these changes ought not to be discussed to-day."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sir, may I rise to explain briefly what the situation really is? If regard be had to this new clause 13A which has now been proposed by me, and if the amendments that stand under the heading of clause 13A be examined, it will be found that what has been done is merely to accept some of these amendments. I have as it were anticipated some amendments proposed by Hon'ble Members. I do not see that there is any question of rushing a new draft through the Council. I have merely incorporated some of the amendments in the clauses as they stood before. As redrafted, the new clause covers amendment 34 which stands in the name of the Hon'ble Raja of Kanika, and 35 which stands in the name of the Hon'ble Hrishikesh Law, while another redraft covers amendment 37 which stands in the name of the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. We are not making any departure from the draft of the

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

Bill, except so far as is calculated to meet objections raised by the amendments of Hon'ble Members. I do not see in the least why we should not consider the new clauses now, just in the same way as we might have considered the amendments."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I beg to say sir, that the Bill has been in the hands of the Government for several years, and it has undergone several modifications and alterations in the Select Committee. Not content with that it is a matter of great surprise that at the last moment serious amendments should be sprung upon us without sufficient notice, and we have had no time to go through the amendments or study them. All that I can say is that it is an unusual procedure for the Government or for the matter of that for the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to move amendments after the Select Committee stage has passed away. Moreover it is a serious departure from the principles which have been recognised in the Bengal Tenancy Act that a portion of the tenure should be allowed to be sold and the landlord should be compelled to recognise transfer of a portion of the tenure. It is against the spirit of the Bengal Tenancy Act to compel the landlord to recognise transfer of a portion of a tenure. I beg to submit that it is an unusual thing for the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to spring serious amendments upon the Council at the last stage."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"My object in intervening at this stage is simply to explain the change that has been made in the original Bill by the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson. The clause deals with the transfer of tenures by succession, and it provides that the landlord shall be required to recognize the transfer provided he is paid certain fees, and, if in any case he refuses to accept the fee, the transferee or his successor in interest shall apply to the Collector. The original Bill says that the Collector shall thereupon cause the fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner and shall by an order in writing declare that the transfer is duly registered.

"It was brought to our notice that a fraudulent transferee might come up and represent himself as the successor of the original tenant, and we therefore thought it was advisable to meet that particular objection. We now provide that the Collector shall give notice to the landlord to appear and be heard. and shall decide whether the applicant is the real heir or not; and if the Collector finds that the applicant is the real heir he shall cause the fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

"That is the only change which has been made in the provisions of clause 13A, and the only point that the Council need consider with regard to clause 13A."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"I have not been able to hear distinctly what has been said

"Do I understand aright that these proposals made by Mr. McPherson are in the nature of a compromise embodying the proposal made in the amendment by the various Members of the Council? If I am correct in my supposition I do not see why the Hon'ble Member could not, as the proceedings went on and in the course of the meeting, have made these proposals; but instead of doing that, these clauses have been submitted before the meeting in a form which is acceptable to Government. I may state on my own part that I see no objection to the proposals made in the manner in which they have been submitted."

The Hon'ble MR. BASU said:—

"I really do not understand the reason why Mr. Das complains. It is the most extraordinary complaint that I have ever heard in this Council.

When a Bill is proceeded with, we, non-official Members, bring in amendments, and these amendments when necessary are changed in the language and sometimes they are adopted by the official Members, and then, when they are adopted, these amendments are put in proper language and placed before the Council, and we are only too glad to accept them. It is rather a matter of congratulation that the amendment suggested by some of our non-official friends have been accepted by the Government and put forward in language which is more consistent with the general drafting of the Act than the amendment put forward by non official Members themselves. In that view I do not see that there should be any reason for complaint; on the contrary, these amendments should be welcomed as conceding to a great extent the objections that have been raised against the Bill as originally drafted.

"I therefore support these amendments as put forward."

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKA SAHAY BAHADUR said —

"I have got several amendments, with regard to clauses 13A, 13B, and 13C, which refer to the heritability and transferability of the tenures. They have replaced sections 13, 14, 15 and 16 of the original Bill as introduced in the Council I wonder if the Select Committee fully realized the changes that they have made, for I find that in their report, paragraph 5, they speak as if they have made no material changes in the principle of the Bill. In my humble opinion, Sir, by the new sections 13A, 13B, and 13C as drafted by the Select Committee, and even as revised now by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, changes of far-reaching effects have been made which will seriously affect the interests of the landlords and altogether change the existing law on the subject. It appears that in the three districts under consideration there are certain tenures which should obviously be treated differently from those created by the landlords. It was proposed to concede to these tenure-holders a higher status than that of the ordinary tenure holders and to lay down clearly the incidence of such tenures and to facilitate the registration of all tenures on payments of proper fees. The Hon'ble Mr Maddox in his Report, dated 6th April 1909 (printed paper No. 2), after going through the matter, laid it down as his opinion and that of the Committee that with regard to the incidence of the tenures the provisions of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act* should be extended to Orissa with certain modifications. He also proposed that such tenures as were transferable without the consent of the landlord should be clearly specified. It was also proposed to fix a maximum fee for registration. The different tenures which are saleable without the consent of the landlord and those which are not so saleable are stated at page 36 of Paper No. 2. A Bill was drawn up on the lines of the report of the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox, and sanction of the Government of India was obtained. A reference to the original Bill as introduced in Council will show that the object of the proposed legislation as introduced in Council was not to change the law regarding the incidents and nature of any tenure, but was to fix a prescribed fee payable to the landlord and to facilitate registration where tenures were transferred either when they were transferable without the consent of the landlord or where not so transferable they were transferred with his consent. This is clear also from the Statement of Objects and Reasons, paragraph 18.

"If the Select Committee had stuck to its scope as laid down in the Report of the Hon'ble Mr Maddox and in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill, there would have been no serious complaint. But if we read carefully the new sections as drafted by the Select Committee and compare them with the old sections, we find the Select Committee has gone much beyond its scope so laid down. It has altered the whole principle of the proposed legislation and laid down laws which are unjust and unfair to the landlord. For instance, under section 13A as drafted by the Select Committee all tenures heritable or non-heritable are made heritable, and the landlord can on no account and under no circumstances oppose the registration of a non-heritable tenure and has no remedy. By one stroke of the pen all tenures of every kind and description are made heritable Sir, if a landlord has created a tenure on the distinct agreement that it shall be for life or for a shorter period and be not heritable, the contract must by operation of this section as drafted by the Select Committee and as revised by the Hon'ble Member in charge be invalid. Then according to the language of the section read with section 91 it will appear that non-heritable tenures are not only by operation of this section heritable, but they are divisible as well without the consent of the landlord. I am glad to find that this serious infringement of principle is recognised and in the re-drafted section the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill lays down that no tenure shall be divisible without the consent of the landlord. Section 13B of the Bill enumerates certain tenures which are transferable by sale. I have nothing to say against it if they have been found on enquiry to be of a transferable character. But here also the section suggests that the landlord is bound to recognize the splitting up of the holding. The redrafted sections, however, have remedied this defect. Then clause 13C makes all tenures or portions of tenures of every kind and description transferable, and introduces a new law and procedure and shifts the onus of customs of transfer from the transferee to the landlord.

"I submit that these are drastic changes. The Select Committee have given no reason for these changes. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill in the lucid speech he made in the Council on the 9th of January last did not say a single word from which it could be inferred that these drastic changes were proposed to be introduced in the new Bill No reason has been given as to why the provision in the Bill as introduced in the Council which laid down distinctly that transfer by sale, gift or exchange of all tenures, except certain specified ones were invalid, unless and until made with the consent of the landlord, has been removed from the Bill. A new law is being introduced declaring tenures of all and every kind to be heritable and divisible.

"I submit there is no justification for these changes which is against the established law of the country and which interferes with the vested rights of the landlord. You may facilitate registration of heirs and successors, you may prescribe a fee payable in such succession, but you have no right to make a tenure heritable which is not heritable.

"The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill in submitting his redrafted section has met the objects of various amendments on the agenda. He has gone far, but has not gone far enough He has refused to accept many amendments I beg therefore to suggest that these redrafted sections may be taken into consideration with the amendments that have not been accepted. Those Members whose amendments have been accepted will not press them. Those who are not satisfied will put forward the subject-matter of their amendments for the consideration of the Council."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said—

"It appears that some of the Hon'ble Members have been unnecessarily uncharitable to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. The result of the various amendments proposed by some Members have been incorporated in these amendments which are now before us. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, when he moved his own amendment, he himself admitted that his amendments might be considered in the light of the several amendments proposed by other Members of the Council, and if the Hon'ble Members find that there are still some defects, they could have very well proposed their own amendments in connection with these amendments which are now put forward by the Hon'ble Member in charge. It appears to me that if these amendments which are now proposed by the Hon'ble Member in charge are accepted, a series of amendments,—and some of those amendments no doubt stand in my name, too—will be done away with. We should not throw aside these amendments simply on the ground that the Bill has been for a long time under consideration, and, even before the Report of the Select Committee, these amendments were not proposed by the Hon'ble Member in charge. We ought to look at the substance of the amendments now proposed, and, if we find that these amendments which are now proposed by the Hon'ble Member in charge go to accept our amendments which stand against the names of the several Members, then it is highly desirable that they ought to be accepted; but if any remark is needed in order to bring about any further change, we should be allowed to offer our suggestive remarks in regard to them. I think many of the amendments which stand in our names will be done away with if these amendments are accepted.

' I therefore think these amendments should be taken into consideration."

The Hon'ble KHAN BAHADUR MAULVI SARFARAZ HUSAIN KHAN said—

" I also think that they ought to be taken into consideration. They will save time."

The PRESIDENT said—

" I will explain to the Council the effect which I think will follow from putting Mr. McPherson's amendments at this stage.

" I confine myself for the moment to the amendments which have been proposed with a view to the modification of clause 13A of the Bill. They are amendments Nos. 26 to 37. The redrafted clause now proposed by Mr. McPherson, as has been explained by him, embodies a certain number of these amendments. There are others which it does not embody and which have not been accepted by the Government. When it is put to the Council—if it is carried—the amendments will fall to the ground. I propose that it should be discussed now and put to the Council. I take it that the Members who have moved amendments but who are satisfied with the redrafted clause will not press their amendments, as explained by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. The position, however, will be that if they are not satisfied they will oppose it; if it is carried, there is an end of it; if it is not carried, then the remaining amendments will naturally not fall to the ground but will come on for discussion."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said—

" Can amendments to proposals put forward as a compromise by the Government be moved by Hon'ble Members?"

The PRESIDENT said—

" No, I take it that if Hon'ble Members wish to press their original objections, they can do so now both against the original clause and against the clause introduced by Mr. McPherson, and refuse to have it carried."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

" I do not say that these amendments will not be accepted, but what I mean to say is that these amendments coming now and being put on the table,—as to how these amendments would affect the different rights concerned and how they affect the amendments proposed,—I have not intelligence enough to actually take their bearings within so short a time. There are Hon'ble Members who have said that these are concessions. I do not know whether these Hon'ble Members have actually studied the Bill and whether they can say what the difference is and how they are concessions. Of course general remarks of that nature being made that they are concessions and matters for congratulation, for people who do not understand the details, it is very easy. The question is, I should like to hear from these Hon'ble Members some remarks pertinent to the subject showing that they had studied the subject, and then certainly the congratulations will have been of value to us. To congratulate one because he is in the dark and does not understand the mischief that is being done is easy enough."

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said:—

" I can assure the Members of this Council that clauses 13A, 13B, and 13C were very carefully considered by the Select Committee and they are the result of their deliberations. The Hon'ble Mr. Das says that the proposed new clauses make a good deal of change in the law as framed by the Select Committee. Let us consider this question on the merits as we lawyers say:—

"Clause 13 A (1). I say the only difference is that the words 'shall recognize' are used instead of the words 'shall be required.' That is the only change, Sir In sub-clause (2), instead of the 'proceedings being ex parte' the landlord is given an opportunity of appearing before the Collector who passes an order. The complaint was that anybody may appear before the Collector and say that he was the successor of a deceased tenure-holder, and the Collector may hear him ex parte and the wrong person may be registered as the owner of the tenure. To obviate the difficulty the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has added—"

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"May I call my friend to a point of order. Nobody raised the question of merits."

The PRESIDENT:—

"He is quite in order."

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE continuing said:—

"Your objection may be on general grounds, but I say you have no legs to stand on. The matter is not heard ex parte and he has the opportunity of showing the Collector that the person coming forward is not the successor of the person who is dead. I think clause 13A is certainly an improvement on the clause as framed by the Select Committee, and I think the Hon'ble Members will accept it."

The Hon'ble MR. BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN said:—

"I should like to make a few suggestions. The original clauses 13, 14 and 15 have undergone material changes before the Select Committee.

"With regard to the Bill as it stands after submission of the Report of the Select Committee, I know that amendments have been proposed by certain members and I am told that the amendments proposed by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill are by way of concession. We, members who have not studied it from that point of view, are unable to digest at this moment where the differences lie and where the concessions have been made, and therefore in justice to us I beg to suggest that as there is no chance of the Bill being gone through this day that the discussion of these clauses 13A, 13B and 13C, which are very important provisions in the Bill, may be taken up tomorrow in order that we may be in a position to judge where the differences lie and where the concessions have been made."

The Hon'ble MR WASI AHMAD said:—

"With your Honour's permission, I very strongly support the suggestion that has been made that the further consideration of this Bill may be postponed till tomorrow. I entirely agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Das when he says that these new amendments were placed on the table this morning, and we have had absolutely no time to go through them. I have a further complaint and it is this. None of these amendments, as proposed by the various Members, were sent to us till yesterday. For the first time we saw the amendments here on the table as proposed by the various Members of the Council, and I certainly think it is a clear departure from the old precedent of this Council. All the Bills that are discussed and the amendments that are moved are generally sent out to Members for consideration, so that they may come prepared as to what they think and what they may say about them. Here we are asked to vote for a measure which has not been even read by us. We did not receive it before to-day, and we have had absolutely no time to read or discuss it. It is therefore only fair to ask your Honour to consider the desirability of postponing not only this matter but the whole of the Bill, and I suggest that it should be taken up early tomorrow morning to enable us, though hurriedly, to go through the various amendments."

The PRESIDENT.—

"I hoped, when I allowed the proposed amended clauses to be put, that it would be left to the Members whose amendments were affected to decide the question, and that they would probably agree, (and I understood that most of them had agreed), to discuss the clauses as put by the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson; but as there seems to me to be a good deal of opposition, and particularly on the part of the Hon'ble Mr. Das, (though his one amendment has been accepted and embodied), I think it will be better to give the Council further time to consider the amendments and I propose to take them up tomorrow."

The discussion of motion No 1A on the separate paper, and of the motions dependent thereon, was then postponed, and the Council proceeded to a consideration of amendment No. 63 in the original amendment list

Clause 19.

63. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "under one landlord" be inserted after the words "land situate in any village" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 19 (1).

He said —

"In Orissa we find in many cases two or more landlords in one village. It is hardly fair to allow the tenant of one landlord to be a settled raiyat of another, although he may not have held land under the latter for more than a year. This restriction would practically prevent any landlord from giving land to a tenant of the village who is a raiyat under another. This will come hard upon those who have very little land. A tenant who has a small plot under one landlord, which is insufficient for his support, may seek some other land from another landlord of the village who may be inclined to give a portion of land at his disposal to cultivate, but the very knowledge that thereby the tenant would acquire right of occupancy would prevent the landlord from letting such tenant in"

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said —

"The section which the Hon'ble Member desires* to amend is an exact reproduction of section 20 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and that section is one of the most important, if not the most important provision in the whole Act. It provides that every person who for a period of 12 years has continuously held land as a raiyat in any village shall be deemed, on the expiry of that period, to become a settled raiyat, and that a settled raiyat shall have rights of occupancy in all land held by him as a raiyat in the village. There is no section of the Bengal Tenancy Act* which was subjected to closer scrutiny and criticism than this one There were many proposals as to the area within which the rights of a settled raiyat should be allowed to accrue, and finally, after an enormous amount of discussion with the details of which I need not worry the Council, it was decided that the village is the proper unit to adopt for this purpose Under the proposal of the Hon'ble Member, which we are now considering, the estate instead of the village would be the unit for the accrual of occupancy rights. I have already explained to the Council that an estate may consist of a few acres or it may consist of several hundred square miles, and is consequently a very undesirable unit for tenancy purposes. The Hon'ble Member's proposal would not affect the raiyats in the case of large estates such as that of which he himself is the proprietor, but it would very seriously affect the tenants in a common class of villages in Orissa, namely, those which are held by large number of petty proprietors each of whom or each family of whom holds a separate estate. The result would then be that a raiyat would have rights of occupancy in one field appertaining to a particular estate, and would have no such rights in the next field because it belonged to another estate and because he had taken it up at a later date than his original holding. The Uriya raiyat is a person for whom I have a great respect and liking, but I do not think even his best friends could accuse him of being of a quick intelligence or likely to understand the complications to which the proposal

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

of the Hon'ble Member would give rise. It would be very difficult indeed to get an Uriya raiyat to understand that in one field his rent would not be enhanced because he had an occupancy right, while in the field next door his rent could be enhanced at the end of every year because he had no occupancy-rights, that in one field he was liable to summary ejectment, and in the next he could only be ejected by a decree of Court I submit, Sir, that the only reasonable unit for the great majority of raiyats is the village in which they have their homes and in which the lands which they cultivate are situated. It would be quite impossible to allow an amendment which would have the result of giving the raiyat different kinds of rights in different fields within the same village, and I would submit that this amendment should be rejected."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"This section is a reproduction of the Bengal Tenancy section and my friend, the Raja of Khanika, I think, makes a mistake when he says that the conditions of Orissa would differ from the conditions in Bengal. In Bengal there are several landlords in one and the same village. This was one of the provisions on a point of law which was contested at the time of the Bengal Tenancy Act* when it passed through the Council, and it was after a great deal of contention that they resolved that the village should be taken as a unit, and if the raiyat had land in a village under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act,* he would give the raiyats occupancy in another village. My friend forgets this law which is not only for the landlords but for the tenants and the rights of both sides have to be considered. Those rights were rightly considered at the time of the Bengal Tenancy Act*. I do not think any case has been made for an innovation of the provisions of the law as it will not place the tenants in Orissa in a less advantageous position than their brethren in Bengal."

The Hon'ble RAJAH RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said:—

The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu says that the conditions are very similar to those of Bengal. I don't think so myself and the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr has already admitted that it would affect the common class of villages in Orissa.

"But, however, I do not like to press this matter and I propose to withdraw.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

64. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "under such landlord" be inserted after the words "a settled raiyat of that village" at the end of clause 19 (1).

65. If motion No. 63 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "under one landlord" be inserted after the words "land in a village" in line 2 of clause 19 (2).

66. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "provided that he has not been out of possession for more than twelve months" be substituted for the words "notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 19 (6).

67. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that clause 19 (7) be omitted.

Clause 21.

68. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "except by purchase in execution of a decree in a suit for arrears of rent under the provisions of this Act" be inserted before the words "such person shall have no right" in line 5 of clause 21 (1).

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

He said :—

"Sir, formerly the law of merger was unknown in India. It was introduced into the Bengal Tenancy Act* for the first time. Before section 22 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* relating to transfer of occupancy-right to a sole or a co-proprietor was introduced into Orissa, either a sole or a co-proprietor acquiring such rights by purchase either by voluntary or at court sale could hold the land in the same right as the original raiyat had. As there was nothing to prevent accrual of occupancy-rights, they did acquire such rights. The provision of section 22 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* was introduced into Orissa in 1891 It cannot be said that rights which have already accrued would cease as an effect of the subsequent introduction of the section. The landlords of Orissa are mostly poor and they need special indulgence in the matter, especially when the area of their private lands is fixed and no further increase will be allowed There might be objection to a landlord being allowed to buy up occupancy-rights, but when he is obliged to sell the holding of a defaulting tenant and for want of a bidder is obliged to purchase it himself there is no reason why, having paid the full value, he should be treated differently from any other purchaser. Generally the worst lands are sold in execution sale in consequence of the inability of the raiyat to pay the rents. If the landlord is allowed to retain possession of such land separately, he would effect improvements in which Government will participate at the next settlement of land revenue"

The Hon'ble MR DAS said —

"Of course we have always to face the rock of the Bengal Tenancy Act,* which has sheltered the settlement officer. But then there are peculiar circumstances First of all the circumstance that up to the time that the Bengal Tenancy Act* was introduced for the purpose of revenue settlement, the zamindars did buy rights of occupancy wholesale and did enjoy them Then we must take into account the fact that the zamindars of Orissa are not the zamindars of Bengal The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has mentioned that there are zamindars who are the masters and proprietors of a few bighas of land. This is perhaps worse than misfortune itself. Then we must take into consideration that Orissa is a place which is often exposed to floods. The floods come in and deposit sands on lands and very often the nij jote lands of the zamindar is covered with sand. I brought to the notice of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill the fact that I know of a certain zamindar, who is said to own 3,000 acres of nij-jote land, out of which 1,000 acres are unfit for cultivation. Now the consequence is while nature has been trying and while persisting in her course to deprive the zamindar of his private lands, the Bill as it stands before us defines the limits of these private lands The question is, is not the zamindar entitled to any kind treatment different from what is accorded to the zamindar in Bengal? The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, when introducing the Bill, said for these reasons they have been deemed entitled to some considerate treatment I suggested to the Hon'ble Member in charge to allow the zamindar, in cases where his private land is covered with sand, to buy up land, in exclusion of the tenant, and actually take so much of this land as private land as his original private land as had been covered with sand, so that actually the zamindar might feel that Government has given him so much private land. Of course the Hon'ble Member with the strength, or I may say the tenacity, whichever it is, of people living in the north of England, would not give in He said, 'No such thing.' Then, Sir, I think that when a man finds nobody else would buy the land, he has to sell up the holding. He has no profit if anybody else is not willing to buy it. This shows the state of things—that there is nobody to buy the holding;—consequently there is no competition for land: in that case he keeps it. Some time after there is competition. At a bad time he has to cultivate the land himself, he employs labour, and, when a good time comes in, the raiyat comes in and says, 'Well, will you allow me to cultivate your land?' and, as soon as he comes in, he acquires the right of occupancy. Of course where there is keen competition I should be the last person to leave the question. Certainly, if there is great competition the right should be provided, and I have always stood. for raiyats, although by the kind permission of the Secretary I am sitting here with a different and higher class of gentry Of course. in a case where he buys himself, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill would find that if he buys and satisfies the Collector that here was so much of private land which has become, for no fault of mine, unworthy of cultivation, will you come to replace these private lands by the area for which I have paid into court in execution of the decree? That would be something.—"

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKANTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR said.—

"Clause 21 embodies the law as it stands in Bengal at the present moment under the Bengal Tenancy Act * It is based upon the doctrine of merger. The principle has been discussed since the Bengal Tenancy Act * came into operation in many cases. The well known bungle of rights in connection with laws may be infrequent. I have no personal knowledge of the position of the Orissa landlords, nor of the position of the tenants The question is whether the Orissa landlords or the Orissa tenants are entitled to a differential consideration. There are only two aspects to be considered, whether such union of interests or bundle of rights is rare or frequent If they are rare, then I should say that the provision is based upon the sound principle of merger. The difficulty would not be appreciably felt by them It such unions are frequent, protection would have to be given to the tenants—actual agriculturists. That is the view I take of the principle embodied in this section, and I regret that I cannot support my friend in his amendment.—"

The Hon'ble MR KERR said —

"Sir, the section which we are now considering is a somewhat complicated one, but its object is clear enough, and it is not necessary to go into the law of merger in order to understand it. It is to discourage the acquisition of occupancy-rights by landlords. This policy of Government has always been recognised It was definitely stated in 1885. It was re-stated in 1907 when this section was amended, and I am very glad to have an opportunity of re-stating it to day. It has also been recognised in decisions of the High Court. If a landlord acquires an occupancy-holding by purchase, succession or otherwise, he can cultivate the land himself as long as he likes, and nobody will interfere with him, but the land remains part of the raiyati stock of the country, and if the landlord re-lets the land to another person and if that person is a settled raiyat of the village, he at once acquires occupancy-rights in it under the provision of clause 19 of this Bill. The Hon'ble Member's amendment would enable the landlords to bar the accrual of occupancy-rights in any land which they have acquired at sales for arrears of rent and subsequently re-let, and I see from paragraph 127 of this list of amendments that the Hon'ble Member actually wishes to introduce a definite provision to this effect in clause 49 of the Bill relating to nij-jote. Such a provision would in effect be an extension of nij-jote privileges for which there is no justification whatever. The Hon'ble Mr. Das asks for kind treatment for the zamindars of Orissa. It will be apparent when we come to consider the nij-jote provisions of the Bill that the zamindar has been given one lakh of acres of nij-chas land out of the raiyati stock of the country as nij-jote, and there is no reason to add to it in the manner now proposed. As I have explained, such an arrangement would be contrary to the settled policy of tenancy law in this province, and I must therefore ask the Council to reject the amendment.—"

The Hon'ble the RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said:—

"Of course I know the law of merger is against this proposal, but I think in the North-Western Provinces something like this about sir lands is allowed, and the proprietors are allowed to retain them, and the zamindars of

* * Act VIII of 1885

Orissa are not much better off than their brethren of the North-Western Provinces, and that being a temporarily-settled estate, I think that Government should make some concession like that.—"

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

69. If motion No. 68 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "voluntary" be inserted before the word "transfer" in line 4 of clause 21(1).

70. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or otherwise" in line 4 of clause 21 (1) be omitted

71. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "except in execution of a decree in a suit for arrears of rent under the provisions of this Act" be inserted after the word "transferred" in line 1 of clause 21 (2a).

72. If motion No. 71 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "voluntarily" be inserted before the words "transferred to a person jointly interested" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 21 (2a).

73. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the words "a sum equivalent to the rent which was formerly paid by the occupancy-raiyat" be substituted for the words "a fair and equitable sum" in lines 5 and 6 of clause 21 (2*a*).

He said —

"The co-sharers of a purchaser-proprietor or tenure-holder or the co-sharer purchaser proprietor or tenure-holder himself, will, on every occasion, have recourse to the Court for the settlement of a fair and equitable rent for the holding. This will create friction among themselves, and at the same time entail heavy expenses upon them. It is all very well to endeavour to establish an ideal normal standard of payment for the use and occupation of the land, but the language of the sub clause is vague and leaves the amount undetermined, and so the remedy becomes worse than the disease. There would be no friction or discord if the amount of rent previously paid by the occupancy-raiyat be taken as the proper amount to be paid by the purchaser, co-sharer landlord or tenure-holder for the use and occupation of the land. If any of the landlords are dissatisfied with the amount of rent formerly paid by the occupancy-raiyat and which the purchaser-proprietor or tenure-holder will be bound to pay, as proposed in my amendment, then he may resort to Court. But if sub-clause (2b) be allowed to stand as it is, then in every case of transfer, the purchaser landlord or tenure-holder or his co-sharers shall be compelled to have recourse to the Court to have a fair and equitable sum determined by it It will prove a fruitful source of contention among them. My amendment would enable the landlord or tenure-holders themselves without any trouble to determine what amount would be payable for the use and occupation of the land. Then again if the purchaser-proprietor or tenure-holder will have no right to hold the land as a raiyat, he must be compelled to let it out at least at a rent which had been formerly paid by the occupancy-raiyat without any profit on his outlay, and no person would take the holding at a rent higher than what had been paid by the former raiyat, and if he does not get a person to pay that rent, the land will lie fallow. If the fair and equitable sum, which is to be fixed by the Court, be less than what was formerly paid, then the co-sharer landlords or tenure-holders would suffer Looking at the matter from every point of view, the amendment proposed by me will help to remove the difficulty anticipated."

he Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"The provision of the clause which the Hon'ble Member seeks to amend is that which deals with the rent to be paid by the purchaser of an occupancy-holding to his co-sharer so long as he holds the holding himself and does not let it out to a raiyat In the clause as drafted by the Select Committee, it is provided that he should pay to his co-sharers a fair and equitable sum for the use and occupation of the land, and moreover that in determining from time-to time what is a fair and equitable share, regard shall be had to the rent payable by the occupancy-raiyat at the time of the transfer and to the principles of this Act regulating the enhancement or reduction of the rents of occupancy-raiyats. Under the Hon'ble Member's amendment the co-sharer landlord who acquired occupancy-rights would go on holding the land for ever at the same rent which was in force at the time of the purchase. This state of things would obviously be unfair to the co-sharing landlords. It would mean that the purchasing landlord would acquire practically a mukarrari right in the land, and his fellow proprietors would never be able to get an increased rent for the land due to the development of the estate, rise in prices, improvements effected by them or any of the other grounds which are recognised as justifying an enhancement of the rent. The Hon'ble Member says that it would cause contention to grant enhancements as laid down in the Bill, but all that the clause provides for is that if the co-sharers cannot agree they can ask the court to settle a fair and equitable rent. I can see no reason whatever for granting this special privilege to a purchasing co-sharer landlord or imposing these special disabilities on his co-sharers. I trust that the amendment will be rejected."

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKANTA NATH SEN BAHADUR said :—

"I beg to support the amendment. The apprehensions entertained by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that there would be prospective loss to co-sharers on account of their not being able to enhance the rent and the retention of the right of occupancy of the holding of the co-sharer as a mukarrari holding are not well founded. Now, in the first place, if there be several shareholders, in that case no enhancement under the law can be allowed unless that co-sharer also joins in suing for the enhancement. Practically, in the event of there being several co-sharers in an estate, the right of occupancy would be perfectly safe against enhancement, and, with regard to the prospective loss, the chances of an enhancement would be very rare, but disputes amongst sharers would always be certain. When one sharer makes a purchase the other sharers do not agree with him, and he might be compelled by the other sharers to let out the land to the tenants. So, considering the evils on both sides, perhaps there would be lesser evils in accepting the previous rent as a fair standard rent, instead of leaving the matter to be disputed on every occasion, and having to consider the rent at the time of the transfer. And by applying the principles of this Act regulating the rent it would be the lesser evil in accepting the amendment and in fixing the rent which was payable at the time of transfer as fair and equitable."

The Hon'ble MR H. MCPHERSON said :—

"Sir, may I say a few words supplementary to the remarks of my hon'ble friend Mr. Kerr? This amendment seems to me to be one which chiefly concerns proprietors. What I desire to point out is that if the amendment of the Hon'ble Mover be accepted, there is considerable risk of loss to the co-sharer landlord, who is not the purchaser. Take the case of an estate held half and half by two people, one co-sharer being a wealthy man, and the other a poor man. The wealthy man buys up practically the whole of the raiyati holdings of the estate. If this amendment be approved, the result will be that the poor co-sharer who has an equal interest in the estate, has the value of his half share very substantially diminished. He will never be able at any time to get any enhanced rent in respect of the occupancy-holdings purchased by his wealthier co-sharer. It seems to me that the question is one of very material importance to landlords generally. The result may be that one of the co-sharers of an estate may be in a position to hold the whole estate on a mukarrari rental. This is surely unfair to the other co-sharers. In regard to the working of the clauses as they stand, no difficulty or hardship need be apprehended. The section says that a fair and equitable sum shall be paid. If reference be made to the sections of the Act dealing with the enhancement of occupancy rents, it will be seen that it is one of their first principles that the existing rent is presumed to be fair and equitable till the contrary is shown. Unless, then, there is any ground for enhancement the co-sharer purchaser will go on holding the land on the same rent as paid by the former raiyat. If, on the other hand, there be reasonable ground for enhancement, as, for example, a rise in prices, there is no reason at all why the non-purchaser co-sharer should not benefit from the holding to that extent. I think if the case be looked at from this point of view, the Hon'ble Member will himself see that he is doing serious damage to the interests of co-sharer landlords who are not purchasers."

The Hon'ble BABU HRISHIKESH LAHA —

"Sir, I have not understood what has been said by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. Supposing a co-sharer landlord bought a holding at a rent of an occupancy-right and paid a rent of fifteen rupees, and the co-sharer who purchased a 16 anna share he is a one-third sharer of the estate, and by that purchase he will have to pay to the other co-sharers five rupees each, and supposing he does not pay that amount to the other co-sharer, what will be his position? He will either have to pay less amount to the other co-sharers or he will have to pay more. That is all I wish to know."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said —

"I do not follow the Hon'ble Member's question but I will explain the working of the section from a concrete example. If an 8-anna co-sharer landlord purchases an occupancy-holding of which the present rent is Rs. 15, then the amount annually payable to the other 8-annas co-sharer will be Rs 7-8. But let us suppose that an interest of 30 years elapses, during which there has been a considerable rise in prices. The non-purchaser co-sharer may go into court and ask that the amount payable be increased. The court may find that the total rent of the holding should now be considered to be Rs. 20 and may decide that Rs. 10, one half of Rs. 20, shall be the amount annually payable by the purchaser-landlord."

The motion was then put and lost.

Motion No 73 being lost, the following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

> 74 If motion No. 73 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that clause 21 (2b) be omitted.

Clause 24.

75 The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the word "or" be omitted at the end of clause 24 (a) and inserted at the end of clause 24 (b), and that after clause 24 (b) the following be added as sub-clause (c), namely :—

"(c) that he has disclaimed the title of his landlord."

He said :—

"If a tenant denies the title of his landlord, the landlord is entitled to treat the tenancy as determined by reason of disclaimer of his title. [As pointed out by the Hon'ble Judges of the Bombay High Court in I. L. R, 20 Bom., p. 354, and quoted with approval in 9 C. W. notes, p. 928 (at p. 933)] this is a right the law implies in all cases from the relationship of landlord and tenant. It has been held that this is the law in force till now in districts in which Act VIII of 1869 prevails (see Rampini's edition, Bengal Tenancy Act, p. 106). Therefore the law of forfeiture by denial of landlords' title, though it does not apply with full force in the area governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act, applies to the area for which we are legislating now, and there is no reason why it should be changed or altered by this legislation. This law is still in force there, and it will be unjust to modify it. This is a matter in which no one has or ought to have any sympathy for the defaulting tenant. He impeaches and impugns the title of the very person from whom he has derived his own.

"I find in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, with reference to this clause, the following:—

"'The question whether the denial by a tenant of his landlord's title should be a ground for forfeiture of his tenancy will be specially considered in Select Committee.'

"I do not find from the report of the Select Committee if this matter was considered by them and with what result, and what are the grounds of their decision.

"My amendment simply provides that the law of forfeiture by disclaimer of the landlords' title will continue to be in force as heretobefore."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"The effect of the Hon'ble Member's amendment would be to make denial of a landlord's title a ground for ejectment in the case of an occupancy-raiyat I can see no justification for such a very severe punishment being inflicted. The Hon'ble Member says that this is the law at present in force in Orissa. This is the first time I have heard a statement to that effect, and I very much doubt whether the Hon'ble Member has correctly apprehended the existing law in Orissa. But if he is correct, I have no hesitation whatever in saying that the law ought to be altered. I must again remind the Council of the conditions prevailing in Orissa and in many other parts of the country owing to the subdivision of proprietary rights The minute subdivisions which occur often make it extremely difficult to say what particular individual has the proprietary right in any particular bit of land. Cases are brought about this in the Collector's Land Registration Court. They go on appeal to the Commissioner and the Board and then they often come up again in the Civil Courts with appeals to the High Court and sometimes to the Privy Council. The result is that the question of the proprietorship of a particular bit of land is often a matter of doubt for several years. During that period great pressure is brought to bear on the raiyats by the contending parties that one of those parties should be recognised as the landlord. It may, of course, be said that the raiyat ought to say, "I do not know which of you is my landlord. I will deposit my rent in Court and leave the Courts to decide to whom it is due," but unfortunately very few raiyats in this country have sufficient intelligence or independence to take an action of this kind. Usually the raiyat is forced by pressure in his village and often by physical force to pay his rent to one or other of the contending parties. The result is that he must deny that any of the other contending parties is his landlord, because a raiyat is too poor to be able to enjoy the luxury of paying his rent twice over. Now if it turned out in the end after many years of litigation that the raiyat had paid his rent to the wrong man he would be liable, under the Hon'ble Member's amendment, to ejectment for disclaiming his landlord's title I submit that this penalty for the raiyat's lack of judgment or foresight in foreseeing the end of litigation, with which he is not personally concerned in any way, is much too severe. To tell a raiyat that he is to lose his holding is very much the same as telling him that he must be hanged by the neck until he is dead. Clause 250 of this Bill, which is a copy of section 186A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, provides that when a tenant has renounced his character as tenant of the landlord by setting up without reasonable or probable cause title in a third person or himself, the Court may pass a decree in favour of the landlord for such amount of damages not exceeding ten times the amount of the rent payable by the tenant as it may consider to be just. I submit that this is a sufficiently severe penalty for what is after all in most cases merely a lack of judgment on the part of the raiyat, and perhaps not even that, and that this Council would not be justified in inflicting the very severe penalty proposed by the Hon'ble Member."

The motion was then put and lost.

76. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the word "or" be omitted at the end of clause 24 (a) and inserted at the end of clause 24 (b), and that after clause 24 (b) the following be added as sub-clause (c), namely:—

"(c) that he has failed to pay rent either wholly or partly for three successive years."

He said:—

"Under section 78 of Act X of 1859 a landlord could sue for ejectment and cancelment of lease and claim arrears of rent in one suit. The result of this wholesome provision was that the tenants, whenever they were sued for arrears and ejectment, paid up the arrears to avoid the risk of ejectment without waiting for process of execution. The extension of the provision of section 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* in 1891 practically repealed this provision of Act X, although that Act remained in force by virtue of section 2 of the Bengal Tenancy Act * It is one of the grievances of the landlords that the Bengal Tenancy Act provisions have deprived them of advantages which the old law had conferred upon them The result is that the landlords become burdened with heavy lists of arrears The cost of collection is estimated at 16 per cent. and of litigation at 2 per cent by Mr Maddox, who estimates that, in a vast majority of cases, the net collections should not be less than 80 per cent. of the mufassil demand and that 70 per cent. at the minimum comes to the proprietor's pocket (vide Volume I, page 245). The margin of profit left to them after paying the Government revenue varies from 40 to 50 per cent. So it can well be imagined what comes to the proprietor's pocket after all these expenses are deducted. Hence it is that a large number of estates fall into arrears every kist and are brought to sale It is then that the landlords are at their wit's end to pay them up. They have to borrow at large rates of interest and have to pay heavy penalties to save their estates from being sold up, while the sunset law hangs like Democle's sword over the heads of landlords, no measures have been provided in the Bill to afford facilities for prompt collection of their rents. The remedy provided is cumbrous and they have to wait long till the arrears are realized through Court. Even then all the money paid is not realized. There are several items of expenditure incidental to litigation which cannot be recovered from the tenants. Under such circumstances it would only be fair that the failure to pay should be made a ground of ejectment as in the old law. There is no danger of the tenants being subjected to ejectment Even when the old law was in force there were hardly any ejectments, if at all, on this ground. Besides, under the present law (section 68) even a non-occupancy-raiyat cannot be summarily ejected, although failure to pay arrears is one of the grounds of ejectment in their case. They cannot be ejected if they pay the decretal amount within 15 days. I have proposed in the case of an occupancy-raiyat that he will not be ejected, if he pays the decretal amount within thirty days. While the Government is anxious to protect the rights of the tenants, it is only fair to ask in return that the landlord's interest, which is only closely bound up with the interest of Government in the prompt realization of its demand, should be safeguarded."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"We have been told that the Bengal Tenancy Act* has been here for so many years and that it has stood the test for so many years, It sounds like this, "I say that section 78 of Act 10 of 1859 has worked satisfactorily for so many years. Why kill it as a reward for a thing that has worked satisfactorily and replace it by another because it is not wanted. We must do away with the old things and have new things. Then the very fact that this proposal comes from the zamindars, shows that they are not anxious to get rid of the raiyat. All that they have is an additional lever, a little more screw to waken up a raiyat to pay his debts. The Privy Council in one of their judgments said that the trouble begins with the decree-holder when he gets the decree. It is in execution of the decree that the judgment-debtor always has ample opportunities of evading the pursuit of the decree-holder. The work of execution in the matter of decrees is not exactly so easy as the work of the executioner. Secondly, Sir, all that is needed is, if the tenant understands that he can be evicted he will be driven to the necessity of borrowing money. The question really assumes this form. Money has to be got: the zamindar is in an impoverished condition, and then we see from statistics that he has to incur debts. The raiyat owes the money and the question is whether the zamindar

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

should incur debts or the raiyat should incur debts. If the raiyat finds he is in danger of eviction he raises the money and pays up. This is no hardship to the raiyat; it has worked satisfactorily; and then on the contrary the Government would not give the zamindar decree-holder any right over the land which he buys in execution of the land decrees, so he is naturally anxious that these holdings should not pass into other hands and the very fact that the zamindar does not want it but wants to add another remedy in the shape of ejectment shows that he finds difficulty in getting a satisfactory tenant Therefore while he is anxious to have the raiyat he is as anxious to have what has hitherto proved a very successful warning or threat. While it is necessary that the interests of the raiyat should be protected, it is also necessary that facilities should be given to the zamindar to collect his dues. After all the zamindar is certainly the best judge, he knows the difficulties much better than a Government official.

"On these grounds I think that this ought to be allowed."

The Hon'ble Babu BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"This is taking away from the occupancy-tenant a right which he possesses. If my friend's amendment is carried what is the effect? The effect will be that the occupancy-raiyat may be ejected when he has failed to pay rent either wholly or partly for three successive years. The zamindar has got the damage, provisionally 25 per cent He has got the right to sell up the holding in execution of his decree He has got certain specific provisions under which the occupancy-tenant may be ejected. If he also gets this, then I say that the occupancy-right becomes a mere name and practically no protection will be left to the tenant. So far as this right is concerned we have not had much difficulty in dealing with it in Bengal, and I do not suppose there will be much difficulty in Orissa. The zamindar has got powers enough to enforce payments of his rent

"I do submit that the Sunset law is a hard law so far as the zamindar is concerned Because he labours under a hardship, why should he try and impose a distinct hardship on a tenant and reduce the occupancy-right to a nullity by the production of a law which will be detrimental to the interests of the raiyat?"

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"The proposal of the Hon'ble Member is to make failure to pay rent either wholly or partly for three successive years a ground for the ejectment of an occupancy right. This introduces an entirely new principle in the Tenancy law of the Province, and I submit that no justification has been made out for it. The Hon'ble Mr. Das wants us to give the landlord the power to use what he calls a threat of ejectment but we all know that such threats have a way passing into action. This Bill, like the Bengal Tenancy Act,* provides ample means for a landlord to recover arrears of rent; and if the raiyat on being sued does not pay up the amount of the decree given against him, his holding can be sold up in execution of that decree. I submit that this provision is ample and that there are no grounds for allowing a landlord to eject his raiyat summarily, because he has not paid his rent for three years. Such cases, in my experience, are very rare and nearly always due to some special cause. I have known cases where a landlord declines to accept what the raiyat tenders because he considers it is not enough and because it is not convenient for him at once to put the raiyat into court. It would be very unfair in such a case to allow the landlord summarily to eject the raiyat at the end of three years. The landlord's duty in the case of recusant tenants who will not pay the rent demanded is to bring the matter before the proper Courts, and he has no right to bring pressure to bear on the tenant to pay up his demands by evicting him without first having recourse to the Courts for recovery of his rents. I would, therefore, ask the Council to reject this amendment."

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"The Hon'ble Mover tries to justify his proposal on the ground that the temporarily-settled proprietor in Orissa is in a worse position than the temporarily-settled proprietor of Bengal, that he has a smaller margin of profit and, therefore, requires more assistance in collecting rents. I may remind the Hon'ble Member that we have provided additional assistance to the temporarily-settled proprietors. The whole of the distraint chapter is in their favour. We have given the Orissa zamindar the right of private distraint which is not given to the zamindars of Bengal. This point appears to have been overlooked. I would also like to point out, so far as the proposal is based on the provisions of Act X of 1859, that the raiyat has had the benefit of the existing law on the subject for twenty years, and that even section 78 of Act X of 1859 gave the raiyat, who is being sued for ejectment for arrears of rent, the right of paying up the arrears within 15 days of the decree and thus saving himself from ejectment. If the Mover wanted to restore the provisions of Act X he ought to have added this proviso. He has not done so."

The Hon'ble Raja RAJENDRA NARAYEN BHANJA DEO said:—

"Sir, it is admitted that when Act X of 1859 was in force not much hardship was caused by this clause, and the Bengal Tenancy Act* as I have already stated was enacted with a view that it should apply to Bengal But, Sir, in a temporarily-settled area, at all events, some other facilities besides that which the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson stated ought to be given. This will only be a threat for the tenant to pay up, and I have made another amendment so that, if he pays within 30 days, he shall not be ejected. These are my reasons."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I think we had better leave out items 77 to 101, because they too are subject to Mr. McPherson's proposed alterations, and we can deal with them to morrow.

"We will now proceed with clause 34, amendment No 102"

Clause 34.

102. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "provided that such application is made after two years from the date of the decree" be added at the end of clause 34 (2).

He said:—

"A fair trial should be given to the improvements effected. In the absence of any provision limiting any time for making any application under this sub-clause, a bad tenant may turn up shortly after the order or decree and apply for its reconsideration."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPANDRA NATH BASU said:—

"I do not understand the meaning of this 'provided that such application is made after two years from the date of the decree.' Does the mover mean that this application can be made any time after two years, and that it is not to be made within two years?"

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said.—

"The section which we are now considering deals with the enhancement of rents of occupancy raiyats on the ground of a landlord's improvement. After dealing with the circumstances in which the Court can grant an enhancement, there is a further provision that a decree for enhancement will be liable to reconsideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce the estimated effect. The Hon'ble Member's amendment is designed to secure that an application for a revision of rent enhanced on the ground of landlord's improvement must be brought within two years of the date of the decree It is hardly necessary for me to point out how unfairly this proposal would operate in practice. A landlord makes an embankment or digs an irrigation channel; he then obtains an enhancement of rent to which his enterprise justly entitles him; but if he or his successor neglects to maintain the embankment or the irrigation channel, it is surely only fair that the raiyat should then be entitled to apply for a reduction of his rent. There is no reason why an enhancement which was granted on account of a specific improvement should continue to be paid after that improvement has been allowed to become useless, and it is only on condition of maintaining the improvement that the landlord is justified in levying the enhanced rent from the raiyat. Considerations of time have nothing whatever to do in the matter. Whether the improvement fails two years or ten years after it has been made, the raiyat is entitled to a reduction."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I think the intention of the amendment is misapprehended. The amendment is that the application must be made more than two years after."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR:—

"His next amendment is within three years."

The PRESIDENT —

"That is not under consideration

The Hon'ble MR KERR —

"I took both amendments to mean the same thing."

The PRESIDENT.—

"One amendment is 'after two years' and the other 'within three years.' I understand the point of the amendment is that it cannot be made until after two years"

The Hon'ble MR. KERR:—

"That means that during the first two years he must go on paying the enhanced rent. The Court gives a decree for enhanced rent when the landlord makes an improvement. The landlord takes no steps to maintain the improvement, but allows it to go into disrepair, it is no good to anybody, and the mover says that for two years in any case the raiyat must go on paying rent and after that go to the Court. In the meantime he has been paying the enhanced rent for which he has nothing in return. I see no logic or justice in that"

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"There has been some misconception about this. The object of the motion is that some time should be given to see the effects or the benefits of the improvement Of course the Hon'ble Member, Mr. Kerr, says if a landlord does not maintain or keep up the improvement, it is not at all fair that he should have the enhanced rate of rent. That is simply justice. But then the question is this There may be improvements of such a nature that the benefits of the improvement would not be perceivable until some time after. Then the question is whether as soon as improvements are introduced and the benefits are not apparent on the surface—so far as the cultivator goes—a man should not be allowed to come in at once and say you may have made that embankment but I have not received the benefit of it For instance, there is an embankment saving him from inundation, but there have been no floods. The man may turn round and say, 'I did not require the embankment this year and why should I pay for it' The motion is that sufficient opportunity should be given and sufficient time to elapse.

"Then we must take into consideration the question of a decree under this section He goes to the Court and gets a decree for ejectment, and the Court on the materials before it decrees an enhancement This section provides that he can go and ask for a review of that decree. Well, we have first of all to start with to show on what materials the Court came to the decision that the man ought to pay the enhanced rate. Then the man comes round at once after 15 days or a month and asks for a review. There is nothing to prevent him from doing that on the wording as it stands in this clause. All that the motion means is that the decree once passed to that effect, the man should not be allowed to come and petition for a review or a reconsideration of the decree till two years have elapsed from the date of that decree. It only means that once the Court has given a decree there can be no provision, leaving the period of selection to the choice of the raiyat at any time to move the Court to set aside that decree."

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said:—

"May I put a concrete case? The Hon'ble Mr. Das has spoken of the case of an embankment

"The Hon'ble Mr. Das said.—" I did not confine my remarks only to a case of embankment."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson.—Since the Hon'ble Member has mentioned the case of an embankment, let us take that case An embankment has been put up by a landlord to protect the land of his tenant. He gets a decree in Court for enhancement of rent on account of the embankment Let us suppose that one month after the decree a flood comes down and sweeps away the embankment The zamindar takes no action for one year or eighteen months to restore the embankment or secure the land. Is the tenant to be debarred for two whole years from going to the Court and saying his embankment has been swept away and I am getting no advantage, from it. Why should I pay the enhanced rent?'. The question ought to be considered with reference to concrete case and not on purely theoretical grounds.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

103. If motion No. 102 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "within three years from the date of the decree" be added at the end of clause 34 (2).

Clause 41.

104. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that clause 41 be omitted.

He said:—

"This commutation clause is altogether unsuited to the condition of Orissa. The combination of various causes and circumstances, existing from a very remote period, has served to bring about the system of paying rent in kind which has contributed largely to the convenience and comfort both of the landlord and the tenant. To disturb such a system by legislation would be an arbitrary interference with economic laws, and their effect would be anything but satisfactory. The main plea advanced is that the raiyat is down-trodden, and facility should be afforded to him to obtain a comfortable living. He does not feel any hardship to pay the produce rent; he pays that rent in accordance with the voluntary agreement entered into either by himself or his ancestors, keeping in view the productive powers of the land, his convenience and the profit that will accrue to him, keeping also in view the friendly assistance which he may expect to get from his landlord in times of stress and strain. The landlord on the other hand has also considered the character and circumstances of the raiyat, his means of paying the produce-rent and the quantity that he will receive for the maintenance of himself and his family. If the raiyat is unable to give the produce-rent in times of scarcity and distress, the landlord generally awaits the return of a prosperous season to enable him to pay up his arrears. Thus there is harmony and concord in their mutual relations. Then why disturb such peace and harmony with a view to do good to the raiyat alone, for commutation means the reduction of the income of the landlord, though this will not help him as in times of scarcity, he will not have the wherewithal to pay his money rent, and the consequence will be that in the end he will be sold out of his holding. Where is the benefit to the tenant? It would be wise not to disturb such friendly feeling which is so necessary for the well-being of both the landlord and the tenant, and with that end in view I have moved the omission of these clauses."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"I don't know if my friend knows the condition of things that prevail in Orissa. The corresponding section to the Bengal Act is 40, and those without experience of the collection of rents in Bengal will at once appreciate the difficulties that always attend collection of rent in kind.

"In the first place there is the zamindar's amlahs who make their appraisement, and sometimes the Nazir of the Collector's Court is brought in to make the appraisements when the crop is on the field, and disputes always arise when a suit is brought for realisation of rent. The tenant may always say that the appraisement is too high There is a large amount of litigation that goes on, because the landlord never feels safe as to whether he has got a fair share and the tenant is apprehensive that more than a fair share is going to the landlord. I don't see that much harm has ensued from the exemption of section 40, and I for one will support the extension of the principle to Orissa. I don't know the actual state of things there; but on the question of principle, and seeing its operation in Bengal, I think it fair both to the landlord and tenant, especially in cases where disputes are very frequent as regards the amount of appraisement, the varying crops and other things, I think that some safeguard should be introduced."

The Hon'ble MR DAS said —

"I don't think it is necessary for me to support the motion; at the same time I see danger ahead. I heard the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu say that he was anxious that the principle in its entirety should be extended to Orissa, because it is a principle which is welcomed and, within his knowledge, has worked satisfactorily, preventing the disputes Therefore it should be extended, as a matter of fact, to Orissa But as a matter of fact we have nothing to do with principles only which belong to Bengal We are dealing with a state of things as regards Orissa I remember the other day the Hon'ble Maharaja Bahadur of Burdwan say that he had heard the song of the Dying Swan, and all that I can now say is that Bengal has given us enough of principle, and, methinks, I hear to day the groan of the dying tiger, man eater of Bengal.

"Well, I think, Sir, that I have nothing to say as the section stands. There are further concessions which are being very considerately made by the promoters of the Bill, considering the condition of Orissa, and, therefore, in the apprehension that the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu may give us all the principles of Bengal, I may say that I am not prepared to congratulate myself or to thank him for his liberality."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said.—

"I am afraid, Sir, that Government cannot accept the amendment that the provisions for commutation of produce rents should be omitted from this Bill. It has long been recognised that the system of produce rents is liable to great abuse, and that some remedy must be found enabling both landlords and tenants to commute the produce rents to cash, if they desire to do so. The Hon'ble Member in support of his amendment says that his object is to maintain friendly relations between the landlords and tenants, but experience shows that one of the main obstacles to the continuance of these friendly feelings is the existence of the system of produce rents. In a very great number of cases, as the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has pointed out, the produce rent is not convenient to the landlord himself It is true that the produce rent taken from the raiyat is in most cases higher than he would pay if he were allowed to pay in cash, but the collection of produce rents gives such opportunities for peculation and swindling to the agents of the landlords, that many landlords often find it advisable in their own interest to commute produce rents into cash. Similar considerations apply in the case of the raiyats. It is of course not desirable that commutation should be granted as a matter of course in all cases, but section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* provides that the officer to whom an application for commutation has been made shall consider whether under all the circumstances of the case it is reasonable to grant it In clause 41 of this Bill we have gone a good deal further than the Bengal Tenancy Act,* and specified very definitely certain cases in which the Revenue officer is required to consider very carefully whether he should allow the application for commutation or not. But this is a very different matter from disallowing all applications for commutation, which is the effect the proposed omission would have.

I think, Sir, that the omission from a Tenancy Law of all provision for the commutation of produce rents would make that law a very imperfect one, and I would therefore recommend that this motion should be rejected.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn.—

105. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that clause 41 be omitted.

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I think I will ask the Hon'ble Member to move amendment No. 107 first, because it deals with clause 41 (1)."

107. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "for half the area of the holding" be added at the end of clause 41 (1).

He said:—

"It would be advantageous both to the landlord and to the tenants if the area of the holding be protected from commutation The zamindars specially will be assured of the quantity of paddy for their support. When there is a total failure of crops, the tenants will have to pay rent only for half the holding. That is admittedly frequent in Orissa With these few words I beg to put my motion."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"I submit that it would be very undesirable to limit the operation of clause 41 in the manner proposed by the Hon'ble Member. I have already explained to the Council that there are ample provisions in the clause as it stands, enabling and requiring officers trying commutation cases to consider very carefully whether the application should be granted or not. If it is found that on the whole the application ought to be granted, it would only be causing unnecessary trouble and confusion to restrict this application to half a holding. Produce rents are difficult enough to collect in any case, and if they are to be collected for petty areas, I imagine that most landlords in their own interests would say that it was not worthwhile to maintain them. The point to be looked at is whether commutation should be allowed at all; and if it is to be allowed, it is much better that it should be allowed in full rather than that a part of a holding should still be kept under the troublesome system of produce rent. I therefore oppose this amendment

The motion was then put and lost.

106. The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR UD-DIN moved that clause 41 (2) (ii) be omitted.

He said:—

Your Honour, I propose that clause 2 of section 41, sub-clause (2) be omitted. In the Bengal Tenancy Act* as originally passed this power was not given to the Settlement Officer. It was in the year 1907 that this amendment was made in the Bengal Tenancy Act.* Now within the last few years we had sufficient experience of the working of the Settlement Officers in commutation proceedings, and the experience which I had on account of my appearing sometimes for the tenants and sometimes for the landlords in commutation proceedings at the last stage of appeal, has obliged me to bring this motion. In Bihar, these commutation proceedings done by the Settlement Officer have not been received with any amount of satisfaction either by the landlord or by the tenants. Now one of the difficulties which has generally been felt in appeal is that after these Assistant Settlement Officers have commuted rents, appeals are filed and appeals are heard some time after the camps of these officers are removed to other places in other districts. If on appeal it is found necessary to remand the case for further inquiry, it is made over to some subordinate officer present in the district during some other works, and this is done only in very rare and exceptional cases, and the result is that the appellate court cannot remand the case, and upon the materials however insufficient they may be on record the appeals are disposed of. Then again these Settlement Officers generally go by the old routine, they disbelieve collection papers produced by the zamindars, they disbelieve receipts produced by the tenants, they also do not attach any value to the returns filed by the zamindars or tenants. They record evidence of two or three men on each side, hear arguments, then go out to make a local inspection of the fields generally, rather mostly at a time when there are no crops standing on the lands, prepare classification of bhaoli lands by standing on a few alangs only, find out the rentals' from survey record of rights of same nakdi lands in that village or in the vicinity and on his sweet will without any evidence from any party styles those nakdi lands as similar in quality with bhaoli lands under commutation, and it is upon the basis of this classification that rents have been commuted in a very large majority of cases. The number of cases in the hands of these Settlement Officers, the manifold work which they have to do, the amount of of work which they are required to show to their superior officer, their stay in the camp for a very short and limited period, compel these officers to dispose of such important things like commutation proceedings in a very unsatisfactory way. I have come to know of good many instances when the parties or their legal agents were unaware of classification of the bhaoli lands, and the selection of a few plots of nakdi lands on the ground of their being similar in quality and description with bhaoli lands even up to the time that the judgment was delivered. The parties are never given any opportunity of scrutinizing the classification of bhaoli lands on the statement of which they prepare similar nakdi lands. In appeal the appellate court turns round and says: "My Settlement Officer has selected such lands as being of similar description and quality. How can you show me that it is incorrect." As the matter stands we can never succeed on this point. I ask you, Sir, is this the fair way of proceeding with commutation cases? Is this proceeding which makes a permanent change from bhaoli into nakdi so lightly to be treated?

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

The result of this unsatisfactory method of doing these commutations proceedings has been in some cases very hard upon the landlords, and in others upon the tenants. The proceedings have created much dissatisfaction in Bihar. I am unaware of Bengal; how it has worked there, it is for the members from Bengal to say.

The experience which I gathered in Bihar about these commutation proceedings done by the Settlement Officers has compelled me to bring up this amendment, and I hope this Council will pause to consider over the matter and decide the reasonableness or otherwise of my motion. Unfortunately I could not get sufficient time, otherwise I should have produced certified copies of judgments in commutation cases passed by these Assistant Settlement Officers at the first stage as well as at the appellate stage.

With these few words I propose my amendment that clause 41(2) (ii) be omitted.

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885

The Hon'ble KHAN BAHADUR MAULVI SARFARAZ HUSAIN KHAN said :—

I rise, Sir, to support the amendment just now moved by my hon'ble friend, Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din. All that I can say about this is, that the proceedings of these Revenue officers have created a general dissatisfaction throughout Bihar, and I do not see any reason why this power should be given to them. With these words, I beg to support my hon'ble friend's amendment.

The Hon'ble MR D. J. MACPHERSON said :—

The Hon'ble Mover of this amendment takes exception to the power to commute rents being vested in Settlement Officers. He has no objection to these powers being vested in Collectors, Subdivisional Officers or any other officers specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government. I may inform the Council that both as Commissioner of a Division and as member of the Board of Revenue, I have had to deal with a great many commutation cases that have come before me on appeal both from Settlement Officers and from Collectors and Subdivisional Officers, and I have no hesitation in assuring the Council that the data and the results of inquiries which Settlement Officers have put on record are much wider in scope and much more reliable and valuable in enabling a conclusion to be come to as to the fairness of the rent commuted than any that I have seen from a Collector or Subdivisional Officer.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"It is very difficult to support the amendment after what has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Macpherson. I have some experience of commutation proceedings, and I feel no hesitation in supporting my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Fakhr-ud-din's amendment. It is quite possible, as the Hon'ble Mr. Macpherson says, that the records kept by the Collector or the Subdivisional Officer are not so very full as those kept by the Settlement Officer, but I do not think that he will deny that these Settlement Officers do not command the same degree of confidence as the Collector or Subdivisional Officer does, and probably because the Collector or Subdivisional Officer thinks that he has the confidence of the parties before him, and that more or less his decisions are accepted, he is careless in keeping the records and they are not kept so carefully as they would otherwise be if he had to deal with these cases in a personal capacity. I have always felt that both the tenants and the landlords concerned have reposed greater confidence in the Collector or the Subdivisional Officer in dealing with matters of this kind. This innovation as my friend will bear in mind was introduced in 1907, in the Bengal Council when many of us then in the Council opposed the change on the ground that the change though probably would facilitate the commutations, would not have the same effect as the older procedure, and I am bound to say that our fears have not been dispelled. On the contrary our apprehensions have been strengthened, and as this is going to be introduced into Orissa, I believe that the safeguards which surrounded the provision in Bengal, ought at least to be introduced into Orissa, until further experience has been gained."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"I submit, Sir, that the effect of the Hon'ble Member's motion would be to bar from the trial of applications for commutation of produce rents the very officers who are most qualified to carry them out, that is, officers engaged in the preparation of a record-of-rights. It is hardly necessary for me to say that an officer who has spent a whole camping season, often from November to July in an area, has much better opportunities for gauging the value of the lands and the amount which they are able to pay than the Collectors or the Subdivisional Officers to whom applications for commutation are only made in isolated cases. A Settlement Officer or an Assistant Settlement Officer makes it his business to find out all he can about the different classes of land and he knows to what lands the land in the commutation suit corresponds and what is the fair cash rent paid for such classes of land. Under the amendment proposed such officers would be unable to carry out a commutation which would be eminently fair to both landlord and tenant. I submit that it would be a most serious matter to take away commutation proceedings from those officers who are best qualified to deal with them and insist on their being made over to officers whose opportunities for doing justice in this difficult matter are considerably less

"The Hon'ble Mover of the amendment has said that in Bihar the decisions in commutation cases are in some cases hard on the tenants and in others are very hard on the landlords When we got a complaint of this kind, I think we may take it that the general result is fairly satisfactory. Moreover, I would point out that even if the amendment were carried it would be quite useless, as the local Government could under clause iii) appoint any officer to try these commutation proceedings and the very first officer that the local Government would appoint under this provision would be a Settlement Officer or an Assistant Settlement Officer."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said:—

"Your Honour, the Hon'ble Mr Kerr says that the Assistant Settlement Officer has got the best experience inasmuch as he has got a lot of time in camp, but I must bring to the notice of the Council that these commutation applications are disposed of by officers other than the Attestation Officer or the khanapuri officers. Now, one officer is present at the time of the khanapuri, a second is present at the time of attestation, and the third disposes of objections under section 103A of Bengal Tenancy Act Then these applications are filed before a special officer who either sits at the Sadar or in any head-quarters station and records the evidence, and after recording the evidence he hears argument and either before or after hearing argument he makes a local inspection He goes and stops there for a few hours and cannot find sufficient time to make an inspection of the lands under commutation. In many instances, I know, complaints have been made that the Assistant Settlement Officer stopped there for one or two hours and had only a cursory glance at the fields. He prepares a table and places some lands in the first class, some in the second class and some in third class. He comes back and writes out a judgment. I beg to ask, Sir, if this is the proper way of doing these things. Now, you are going to commute rents for ever. The collection papers have been discarded. The proper thing would have been to go and make a thorough inquiry, look to the lands and prepare a classification of all the bhaoli lands, prepare a table of similar nakdi lands and find the parties to adduce evidence to prove that the classification and the table are inaccurate and in what particulars they are inaccurate He cannot get the knowledge of the locality by paying a flying visit to it for a few hours, and as he has to dispose of so many cases as an Assistant Settlement Officer, he cannot be expected to attend to all these matters. If the Hon'ble Member of the Board of Revenue would look at the number of cases these officers have to dispose of within a short time, he would be convinced that as a matter of fact it is impossible for Assistant Settlement Officers to give greater time in making inquiries in the mufassal. So far as the Deputy Collectors are concerned, of course, I am not aware in how many cases out of 100 their reports have been unsatisfactory I admit, however, that on account of the incompetency of a particular officer, or on account of the want of proper materials before the final publication of record-of-rights, commutation proceedings might have been done unsatisfactorily by Deputy Collectors. But we ought not to overlook that the Assistant Settlement Officer has got this advantage, that he is in possession of the record-of-rights So far as nakdi lands in the village and other neighbouring villages are concerned, the Assistant Settlement Officers take the rental from the record-of-rights, while the Deputy Collectors had to go into detailed evidence on this point before the preparation of record-of-rights. You have to compare the work of a Deputy Collector with the work of an Assistant Settlement Officer done at a time when both the officers have an equal and similar advantage of the record-of-rights I believe, Sir, commutation cases will be more satisfactorily disposed of by the Deputy Collectors in those areas where there have been final publication of the record-of-rights. I have known instances where anxiety has been shown by the landlords that commutation cases should not be allowed to proceed before the Assistant Settlement Officer; and in order to gain their object, all sorts of obstacles have been thrown to the continuance and maintainability of commutation applications. I forgot to point out one important fact to the Council: The khanapuri amin has to enter the description of land in the khasra at the time when the khasra is prepared. If at that particular time he finds paddy in any particular land, he will describe it as dhanhar; if he finds any particular land sown with rabi, he will describe it as bheet; if he finds any land uncultivated or unsown at the time, he will write it as parti judeed Now these Settlement Officers work upon these descriptions of bhaoli lands in commutation proceedings In some of the commutation proceedings they have been forced to admit that the description as given in the record-of-rights was inaccurate. Does it not at once convince the members of this Council how thorough and careful an inquiry is needed at the time of the commutation proceedings

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr seems to think that as I have submitted to the Council that in some cases the result of commutation proceedings has been very hard upon the tenents, and in the other cases very hard upon the landlords, the general result should therefore be taken to be fairly satisfactory. I am not prepared to accept his conclusion as logically correct. It is on account of such logical conclusions that the Assistant Settlement Officers have not been able to do full justice in commutation proceedings I do not understand how the Hon'ble Member jumps to the conclusion that the proceeding has been fairly satisfactory. Wherever it has been hard upon the tenants, they have been ruined; wherever it has been hard upon the landlords, they have been ruined. I ask you, Sir, can it be called a fairly satisfactory proceeding. From what I have heard just now from the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, I find that the people of Bengal have shared the same fate as the people of Bihar, and I think this is the greater reason why such powers should not be conferred upon the Assistant Settlement Officers under this Bill.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

108. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that clause 41 (4) (a) be omitted.

109 The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din moved that the following words be added at the end of clause 41 (4) a), namely :—

" Provided that such average rent shall not be the sole basis upon which the commutation of the rent shall be calculated "

"Your Honour, this amendment relates to clause 41, sub clause 4), clause (a) I wish to add to it "provided that such average rent shall not be the sole basis upon which the commutation of the rents shall be calculated." I am aware of the meaning of this clause (a) as it stands in the Bill, and it has been taken word for word from the Bengal Tenancy Act,* and means that in commutation proceedings, the officer shall have regard to the average money rents payable by an occupancy raiyat for lands of a similar description. The clause does not mean that the officer should be bound to fix the same rents which he finds as the average money rent payable for similar lands in the vicinity, but then, inasmuch as there was no express provision, generally these officers make the average money rent as the sole basis for commutation without consideration to the fact that such nakdi rents were fixed at what time and under what peculiar circumstances There would be no enhancement in the next fifteen years upon the commuted rents except on the ground of a registered improvement than the officers should have regard to the rise in market prices of staple food crops and the increase of productive power of the soil, etc. Now this clause was inserted in the Bengal Tenancy Act,* that it may give a data to the officer to come to the right conclusion as to what should be the fair rate for the bhaoli lands It was never intended that it should be the sole basis for fixing bhaoli lands Inasmuch as my bitter experience is that clause has been misunderstood by some of the officers, and specially some of the settlement officers, therefore I propose this amendment. Now if this is to be inserted, there would be no danger of any misapprehension on the part of these officers, and would never take this average money rent only as the sole basis. Of course in some cases it is quite possible that they may fix the same rent, and in some cases higher rent and in some cases lower rent, and to prevent this, I suggest this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said.—

" The sub-clause which we are now considering, reads like this—

" In making the determination, the officer shall have regard to (a), b), (c), (d) and (e)"—five things. The Hon'ble Member wants us to add a proviso that he shall not only have regard to one of these five things. I think that this is a quite unnecessary provision. It is obvious from the wording of the section that the average money rent paid by occupancy raiyats for lands of a similar description is not to be the only circumstance on which commutation is to be calculated. But I submit that as legislators we should make ourselves ridiculous if we lay down a proviso of the nature suggested by the Hon'ble Member. If it is the case that officers misunderstand the provision of this clause at present and only have regard to (a), instead of looking also to the other provisions, then the Appellate Court will keep them right. A compilation has been made of orders of the Appellate Courts under section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act,* and I think I am right in saying that this particular point has never come up That being so, I submit that no case has been made out for adding these superfluous words to sub-clause (4) of clause 41."

* i e., Act VIII of 1885

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said :—

"Sir, I myself admit that as a matter of fact these words will be superfluous; I never said that the section meant to lay down a counter-proposition of law; but then my proposal to add these word is based simply upon the experience which I have gained of the misapprehensions of these officers."

The motion was then put and lost.

110. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din moved that the word "and" be omitted in line 3 of clause 41 (4) (d) and the following be added after clause 41 (4) (e), namely :—

"(f) any crop-cutting experiments that may have been held on the lands sought to be commuted, and

"(g) the result of any local inquiry that may have been made in regard to the kind and amount of produce in the lands sought to be commuted"

He said.—

"Your Honour, in clause 41, sub-section (4) we have got (a) (b) (c) (d) (e). There is no provision for crop cutting experiments So far as sub-clause (a) is concerned the average money rent is taken into consideration by taking the rent of lands of similar description and of similar advantages. With regard to clause (b), that depends either upon the production of collection papers by the landlord or upon the production of rent receipts by the tenants. But our experience is that this clause is very rarely acted upon. The collection papers are disbelieved, the rent receipts are also disbelieved and, therefore, the officer has got no materials before him to know what was the actual produce of the land within the ten preceding years or within a shorter period. Then so far as (c) (d) and (e) are concerned, they relate to charges incurred by landlords in irrigation, in improvements effected by the landlords and also on the rules laid down in section 34 regarding enhancement of rent and so forth. Now, there is no provision for crop-cutting experiments. No doubt crop cutting experiments, if made in a particular year, should not be the sole guide in fixing the rent, but at least it may give some idea to the Settlement Officer to come to a conclusion as to what would be a fair rent for the lands An experiment of this kind will show the productive prove of the soil, nature of the produce, the advantages and disadvantages of irrigation in that particular year, and all these will prove the fair rent which would be payable for such lands. Therefore I move, Sir, that the two clauses (f) and (g) which stand in amendment No. 110 may be added to sub-clauses (a) (b) (c) (d) and (e) in clause 41."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"As was the case in regard to the former proposal of the Hon'ble Member I submit that the present proposals are wholly unnecessary. Sub-clause (b) of this sub-section, as the Hon'ble Member has pointed out, provides that one of the matters to be looked to in commutation proceedings is the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years, or during any shorter period for which evidence may be available Any officer of average intelligence who set out to ascertain the average value of the rent received by the landlord, would naturally make use of any crop cutting experiments that might have been held, or of any local inquires that might have been made, in calculating the average value of the rent actually received. Of course crop-cutting experiments are not all of equal value; a great many of them are pure rubbish and the officer has to put them aside. But if any crop cutting experiments of any value have been made, the Council may rest assured that due regard will be had to them. Then again, as to local enquiries, I do not quite understand to what local enquires the commutation officer is to pay attention.

"It is by no means clear whether the result of any local inquiry could be made evidence under the Evidence Act,* but, however this may be, Sir, I submit we should be doing wrong in providing in these clauses too closely for the nature of the evidence which the commutation officer should take into account. He would take into account all the trustworthy evidence he could find he always makes a local inquiry, and always finds out everything that is possible He finds a great deal of information which is of no use to him, and other information which is of use to him, and I think we may safely trust him to do his best to ascertain the average value of the rent received, and it would be undesirable to tie his hands as to the exact nature of the evidence on which he is to act"

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR UD-DIN said:—

"In sub-clause (b) of section 41, of clause 1, the actual amount of the produce or the value thereof received by the landlord—will be proved before the officer who commutes rents, either by the production of papers or other evidence, but what is wanted is that there ought to be some crop-cutting experiment which will induce the officer at least to believe or disbelieve the papers My hon'ble friend, Mr Kerr, says that a great many crop-cutting experiment has been proved to be rubbish, but I do not see why"

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"The Hon'ble Member's proposal is, any crop-cutting experiment that may have been held, not that will be held."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said:—

"I never meant that these experiments should be held by somebody else or that the enquiry might be held by somebody else. The officer who is going to commute rents may just go and have a crop-cutting experiment, or he may just depute any subordinate officer for the crop-cutting experiment under his own direct supervision. That may be left to his option. Then he will be in a position to judge whether the figures shown in the collection papers by the landlords or the figures shown in the receipt filed by the tenants are or are not acceptable."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

111 If motion No 105 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "and is dependent for livelihood upon the share of the produce payable as rent" in lines 2, 3 and 4 of clause 41 (6) (i) be omitted.

112 If motions Nos. 105 or 111 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "or" be substituted for the word "and" in line 2 of clause 41 (6) (i).

113. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the word 'or" be omitted at the end of clause 41 (6) (i) and inserted at the end of clause 41 (6) (ii), and the following be added after clause 41 (6) (ii), namely:—

* i.e., Act I of 1872

"(iii) the commutation will cause hardship on the landlord, or (iv) the rent in kind agreed upon does not exceed one-fourth of the gross produce of the holding."

He said:—

I do not wish to press for clause (iii), but only clause (iv) which runs thus:—

"the rent in kind agreed upon does not exceed one-fourth of the gross produce of the holding."

With Your Honour's permission I wish to withdraw clause (iii).

By leave of the President, clause (iii) was accordingly withdrawn.

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said.—

If this clause (iv) is introduced it will be most advantageous, both to the landlord and to the tenant. Clause 71 provides that, legally, about half of the produce can be taken by the landlord, whereas I propose here only one-fourth; and so it is a benefit to the tenant who will not have to pay half of this produce. As far as the landlord is concerned, the landlord will get one-fourth of the paddy produce every year, he will increase or decrease according to the produce of the holding. So it is most advantageous both to the landlord and to the tenant, and, as I have already said, clause 71 allows half of the produce. I do not think the Hon'ble Member can object to this, but if there be any mistake—I have withdrawn those two, and probably this clause may not read well with sub-clause (5) of clause 41, but if the Hon'ble Member accepts this, then to any technical amendment he may make I will have no objection."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"I am unable to advise the Council to accept this proposal of the Hon'ble Member, although I recognize that he has gone a good way to meet our wishes in withdrawing the motion which stands in his name in the matter of produce-rent. But this proposal about commutation being refused in cases where rent in kind does not exceed one-fourth of the gross produce of the holding, seems to me to introduce an undesirable complication into the law relating to commutation. There are very few cases now where produce-rents are less than half the gross produce of the holding, and if there are any cases where the proportion is so low as one-fourth, I think it would be better for the landlord to agree to commutation and receive a fair rent in cash. From the tenant's point of view, if the tenant is so happy in paying his one-fourth share as I understand the Hon'ble Member thinks he is, then he will not apply for commutation, and the question will not arise. As I have already said, the essential point to be looked at is whether commutation ought to be allowed in the broad interests of the landlords and of the tenants. Where commutation is allowed it should be allowed in full, whatever the share of the produce actually paid may be, and the officer entrusted with carrying out the work should be given the fullest freedom of action, to commute in a fair and proper manner. I think this amendment is unnecessary, and would have very little practical result in fact. The results it would have would be confusing and troublesome. I must therefore oppose it."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said.—

"There is only one point I should like to bring to the notice of the Council. I understand that the object of the Hon'ble Mover is to ensure that the landlord shall receive a certain portion of his rent in grain, because it is convenient for him to receive it in that form. I should like him to bear in mind in this connection that most of the produce-rents now realized in Orissa are derived from nij-jote and nij chas lands. In this Act we propose to transfer about one lakh of acres from the category of nij-chas to the category of nij-jote and thereby avoid any difficulty the landlord may have in managing his private tands on the produce rent system. It seems to me we have thus done enough to meet the landlord's wishes in regard to receiving a portion of his rent in kind. At present the landlord's difficulty is that if he makes over his nij-chas lands to a raiyat for cultivation on the produce system, the raiyat is legally an occupancy raiyat, and it becomes possible for him to apply for commutation. But if we call these nij-chas lands nij jote, the landlord can make what arrangement he pleases with raiyats for the cultivation of the lands, and as the area in question is a very large area—it may be about one tenth of the cultivated land in Orissa—I do not think there is any real complaint worth going into, or any real obstacle to the landlord's receiving a portion of their rents in grain."

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said:—

"Sir, I wanted to propose with regard to nij-jote and nij-chas land about the condition of holding for a term of years or from year to year. Of course I have had no chance of making my proposal, but if that is retained I fear very few proprietors of Orissa will have their nij jote and nij chas lands. Apart from that, of course, this does not apply to nij-jote and nij chas. They will no doubt get some paddy from there, but what I say is that where one-fourth is taken by the landlord—and it is admitted that it is beneficial both to the landlords and to the tenants—I do not see why the Government should not accept it. It is a very reasonable proposal. Of course, the small landlords of Orissa require more paddy than money, so it would be a great advantage to them if they were paid in paddy. I beg to move that the rent in kind agreed upon does not exceed one-fourth of the gross produce of the holding."

The result of the division was, ayes 8, noes 27, and the motion was therefore lost.

114. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S Das moved that the word "public" be inserted before the word "religious" and also before the word "charitable" in line 1 of clause 41 (b) (ii).

He said :—

"Sir, considering the peculiar conditions of Orissa, some allowance has been made in reference to the provisions in the Bill with regard to commutation. I fully appreciate the intention of Government in doing it. I for myself do believe, Sir, that commutation works hardship in some cases, and it is in the interests of raiyats also that in some cases he should give produce. If an exception ought to be made, the exception ought to be made in favour of institutions charitable or religious, provided they are of a public nature. The result of this would be that—of course, everybody has a god, and even although they are not religious or charitable—no doubt there are charitable institutions and religious institutions that ought to include, I suppose, family religious institutions It will be very difficult to prove whether the produce is really used for religious or charitable purposes or not, and I should think the intention of the Legislature in introducing this to safeguard the interests of the raiyats will be avoided and defeated by leaving open a trap door for getting rid of it These are my reasons, and I submit that these words ought to be introduced so as to make it 'public religious' or 'public charitable' "

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said.—

"I beg to oppose this motion, Sir. It does not matter in the least whether the religious establishment belongs to the public—that is, whether the public have a right of supervision over it, or whether members of certain families have the right of management, so long as the produce rent is devoted to the purposes of the endowment. So long as that produce is consumed either for feeding Brahmins or beggars or poor people in one's own dwelling house or in a math, there is no difference in principle ; and there are family idols which are worshiped by the family, and money and articles of food are spent for the upkeep of the worship ; and at the same time there are nominally public endowments where the man in charge misappropriates the income of the establishment. The real object in this case is, if the produce is actually wanted for the thakur, or for feeding of the poor, or for any other charitable purpose, the Settlement Officer may refuse commutation, because it will injuriously affect the income of the man in charge of the establishment; and we know very well, Sir, that in Orissa there is a large member of so-called public endowments, but the mohants are greater sinners in respect of misappropriation of funds than the house-holders who really do spend all the income of property of debuttur in the upkeep and maintenance of their own family god. So I beg to submit that there is absolutely no reason why this amendment should be carried."

The Hon'ble BABU BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN said:—

"It seems to me, Sir, that the amendment has been proposed from a mistaken notion of the provision made in sub-clause (2) of clause 6, because there is religious or charitable endowment mentioned as a factor to be taken into account by the officer to decide whether commutation should be allowed or not. No matter whether the endowment, religious or charitable, is of a private nature or of a public nature, the officer has to determine whether the proceeds of the rent are used for charitable or religious purposes, and it is therefore absolutely unnecessary to enquire into the nature of the institution. The mere fact of appropriation of the proceeds of the land for religious or charitable purposes is all that would be necessary for the officer to inquire into in order to determine whether commutation should be allowed or not. The motion would introduce a perfectly unnecessary element, and therefore I go against it"

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said —

"Sir, with reference to the remarks which have fallen, I beg to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

115 The Hon'ble Mr. M. S Das to move that the words "and the effect of the commutation on the raiyat" be added after the figures "71" at the end of clause 41 (6) (ii).

116. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that for the words "he shall take into consideration the effect of commutation on the income of the landlord, unless such landlord has recovered rent in excess of the rate allowed by section 71" in lines 12, 13 and 14 of clause 41 (6), the following words be substituted.—

'he shall refuse the application, if the commutation is likely materially to affect the income of the landlord.'

He said —

Regard being had to the peculiar condition of Orissa zamindars, it is agreed that some concession should be made to the small landlords who, and to the small religious and charitable endowments which, require food-grains for their maintenance and for the offerings or for doles, and it is conceded that in such cases commutation should not be allowed It is clear from the Statement of Objects and Reasons, paragraph 25, that it is proposed that in such cases the application should be refused, but in the section itself as drafted the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill does not go far enough. He simply provides that the officer shall take into consideration the effect of commutation on the income of the landlord. I submit it is half-hearted concession What, if the officer though taking into consideration the facts you lay down and although satisfied that this will materially affect the income of the landlord concerned, still allows commutation? There is no bar to his doing so. You indicate the points which he should consider, but you do not go further and indicate in the section itself your intention that in case he finds what you lay down he shall refuse the application. If you wish to make a concession in favour of these people, do not leave their fate absolutely in the hands of these officers, but lay down the law clearly which they will follow."

The Hon'ble MR. SAIYID WASI AHMAD said:—

"I beg to support this amendment, which has been proposed by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. Experience has given us the idea that in Bihar especially there has been great hardship on the zamindars from commutation proceedings, and it invariably so happens that petty zemindars lose materially whenever a tenant applies for commutation of rent; and therefore it seems to me that, regard being had to the condition which is at present prevailing in Bihar particularly, this amendment ought to be accepted by the Members of this Council."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"Government is unable to accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Member. The circumstances which Government considers should be looked to in connection with the effect of commutation on the landlord have been clearly specified in the section as it now stands, and it would be quite impossible to limit the commutation officer's freedom of action in the manner proposed by the Hon'ble Member by requiring him to refuse the application in all cases in which commutation is likely materially to affect the income of the landlord. It is highly probable that the result of such a section would be to prevent commutation being resorted to at all, because there are very few cases in which commutation would not affect the income of the landlord one way or the other. In many cases, as I have explained, it might affect him for the better, because the landlord would get a certain cash rent instead of an uncertain produce-rent out of which he is often swindled by his amla. The Hon'ble Member will no doubt say that the word materially sufficiently limits the scope of his amendment, but I do not think that it does, because the word materially is one of those words about which the Courts take very different views. I would submit that the amendment goes too far in restricting the freedom of action of a commutation officer, and that it should be rejected.

The motion was then put and lost.

117. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "he shall refuse the application" be substituted for the words "he shall take into consideration the effect of commutation on the income of the landlord" in lines 12 and 13 of clause 41 (6).

He said:—

"Sir, as the clause stands at present, it gives too much discretion to the Revenue officer, and so I propose that he shall refuse application the when he thinks the income of the landlord is likely to be affected.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"It is the same motion, Sir, which has just been rejected by the Council. Though it is not the same in form, it is the same in effect."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"Yes, with certain modifications, it appears to be almost identical with the previous motion. Does the Hon'ble Mover wish it to be put again?"

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said:—

No, Sir, I do not wish to press it again.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

118. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "unless such landlord has recovered in excess of the rate allowed by section 71" in lines 13 and 14 of clauses 41 (6) be omitted.

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said:—

"I will have to say something later on with regard to section 71. For the present I have to point out that by the introduction of these words into the section, the concession proposed to be made to charitable institutions loses its graciousness, and, you punish the landlord for his past conduct. If he has realized rent in excess of what is considered reasonable, he must be shown no mercy, but his rent must be commuted to money-rent. I find that the Commissioner of the Orissa Division (see his opinion on page 4 of the Collection of Opinions) is prepared to omit these words. There is also a strong body of opinion in favour of the omission "

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"If it be the general wish of the Council that this amendment should be carried, I have no objection to offer on the part of Government. I do not myself attach very much importance to these words, though theoretically no doubt it may be argued that a landlord who disregards the provisions of the law relating to produce-rents, does not deserve to have any consideration shown to him when his tenants apply for commutation of produce-rents; but I do not think the retention of these words would have very much practical effect in making landlords conform to the provisions of section 71, and they might simply complicate commutation proceedings by creating a dispute as to whether or not the landlord had, as a matter of fact, conformed to the provisions of the law. The time of the commutation officer would then be taken up with settling an unprofitable dispute which could not have much result on the final decision of the case. If therefore the Council accepts this amendment, Government will not object.

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn—

119. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "unless such landlord has recovered rent in excess of the rate allowed by section 71" in lines 13 and 14 of clause 41(6) be omitted.

120. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud din moved that the words "in the Court of the District Judge" be substituted for the words "in the prescribed manner and to the prescribed officer" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 41 (8).

He said —

"I have put forward in this amendment the anxious desire of the general public that these commutation proceedings should be tried in Civil Courts Now, even if a right of appeal be given to the parties, from the orders passed either by the Revenue Officer or by the Sub-divisional Officer or the Collector to the District Judge, I think that will be meeting half way the desire of the general public. Here in this clause a right of appeal has been given, and it is laid down 'shall be subject to appeal in the prescribed manner and to the prescribed officer.' I believe the prescribed manner and the prescribed officer have been defined in clause 21 of the Bill. Now, if the right of appeal be given to the District Judge from the orders passed by the Revenue officers under sections 105 and 106, or the appeal lies before a special Judge—who would eventually be the District Judge with powers specially vested in that behalf, I think the general desire of the public shall be satisfied. With this idea in my mind, I move this amendment. If the appeal lies with the District Judge, the Settlement Officers, the Subdivisional Officers or the Deputy Collectors will know that their action will be scrutinized in the Civil Courts, and proceedings will be more satisfactory in that case."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"Government must oppose this motion. It has always been recognized that commutation is a revenue proceeding, and that Revenue Officers have much more facilities than the Civil Courts for dealing with applications for the commutation of produce rents. A District Judge dealing with appeals regarding commutation cases would be at an enormous disadvantage as compared with a Collector or Settlement Officer who is accustomed to deal with such cases. Government does not consider that the adoption of the amendment would in any way facilitate the fixing of fair and equitable rent in commutation proceedings It would only delay the proceedings, and the result would not be so satisfactory as at present, and I must therefore oppose it."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"I desire to add, Sir, that not only is the Hon'ble Member's proposal revolutionary as regards the rest of Bengal, it is also entirely unsuitable to Orissa, for Orissa is the one portion of the province in which the trial of rent suits is conducted by Revenue Officers."

The motion was then put and lost.

121. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the following be added at the end of clause 41 (8), namely :—

"(9) Nothing in this section shall apply to sanja rent."

He said :—

"Sanja rent being a fixed produce-rent, cannot be placed in the same category as other produce-rents."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"Government cannot accept the proposal that section 41 of the Act should not be applied in the case of sanja rents. These rents, as the Council probably know, are rents consisting of a certain definite amount of produce which must be paid whatever the outturn of the crop may be. Such rents are often the most unfair and unjust of all produce-rents, and they press specially heavily on the raiyats in bad years when crops are small and prices are high. Many cases are known in which the amount of crop actually reaped is less than the rent payable, and the raiyat then has to go out and buy the balance required to make up his rent, at prices far above the normal. I do not say of course that all landlords press for the collection of their sanja rents in full in a bad year, but a good many landlords certainly do, and it is against such action on the part of harsh and inconsiderate landlords that protection is specially necessary for the raiyats If commutation is not allowed, it would not be possible to extend any protection to such raiyats, and I must therefore oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble H. MR. MCPHERSON said:—

"I should like to supplement the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr's remarks by quoting from the Orissa Settlement Report the remarks of the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox on the subject of sanja rents. He says in paragraph 536:—

"Sanja means a contract, and is used of a rent in kind fixed at a certain quantity, payable good seasons or bad. It is very rare in both Cuttack and Balasore, but common throughout the Puri district. . . . .

In Cuttack and Puri the sanja varies from 1 to 2½ gannis per gunt, or say from three maunds to eight maunds per acre. The average is about six maunds to the acre, worth in a good year Rs. 6, and in a bad, about Rs. 9. It thus presses most heavily on the raiyat just when he is least able to afford it."

The cash equivalents would be considerably higher now. Having this description of the sanja produce-rent before it, the Council should, I think, reject this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 42.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

122. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that clause 42 be omitted.

Clause 46.

123. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that after clause 46 (d) the following be added, namely :—

"(e) on the ground that he has disclaimed the title of his landlord."

Clause 49.

124. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "on a lease" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 49 a) be omitted.

125. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "when they are held by a tenant on a lease for a term of years, or on a lease from year to year" in lines . to 3 of clause 49 (a) be omitted.

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said:—

"These words may imply that those proprietors only would be protected under this section who have taken the precaution of making a settlement on a written lease. But it is not clear whether the Hon'ble Member means 'on a written lease,' or is prepared to extend the privilege to oral leases also It appears that in Orissa the proprietors of nij jote lands had not taken that precaution which they should have taken. It would be a great hardship to them if the privilege is taken away from them

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said:—

"Sir, I beg to support the motion of the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. Though the condition has all along existed in Orissa ever since Act X of 1859 was introduced, it has never been seriously taken either by landlord or by tenant. A few landlords in Orissa put their private lands on leases for years or from year to year It was understood that the landlord had the right of immediate possession, and the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox admits it. If this clause is put in force, it will cause great hardship both to the landlords and to the tenants."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said.

"I cannot accept this amendment nor amendment No. 125, because the language of the Bill merely repeats the language of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the language of section 6 of Act X of 1859, and no reason has been shown why that language is unsuitable and requires amendment. The distinction between 'privileged land' and 'non-privileged land' is that if the proprietor takes the precaution of letting out the former on regular lease for a term of years or from year to year, he can bar the accrual of occupancy rights If there be no lease to refer to, it is impossible to say what were the circumstances or conditions under which the raiyat was allowed to cultivate the land, and it must be assumed that the land was let without any reservation against the accrual of occupancy rights. It is surely not too much to ask of a proprietor that he should take the small precaution of granting a lease, if he desires to preserve the privilege conferred by the Chapter." If you will turn to page 44 of Rampini's Bengal Tenancy Act you will see that a lease granted to a tenant need not in all cases be in writing. 'Parol leases,' it is said, 'are in most cases quite valid. In this Act, the word 'lease' is apparently used sometimes in the sense of a parol contract of letting.' Of course, if a landlord does not take the trouble to reduce a lease to writing, he takes a certain amount of risk.

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said :—

"Sir, reference has been made to Act X of 1859 and also to the Bengal Tenancy Act.* It has been said that these words are to be in those two Acts. But I think there was a statement made by the Hon'ble Member to my left to the effect that as a matter of fact the words simply are dead letters and are never acted upon The question is, Sir, that in cases like this experience should be the basis of legislation, and this enactment which has actually been proved to be a dead letter and to re-enact them would be like insuring a dead life. They have existed so long in the sense that a person exists in the grave. Any law which creates stringent relationship between two classes, who like the landlord or tenant has been in the relation of payer and payee, should be avoided, unless the absence of it has brought about a worse state of things. An enactment which has been in force for a long time but has never been acted upon—if that enactment is accentuated by legislation, the result would be these people, through no fault of their own, will be compelled to enter into agreements and leases which would mean expenses, while the absence of this enactment has not caused any inconvenience or hardship in the past. If the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill or the Hon'ble Mr Maddox—who have said that difficulties are sometimes experienced in distinguishing between nij jote and nij-chas lands, and I admit that sometimes there are such difficulties—if they could have said that in 75 per cent or even in 60 per cent of cases, there are such difficulties, I certainly would not have supported this motion But as a matter of fact we know that friendly relationship exist, and has existed for long, between the zamindar and his tenant. Then why introduce a law which will make that relationship stringent?"

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said —

"The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill admits that the word 'lease' here does not necessarily mean a written document It may mean a verbal agreement So we come to this: that the fact that a certain holding was held for a term of years or from year to year can be let out by written agreement or oral. If that be the true interpretation of the clause as it stands in the Bill, I think the word 'lease' may be omitted from it, as it might give rise to confusion in the minds of Deputy Collectors The words "on a lease" may, I think, be expunged.

The Hon'ble MR KERR said:—

"I submit, Sir, this amendment is of a very serious nature The provision with which we are dealing is one which enables the landlord to bar the accrual of occupancy rights in what are called proprietor's private lands. Surely, Sir, if the landlord desires to bar the accrual of occupancy rights which, under the principles of the Bill, are the elementary rights of every raiyat, we ought to expect him to take a little trouble to put it on record that he is desirous of barring the application of the ordinary law to a tenant These words have been in force in the law for many years since, I think, the Act of 1859, and so far as I know there have been no complaints that they have worked unfairly. The Hon'ble Mr Das says that friendly relations between the landlord and tenant have been existing for many years, but others might like to put it that the tenant is too much afraid of the landlord to dispute with him. However that may be, wherever there are nij-jote lands, there has been some sort of agreement, written or oral, that the tenant did not regard himself as entitled to occupancy rights. In future, the area which is treated as nij-jote will be very much increased, and at the same time the demand for raiyati land will go up, while the raiyati area will be seriously curtailed. We have, therefore, every right to ask the proprietors who wish to bar the accrual of occupancy rights to signify their intention by granting a lease to that effect, and the matter should not be left open to dispute for want of sufficient proof. I therefore oppose the amendment and suggest that the provision of the Bill should be left as it stands."

126. The Hon'ble MR. M. S. DAS moved that clause 49(c) be omitted.

He said —"This is a clause which has been added in the Select Committee. There are lands belonging to Government or to local authority. As far as Government lands are concerned, I am not in a position to say exactly how they stand; but I know a few years back the land owned by local authorities were let out to tenants without any restriction as regards the accrual of occupancy rights Before a provision of that nature which actually takes away the rights of other people or might take away vested rights of other people should be enacted, it is but fair that stricter inquiry should be made as to whether these lands which are held by these people under such circumstances that where no right of occupancy has accrued to them. We have not got any fact before us for this reason, because this clause was introduced in the Select Committee. Secondly it is of an important nature, in which the position of Government will certainly be exposed to severe criticism by the public. Government has given lands, and the people who cultivate the lands understood that surely Government who talked so much of protecting the interests of the raiyat have deprived them of rights which they would acquire under the zamindars. Now to legislate and take away the vested rights would be I think simply not fair."

"We are legislating now to take away vested rights. To do so would be simply not fair to the prestige of Government, and certainly not fair to the zamindars. I think, Sir, in a case of this nature full inquiry ought to be made, for I should protest as strongly as I can, and with as much emphasis as it is possible for me to command, in my protest against any legislation which disturbs vested interests. When a man has got a right, you take away his right. That is I submit the worst form of despotism. Therefore, on this ground, I submit that this should not be passed "

The Hon'ble Mr H. McPherson said:—

"Sir, it may perhaps remove the sting from the Hon'ble Mr. Das' remarks, if I say that there is no intention of attaching retrospective effect to this provision of the law This sub clause commended itself to all the members of the Select Committee who were present, when it was discussed. The Hon'ble Mr. Das was not present then. Its object is to enable Government and the local authorities to let out road-side and other similar lands, which are in their possession, to raiyats for cultivation in villages through which the roads pass, without being handicapped by the accrual of occupancy rights. The accrual of these occupancy rights might necessitate the re-acquisition of the lands, should they be subsequently required permanently for public purposes. I think that, as a former Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the District Board of Cuttack, the Hon'ble Mr. Das must know the difficulty that has been experienced in the management of road-side lands, on account of the fact that all road-side lands have not been acquired under the Land Acquisition Act. In some cases lands used as roads were made over voluntarily, for the purpose by the zamindar of the estate through which the roads pass. All we want to do is to place these lands that have been so acquired, in the same position as lands that have been acquired for public purposes under the Land Acquisition Act. We propose an addition to the law which will enable Government and local authorities to give short-term leases to raiyats for the temporary cultivation of these lands We take away no existing rights Without this provision, if we have made over road-side lands to village raiyats for temporary cultivation, we cannot get them back when they are wanted afterwards for public purposes. Under the existing law, we may be forced to buy back from the cultivator, the land that we have given him only for temporary cultivation It seems to me that there is nothing very extraordinary in this proposal to raise the excitment and indignation of the Hon'ble Member. The villagers are quite willing to cultivate road-side lands on these terms, and I see no objection to the arrangement which is acceptable to them and, at the same time, convenient to Government and the local authorities concerned. The only alternative is that Government should refrain from giving out these lands to raiyats for cultivation and keep them unoccupied. The proposed addition to the law is a very small one and seems to me to be very reasonable. I oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said.—

"I think this provision is a salutary one We have actually met with difficulty as regards Government lands which may be let out for a year or two; and if people are allowed to acquire rights of occupancy, the lands will not be available for any public purpose. Such is also the case with Municipal lands and land belonging to District Boards, and I think that this provision removes the difficulties which have been felt in regard to the possession of such lands."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said·—

"I do not say, Sir, that it is not necessary to have such a provision in the interests of the public. Far be it from me to say that. But what I do say is this, that we have had sufficient opportunity to inquire into the state of things in Orissa. What is the present state of things in Orissa with regard to lands covered by this sub-section. and in the absence of such things it is not safe to legislate here. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill says that it is not intended to give retrospective effect to this sub-section, but I do find a difference in this, that whereas in a previous clause it is said that in order to protect lands from accrual of right of occupancy, the land must have been given out under certain conditions from year to year."

The Hon'ble MR. H. McPHERSON said :—

"May I, Sir, point out to the Hon'ble Member that the clause is governed by the same proviso? (On reference to the Bill) I beg his pardon, it is not. It merely places these lands on the same footing as similar lands formally acquired under the Land Acquisition Act."

The Hon'ble MR DAS said :—

"We do not find the same conditions. I think it my duty to Government to raise my voice against any difference between the zamindar and the Government, because it is Government. The right should be respected both by Government and the raiyat, and perhaps by Government all the more, and this I say, because whatever may be my position, I stand second to none in my anxiety to hold up the prestige of the British Government and anything that actually attacks the prestige of the British Government, and nothing attacks it so much as to make a difference between private rights and Government rights."

A division was then taken with the following result :—

The result of the division was ayes 7, noes 32, and the motion was therefore lost.

127. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the word "or" at the end of clause 49 (b) be omitted and inserted at the end of clause 49 (c), and that the following be added as sub-clause (d), namely:—

"(d) land purchased by a proprietor in execution of a decree in a suit for arrears of rent under the provisions of this Act, when such land is held by a tenant on a lease for a term of years or on a lease from year to year."

He said:—

"This practically is the same proposal that I brought under clause 21 (No. 68), with the little difference that there I wanted the landlord to have the occupancy rights, but here it is to prevent the accrual of occupancy rights, when the land is held by tenants under leases for a term of years or from year to year. Of course the reasons I put forward in moving that amendment also equally apply here. If a rayiat purchases any land, he can prevent his under-raiyat from acquiring occupancy right in that holding; but if a landlord buys this, he cannot prevent a raiyat from acquiring occupancy rights."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"As the Hon'ble Member says, the reasons in favour of this amendment are the same as those in favour of amendment No. 68. That amendment has been rejected by Council, and I am rather surprised that the Hon'ble Member is bringing the same proposal forward in another form. I suppose he is not out of order, but I do not think it necessary to deal at any great length with this proposal. I would merely remind the Council that the settled policy of Government is to prevent the acquisition of occupancy rights by a landlord. Government's object in adopting this policy is not to injure the landlord but to secure that when the land has been let out to a cultivating raiyat, that raiyat shall acquire occupancy rights in the land. The Hon'ble Member's intention is that the landlord should be enabled to convert lands purchased at sales in execution of decrees for arrears of rent, into his nij jote. As I have stated, this would be against the settled policy of Government, and against the settled policy of the Act, and I must therefore oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Council was then adjourned to Thursday, the 21st March, 1912, at 11 A.M.

(i) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration, and

(ii) if the company is wound up the Court, on the application of any such creditor and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid, may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up.

the holders of the shares of the class. 10. The company may sell, in such manner as the director thinks fit, any shares on which the company has a lien, but no sale shall be made unless some sum in respect of which the lien exists is presently payable, nor until the expiration of fourteen days after a notice in writing, stating and demanding payment of such part of amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, has been given to the registered holder for the time being of the share, or the person entitled by reason of his death or insolvency to the share.

11. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, and the residue shall (subject to a like lien for sums not presently payable as existed upon the shares prior to the sale) be paid to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale. The purchaser shall be registered as the holder of the shares, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase-money, nor shall his title to the shares be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the sale

12 The directors may from time to time make calls upon the members in respect of any moneys unpaid on their shares, provided that no call shall exceed one-fourth of the nominal amount of the share, or be payable at less than one month from the last call, and each member shall (subject to receiving at least fourteen days' notice specifying the time or times of payments) pay to the company at the time or times so specified the amount called on his shares

13 The joint holders of a share shall be jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect thereof

14 If a sum called in respect of a share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the person from whom the sum is due shall pay interest upon the sum at the rate of five per cent per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment, but the directors shall be at liberty to waive payment of that interest wholly or in part

15 The provisions of these regulations as to payment of interest shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had become payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified

16 The directors may make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders in the amount of calls to be paid and in the times of payment

17 The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member willing to advance the same all or any part of the moneys uncalled and unpaid upon any shares held by him, and upon all or any of the moneys so advanced may (until the same would, but for such advance, become presently payable) pay interest at such rate (not exceeding, without the sanction of the company in general meeting, six per cent) as may be agreed upon between the member paying the sum in advance and the directors.

Transfer and transmission of shares.

18. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain holder of the share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register of members in respect thereof.

19. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form, or in any usual or common form which the directors shall approve

I, A B of , in consideration of the sum of rupees paid to me by C D of (hereinafter called "the said transferee"), do hereby transfer to the said transferee the share [or shares] numbered in the undertaking called the Company, Limited, to hold unto the said transferee, his executors, administrators and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof, and I, the said transferee, do hereby agree to take the said share [or shares] subject to the conditions aforesaid As witness our hands the day of Witness to the signatures of, etc.

20 The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares, not being fully-paid shares, to a person of whom they do not approve, and may also decline to register any transfer of shares on which the company has a lien The directors may also suspend the registration of transfers during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year The directors may decline to recognise any instrument of transfer unless—

(a) a fee not exceeding two rupees is paid to the company in respect thereof, and

(b) the instrument of transfer is accompanied by the certificate of the shares to which it relates, and such other evidence as the directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer

21 The executors or administrators of a deceased sole holder of a share shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share In the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders, the survivors or survivor, or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor, shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share

22 Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of a member shall, upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the directors, have the right, either to be registered as a member in respect of the share or, instead of being registered himself, to make such transfer of the share as the deceased or insolvent person could have made; but the directors shall, in either case, have the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer of the share by the deceased or insolvent person before the death or insolvency.

23 A person becoming entitled to a share by reason of the death or insolvency of the holder shall be entitled to the same dividends and other advantages to which he would be entitled if he were the registered holder of the share, except that he shall not, before being registered as a member in respect of the share, be entitled in respect of it to exercise any right conferred by membership in relation to meetings of the company

Forfeiture of shares.

24 If a member fails to pay any call or instalment of a call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as any part of such call or instalment remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring payment of so much of the call or instalment as is unpaid, together with any interest which may have accrued.

25 The notice shall name a further day (not earlier than the expiration of fourteen days, from the date of the notice) on or before which the payment required by the notice is to be made, and shall state that in the event of non-payment at or before the time appointed the shares in respect of which the call was made will be liable to be forfeited

26. If the requirements of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which the notice has been given may at any time thereafter, before the payment required by the notice has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

27 A forfeited share may be sold or otherwise disposed of on such terms and in such manner as the directors think fit, and at any time before a sale or disposition the forfeiture may be cancelled on such terms as the directors think fit

28 A person whose shares have been forfeited shall cease to be a member in respect of the forfeited shares, but shall, notwithstanding, remain liable to pay to the company all moneys which, at the date of forfeiture, were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares, but his liability shall cease if and when the company receive payment in full of the nominal amount of the shares.

29 A declaration in writing made before a Justice of the Peace or District Judge that the declarant is a director of the company, and that a share in the company has been duly forfeited on a date stated in the declaration, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share, and that declaration, and the receipt of the company for the consideration, if any, given for the share on the sale or disposition thereof shall constitute a good title to the share, and the person to whom the share is sold or disposed of shall be registered as the holder of the share and shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase-money (if any) nor shall his title to the share be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the forfeiture, sale or disposal of the share.

30. The provisions of these regulations as to forfeiture shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had been payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified

32 The holders of stock may transfer the same, or any part thereof, in the same manner, and subject to the same regulations, as and subject to which, the shares from which the stock arose might previously to conversion have been transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit, but the directors may from time to time fix the minimum amount of stock transferable, and restrict or forbid the transfer of fractions of that minimum, but the minimum shall not exceed the nominal amount of the shares from which the stock arose

33 The holders of stock shall, according to the amount of the stock held by them, have the same rights, privileges and advantages as regards dividends, voting at meetings of the company, and other matters, as if they held the shares from which the stock arose, but no such privilege or advantage (except participation in the dividends and profits of the company) shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred that privilege or advantage

34. Such of the regulations of the company (other than those relating to share warrants), as are applicable to paid-up shares shall apply to stock and the words "share" and "shareholder" therein shall include "stock" and "stockholder"

Share-warrants

35. The company may issue share-warrants, and accordingly the directors may in their discretion, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, on application in writing signed by the person registered as holder of the share, and authenticated by such evidence (if any) as the directors may from time to time require as to the identity of the person signing the request, and on receiving the certificate (if any) of the share, and the amount of the stamp-duty on the warrant and such fee as the directors may from time to time require, issue under the company's seal a warrant, duly stamped, stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise for the payment of dividends, or other moneys, on the shares included in the warrant

36 A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer to the shares included in it, and the share shall be transferred by the delivery of the share-warrant, and the provisions of the regulations of the company with respect to transfer and transmission of shares shall not apply thereto

37 The bearer of a share-warrant shall, on surrender of the warrant to the company for cancellation, and on payment of such sum as the directors may from time to time prescribe, be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members in respect of the shares included in the warrant

38 The bearer of a share-warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, and of attending and voting and exercising the other privileges of a member at any meeting held after the expiration of two clear days from the time of deposit, as if his name were inserted in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the deposited warrant Not more than one person shall be recognised as depositor of the share-warrant The company shall, on two days' written notice, return the deposited share-warrant to the depositor

39 Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided, no person shall, as bearer of a share-warrant, sign a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company, or be entitled to receive any notices from the company, but the bearer of a share-warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant, and he shall be a member of the company.

40 The directors may from time to time make rules as to the terms on which (if they shall think fit) a new share-warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of defacement, loss or destruction.

Alteration of Capital.

41 The directors may, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, increase the share capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amount, as the resolution shall prescribe

42 Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the resolution sanctioning the increase of share capital, all new shares shall, before issue, be offered to such persons as at the date of the offer are entitled to receive notices from the company of general meetings in proportion, as nearly as the circumstances admit, to the amount of the existing shares to which they are entitled The offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares offered, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of that time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the person to whom the offer is made that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company. The directors may likewise so dispose of any new shares which (by reason of the ratio which the new shares bear to shares held by persons entitled to an offer of new shares) cannot, in the opinion of the directors, be conveniently offered under this article.

43. The new shares shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, lien, transfer, transmission, forfeiture and otherwise as the shares in the original share capital.

44 The company may, by special resolution,—

(a) consolidate and divide its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares;

(b) by sub-division of its existing shares or any of them, divide the whole or any part of its share capital into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum of association, subject, nevertheless, to the provisions of paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of section 49 of the Indian Companies Act, 19 ;

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to revise and consolidate the Indian law on the subject of Joint-Stock Companies on the lines of recent English legislation. The law on this subject in India is contained in the Indian Companies Act, 1882, which was modelled closely on the English law in force in 1877. Since 1882 the Indian law has been added to by four amending Acts, namely, the Indian Companies Act Amendment Act, 1887, the Indian Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1895; the Indian Companies (Branch Registers) Act, 1900, and the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1910. The substantial additions, however, which have been made to the English law by the long series of Acts passed between 1879 and 1908 have not, with the exception of the matters dealt with in the four small amending Acts above-mentioned, been adopted in the Indian law The more important of the later English Acts are the Companies Act, 1879; the Companies Act, 1880, the Companies (Winding up) Act, 1890; the Directors Liability Act, 1890; the Companies Act, 1900; the Companies Act, 1907; and the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 The last named Act consolidated the English law into a convenient code and this code has been taken as the model of the present Bill

Among the new and important provisions introduced into Indian Company law by this Bill are those relating to.—(a) the preparation of a statutory report by a company limited by shares before the first general meeting (clause 81); (b) the appointment and advertisement of directors (clauses 88 and 89), (c) the prospectus and statement in lieu of prospectus (clauses 96 to 104); (d) restrictions on proceeding to allotment (clauses 105 and 106); (e) restrictions on commencing business (clause 107); (f) the appointment, remuneration and duties of auditors (clauses 142 and 143), (g) the registering of information regarding certain kinds of mortgages and charges (clauses 113 to 128); and (h) the registering of information regarding companies situated outside British India but operating therein (clause 310).

The present Bill follows the English Act not merely in its general principles but in its detailed arrangement and expression, wherever possible, as it is considered a matter of the first importance to have the Indian law as uniform as possible with the English law, except where local circumstances demand a modification in substance

It has been considered necessary to depart from the English law on the subject of the winding up of Companies by order of the Court, and in place of the provisions introduced into English law by the Companies (Winding up) Act, 1890, the procedure of the existing Indian law has been in the main retained. This procedure leaves the discretion in the matter of winding up in the hands of the Court, whereas in the English law important functions are exercised by the Board of Trade, by Official Receivers, and by Committees of Inspection. On the subject of the annual balance sheet the provisions of the existing Indian law have been retained where these appeared more complete than the provisions of the English law, and the prescribed form of balance sheet has also been retained (clauses 75 to 78)

In order to make inspection in the interests of shareholders obtainable without difficulty where a case for such inspection has been made out, the Registrar of Joint-Stock Companies has been empowered to demand from any company an explanation of anything that is not clear in its balance sheet or other returns submitted to him, and the Company will be liable to a penalty if it fails to provide a full and true statement to the Registrar, when called upon. A report from the Registrar will form a ground on which the Local Government may order an inspection of the affairs of a company (clauses 135 and 136).

In regard to the qualifications of auditors, a matter on which the English law imposes no restriction, a provision has been inserted authorising Local Governments to issue certificates for the auditing of companies' accounts to approved persons in accordance with rules to be framed for the purpose and restricting the audit of companies' accounts to persons holding such certificates. (Clause 142 (1) and (2))

It has not been thought necessary to include the provision of the English Act (Section 40) whereby a company is empowered to return accumulated profits in reduction of paid-up share capital

The other matters on which modifications have been made in the English law are of minor importance. The insertion of explanations based on case law has been generally avoided, but in one or two cases where decisions of the Courts have added to or explained the law, it has been thought desirable to expand or modify the wording of the English Act.

Notes on clauses

Definition of "existing Company."—The Indian Companies Act makes no reference to Act XLIII of 1850 which, though repealed, may well be in force as to such Companies, if any, registered under it as have not been registered under Act XIX of 1857. If any exist, they will be covered by the definition in the Bill.

Clause 10 (3).—This clause requires the sanction of the Governor General in Council to the use of words implying the patronage of the Crown or Government, as part of the name of a Company

Clauses 11, 12 and 13.—The Court in the corresponding provisions of the present law is the High Court There seems no reason why the Court here should not be, as it is in the English law, the Court having jurisdiction to wind up If a Court has jurisdiction to wind up, it should have power to sanction an alteration of the objects of a Company. The Bill provides for this.

Clause 37.—The Court in section 58 of the Indian Companies Act to which this clause corresponds is inconsistent with the Court mentioned in section 55 of that Act reproduced as clause 35 In the corresponding sections (sections 30 and 32) of the Act of 1908, the Court is the High Court It is inconsistent that a Court which cannot order inspection can rectify the register, and in the draft Bill it has been thought safer to follow the English law

The proviso to this clause was reproduced in the Act of 1882 from the Act of 1866, which was in turn reproduced from section 35 of the English Companies Act, 1862. The proviso as it stood in that Act ran as follows "provided that the Court, if a Court of Common Law, may direct an issue to be tried, in which any question of law may be raised, and a writ of error on appeal, in the manner directed by 'the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854,' shall lie" The words italicised were repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1881, owing to the amalgamation of the Common Law and equity jurisdiction by the Judicature Act, 1875 The object of the provision thus set out was obvious In the judicial interpretation of the proviso, the Indian Courts have decided that the appeal lies in any event, vide Amrita Lal Ghose versus Srish Chunder Chowdhry, Indian Law Reports, Calcutta 26, page 945 The proviso has been modified so as to allow an appeal, only on a point of law.

After clause 48 the provision of section 40 of the English Act of 1908 would naturally follow Lord Justice Buckley considers it a section that in so far as it is understandable at all (vide page 125 of his edition of the Act) is unnecessary, and Mr Hamilton, one of the drafters of the Act of 1908, at page 53 of his book on Company Law, says "The only effect of exercising the powers conferred by this section is to increase the liability of the shareholders by the amount paid to them out of accumulated profits which could be distributed without resorting to the section" The best opinion appears to be that the section is practically useless and unnecessarily complicated It has therefore been omitted

Clause 52.—Reference is made in the corresponding section 44 of the Companies Act, 1908, to the confirmation of a special resolution and this phraseology is employed in several places with rather confusing results A resolution does not become a special resolution till it is confirmed, and therefore to refer to the confirmation of a special resolution seems inaccurate. This difficulty is more noticeable in connection with clause 55 The use of the words "and confirmed" in the corresponding section 47 of the Act of 1908 are confusing. By clause 54 (2), which corresponds with section 46 of the Companies Act, 1908, a resolution for reducing share capital must be a special resolution, and if it is a special resolution, it must have been confirmed It seems sufficient to refer to the passing of a resolution for reducing share capital in clause 55 The wording of the English Act of 1908 in this respect is much less clear than that of the Act which it repealed and causes considerable confusion by referring to confirmation by the Court and confirmation by the Company

Clause 63.—Section 3 (1) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, gives an interpretation to the word "abets" which makes further qualification unnecessary

Clause 66.—The words in section 57 of the Companies Act, 1857, which this section reproduces, "or any Company already registered as a Limited Company may re-register under this Act," have been omitted It is conceived that they are useless as no Company gains any advantage by re-registration in the circumstances stated—Buckley's Company Law, page 150 The concluding words of section 57 (2) of the Companies Act, 1908, are not reproduced as they are unnecessary They are rendered necessary in the English Act by the construction clauses in the various English Acts thereby superseded Clause 67.—For the words "increased capital" in section 58 (a) of the Act of 1908, the words "the amount by which its capital is so increased" have been substituted. This gives effect to the actual intention, which is not altogether clear from the drafting in the Act of 1908.

Clause 82.—The clause which is based on section 66 of the Act of 1908 can only apply to a Company which has a share capital. To make this clear additional words have been inserted.

Clause 85 (3).—This sub-section has been inserted for drafting purposes to avoid reference to the confirmation of a special resolution.

Clause 85 (5).—This sub-section has been inserted to clear the point now settled by the Chillington Iron Company, 29 Chancery Division, 159.

Clause 90, corresponding with section 74 of the English Act.—Section 92 of the Act of 1882 has an explanation excluding from its operations acts done by a liquidator after his appointment has been shown to be invalid. This should equally apply to the acts of Directors and Managers in similar circumstances—see Bridport Old Brewery Company, 2 Chancery, 191; Harben versus Philips, 23 Chancery Division, 14, 27 and 34, Tyne Mutual versus Brown, 74 L. T. 253. A proviso to this clause has accordingly been inserted.

Clause 97.—The addition of the second proviso to clause (f) of this clause gives effect to the decision in Brookes versus Hansen, 1906, 2 Chancery, 129

Clause 104—The word "misleading" has been inserted before the word "untrue" to give effect to the decision in Greenwood versus The Leather Shod Wheel Company, 1900, I Chancery, 421, 434.

Clause 105, sub-clause (1) (b).—The insertion of the words "in cash" give effect to the decision in Mears versus The Western Canada Pulp and Paper Company, Limited, 1905, 2 Chancery, 353 C. A.

Clause 111—The authority in clause 73 (A) of the Indian Companies Act, 1882, is the Governor General in Council. The Local Government which generally replaces the Board of Trade appears sufficient.

Clause 129.—A power to order inspection as in clause 35 has been added.

Clause 135.—This is a new clause giving power to the Registrar to call for information or explanation in the case of reports, etc, submitted to him by a Company. Failure to furnish the information, or if the Registrar considers that the information furnished discloses an unsatisfactory state of affairs, involves a report of the matter to the Local Government. On such a report the Local Government may by clause 136 direct an investigation by an Inspector.

Clause 142.—A new provision requiring all auditors of Companies to hold a certificate from the Local Government has been inserted.

Clause 178 (1).—The defect in the corresponding section of the English law which was cured by the decision in the English, Scottish, (etc., Bank, 1893, 3 Chancery, 385, 393, has been amended in the Bill

Clause 187, sub-clause (vi).—The corresponding law in the Act of 1882, section 128 (e), contains the words "any other reason of a like nature." The words were inserted owing to the decision in ex-parte Spackman, I. H. and T., 259, and similar cases, but of late the Courts have not applied the ejusdem generis rule so strictly, see Amalgamated Syndicate, 1897, 2 Chancery Division, 600, Melson and Company, 1906, I Chancery, 841, Sailing Ship Kentmere, 1897, W. N. 58, Cngglestone Coal Company, 1906, 2 Chancery, 327, Australian Joint Stock Company, 1897, W. N 48. These words therefore have been omitted to prevent these later decisions being defeated Clause 249.—The additional words at the end of this clause give effect to the English rulings, see Home Investment Company, 14 Chancery, 167.

Clause 264.—Sub-clause (2) embodies the decision in Wheatly versus Silk Stone Coal Company, 29 Chancery, 715, see also Florence Land Company, 10 Chancery, 530 It also gives some indication of the meaning of the term "floating" charge and embodies the explanation in the Government Stock Company versus Manilla Rail Company, 1897, A C 81.

Clause 310—The provisions have been assimilated to those in clause 72.

Schedule I, Table A, clause 64.—In framing Table A in the Act of 1908, it has been forgotten that after the issue of the new Table A in 1906 on which the table is based the Companies Act, 1907, was passed, section 24 (3) of which has been embodied in section 68 of the Act of 1908, clause 84 of the Bill. It is therefore necessary to alter the clause in Table A so as to deprive Companies which are shareholders in other Companies of the right to vote by proxies so long as there is in force a resolution of its Directors under section 68 (clause 84 of the Bill).

Schedule III, Form C.—Clause 16 (3), section 10 of the Act of 1908, provides that in the case of a Company limited by guarantee the articles, if the Company has a share capital, must state the amount of share capital with which the Company proposes to be registered In Schedule III, Form C of the English Act, a form of articles of association of a Company limited by guarantee and having a share capital is given, but it does not state the amount of share capital with which the Company proposes to be registered, and is therefore defective. The defect has been remedied in the Bill.

THE ORISSA TENANCY BILL, 1912.

Clause 13 A.

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sir, I moved yesterday that clause 13 A be accepted by the Council as amended in item No. 1 A in the separate list laid on the table. Yesterday my object was not to rule out all the amendments which now appear in annexure A under the head clause 13 A. I have ascertained that the only amendments now standing under clause 13 A which Hon'ble Members desire to press are those numbered 28, 32 and 36 which stand in the name of the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. I think it would be convenient if the Hon'ble Member first of all proposed these amendments and after they have been considered, then my proposal contained in item 1 A can be put to the Council. If any of the amendments proposed by the Hon'ble Member are accepted by the Council, necessary modifications can be made in clause 13 A which I have proposed in item 1 A. The amendments are equally applicable to that amended clause and to clause 13 A as it came from the Select Committee. It practically means that we shall consider the new clause 13 A as if it came in that form from the Select Committee."

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

26. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "inheritance or succession" be substituted for the word "transfer" and the words "heir or successor" be substituted for the word "transferee" wherever they occur in clause 13 A (1), (2) and (3).

27. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "inheritance of or succession to" be substituted for the words "every transfer of" in line 1 of clause 13 A (1).

28. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the word "heritable" be inserted before the word "tenure" in line 1 of clause 13 A (1).

He said:—

My ground is that the clause as it stands in the Bill as re-drafted by the Select Committee makes all tenures of every kind and description heritable. This is very unjust. Let me take a concrete case. Suppose that the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan gave a lease to an old servant of his, or to a relation or to a friend for life, on a certain jama, on the distinct understanding that the grant will only be for life and that it will cease to exist on the death of the grantee and the tenure will revert to the Maharaja's estate after the death of the grantee. This is not a suppositious case, because we know that there are leases of this kind. I know that in the Banaili Raj there are some instances of these leases and there is nothing improper in granting a lease of that kind. Now, I will assume that the Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan has granted this lease for life, and I would ask Your Honour and Members of this Council to apply the law as laid down in this clause to a lease of that kind. The Council will find that the clause reads thus:—"In the case of every transfer of a tenure or portion of a tenure by succession the landlord shall be required to recognize the transfer provided that the transferee shall pay him a fee amounting to Rs. 2, excepting in the case of a bajaftidar when the fee shall be Re. 1." So that, although there is that lease on that clear and distinct understanding that it shall revert to the Maharaja's estate after the death of the grantee, the landlord, that is, the Maharaja in this instance, shall be required, in other words he will be bound to recognize the transfer provided that the requisite sum of Rs. 2 is paid. Then the section runs thus:—"if in any such case the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee the transferee or his successor in interest may deposit such fee with the Collector and at the same time apply for registration of the transfer. The Collector shall thereupon cause the fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

If an application for the registration of the transfer of a tenure or portion thereof under sub-section (1) is not made within a period of six months from the date of the transfer, and if the registration fee authorized by the said sub-section is not deposited along with the application, the transferee or his successor in interest shall not be entitled to recover at any time after the expiry of the said period by suit or other proceedings any rent which may become due to him as the owner of such tenure or portion between the date of the transfer and the date of the application for registration."

I submit that under this clause the Maharaja may break his head against a stone wall, but he will not be able to turn out the heir of the person to whom he made the grant on the distinct understanding that it was only for life and will revert to the Maharaja's estate after the death of the grantee. He has got no remedy provided for in this clause. You do not provide even that he can go to the Collector and tell him, "well this is not a heritable tenure, this was given for life and his heir has no right whatever to be recognized by me." You do not even give the Collector jurisdiction; you stop there. Under the language of this clause, I doubt very much whether the Maharaja will be able to bring a suit in the Civil Court. So the Maharaja is debarred for ever from turning out a person who has no right to be there. I submit that this is a very preposterous proposition of law. If you had as you proposed in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, followed the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, you would have proceeded on safer grounds. Section 11 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act provides:—

"When any tenure or portion thereof is transferred by succession, inheritance, sale, gift or exchange, the transferee or his successor in title shall cause the transfer to be registered in the office of the landlord to whom the rent of the tenure or portion is payable," etc, etc.

I need not read the whole section. Sub clause 5, however, is important. It reads thus:—

"Nothing in this section shall—

(i) validate a transfer of any tenure, or portion thereof which by the terms upon which it is held, or by any law or local custom, is not transferable; or

(ii) affect the right of the landlord to resume a resumable tenure."

This clause in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act if adopted here would have covered all the objections which I have raised with regard to the absence of the word "heritable" in section 13 A (1).

In any case, I beg to submit that if you add the word "heritable" before "tenure," that will remove all the objections which I have pointed out.

The Hon'ble MR DAS said:—

"The amendment proposed really comes to this, at least the form in which it has been put by the Hon'ble Member really comes to this, that this clause, as it stands, removes all distinction between heritable and resumable tenures. There are certainly heritable tenures and resumable tenures, and I do not think that it can possibly be the intention of the Hon'ble Member in charge to remove that distinction, and make resumable tenures heritable tenures. But then we have to take into consideration by whom this Act is to be administered and what the wording of the Act is. The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall decide whether the applicant is the successor or not. And "successor" means a person who succeeds by testamentary or intestate succession, and the Collector has to decide whether simply he is the successor under the Act, or rather the clause as it stands. It does not authorize the Collector to go into the question whether the property does descend to the successor or not. The Collector simply decides whether the person is the successor or not. The Collector would think he is the successor, because in regard to some other property he is so. For instance, he has inherited his holdings and he has inherited his house. And as this Act has to be administered by Deputy Collectors, too, they might think, well he is the successor with regard to other properties, why should he not be successor in regard to this property as well. I think the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill will agree with me that the wording as, it stands is liable to be mistaken in that way, or rather misinterpreted in that way; Then, of course, neither this clause nor any amount of legislation done here can possibly remove the difference between resumable tenures and heritable tenures But there we disagree with the Hon'ble Member in charge: he says, why use unnecessary words; words do not cost us much, neither does the printing, but it is much better to remove doubts."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said:—

"Sir, I oppose this proposal because I think it is wholly unnecessary. I do not know personally of the existence of any tenures in Orissa that are not heritable. But I understand that the Hon'ble Member wishes to make a reservation in favour of temporary tenures that are only for a lifetime. He is thinking perhaps in particular of ijara tenures, which may not be heritable. The section as it stands will not apply to it, for if it be not heritable, there can be no transfer by succession, and the Collector will be unable to find that the applicant is the transferee by succession. If the thing is not transferable, there can be no transfer.

"I also oppose the addition because it was not deemed necessary by the Orissa Members when we discussed this clause, and I think they are the best judges of what is suited to their case. They have accepted the clause as re-drafted and that is sufficient guarantee that this addition is not required.

"Another objection is that if you put in a word like that, it merely tempts parties to raise the issue of heritability in every case. We do not want to encourage unnecessary litigation by suggesting to the parties that this question should be raised in every case. I think on the whole it would be better to leave the word out."

The Hon'ble Mr. Maddox said:—

"I agree with the Hon'ble Mr McPherson, Sir, that it is unnecessary to include the words as proposed It seems to me that the section does not apply to tenures of the kind that the Hon'ble Mover of the amendment has suggested. If cases relating to such tenures do come before the Courts at all, it will be argued either that there is no succession, the tenure having been granted for life, or that there cannot be any succession in tenures granted for life. I therefore agree with the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson in opposing the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur said:—

"I have only to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Member to the wording of the clause which runs thus:—'In the case of every transfer of a tenure or a portion of a tenure by succession.' It does not make any reservation with regard to any kind of tenure: it makes tenures of every kind and description transferable. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill says that if it is not heritable then in that case this clause does not apply. How does he say this? Transfer by succession in this section means inheritance. So that whenever a tenure is herited by a legal heir, whether it is heritable or not, this section will apply. That is my objection. I would like some law officers of the Crown to interpret this. Of course if it does not include tenures of the kind which I have enumerated I have nothing to say, and I would not press this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Chapman said:—

"I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson and the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox that it is undesirable to put unnecessary words into the clause. The clause obviously does not require it, and it is therefore quite unnecessary to retain the words. And experience will bear out that any unnecessary words in a clause are apt to be misused."

The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar said:—

"Sir, may I ask this question. Will the insertion of this word prejudicially affect any of the parties concerned?"

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The Hon'ble Mr. Chapman has just pointed out that unnecessary words are generally prejudicial."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

29. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "a portion of a tenure" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 13 A (1) be omitted.

30. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "by succession" in line 2 of clause 13 A (1) be omitted.

31. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "be required to" in line 2 of clause 13 A (1) be omitted.

32. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "or his successor in interest" in line 2 of clause 13 A (2) be omitted.

He said :—

"This clause deals with inheritance, but if we introduce these words 'successor in interest' it will apply not only to cases of inheritance, but also to cases of transfer by the heirs. Successor in interest is a very wide term: it does not mean only a person who succeeds by right of inheritance, but it also means a person who succeeds by, say, a right of gift, and apparently that is not the object of the Hon'ble Member in charge. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill deals with inheritance in this clause, and with regard to transfer he has got another clause 13 C"

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"The apprehension of the Hon'ble Member is that the words 'successor in interest' may be interpreted as covering successor in interest by sale, or exchange or gift There was not in my opinion any danger of this, because the Collector is to be satisfied that the applicant is the successor, that is, the successor by inheritance. The object of adding the words 'successor, in interest' was to provide for a case in which there may have been more than one transfer by succession before the application for registration is made A man may die and be succeeded by his son, and before the son has registered, he also may die and be succeeded by his son. I have, however, thought of endeavouring to meet the wishes of the Hon'ble Member by considering whether it would not be better to drop the words 'in interest' after the word 'successor', and use simply the word 'successor'. I have put the point to the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer, and he suggests that instead of the words 'successor in interest' we may make the point more clear by using the word 'heir.' Are you willing to accept this alternative?"

The HON'BLE RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said :—

"Yes. I will move that instead of the words 'his successor in interest' the words 'his heir' be substituted."

The motion was then put in the amended form and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

33. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "The Collector shall cause notices of the application to be fixed in the house of the tenure-holder and in the cutcherry of the landlord, and, after deciding any objection made by any person interested, shall thereupon" be substituted for the words "The Collector shall thereupon" in lines 4 and 5 of clause 13 A (2).

34. If motion No. 33 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard" be inserted after the words "The Collector" in line 4 of clause 13 A (2).

35. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "after serving notice upon the landlord and hearing his objections, if any, decide whether the applicant is the successor or not, and, if he is satisfied that he is the successor" be substituted for the word "thereupon" in lines 4 and 5 of clause 13 A (2). The whole sentence. therefore, to read as follows:—

"The Collector shall, after serving notice upon the landlord and hearing his objections, if any, decide whether the applicant is the successor or not, and, if he is satisfied that he is the successor, cause the fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered."

36 The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "the landlord shall be entitled to recover the said registration fees by suit and" be inserted after the word "application" in line 5 of clause 13 A (3).

He said:—

"I beg to remove the misapprehension which may be in the mind of the Hon'ble Member with regard to the wording of my amendment. My object is that the landlord may be entitled to recover by suit the prescribed fee. I do not mean that the landlord will be entitled to recover rent from the tenants. The clause does not provide that the landlord shall be entitled to bring a suit to recover the amount of the requisite fees. It simply says that the tenant will pay. If the tenant does not pay, then in that case he will not be entitled to recover his rent from his under-tenant. It does not provide that the landlord shall include this fee in his claim for rent or separately bring a suit for it. What I propose is that the landlord should be authorized to recover these fees either by bringing a separate suit or including it in his suit for the recovery of the rent."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"I do not know whether the Hon'ble Member has modified the words as they stand in his amendment. As it stands, the grammatical interpretation of the words is that if the application for registration be not made within six months, the superior landlord steps into the shoes of the under-landlord and is entitled to recover rent from the under-landlord's tenants. That, I understand, is not the object of the Mover, but that is the effect of his words. If the Council accept his idea, it will be necessary to alter his amendment to 'the landlord shall be entitled to recover the said registration fees by suit and—.'"

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said:—

"I am willing to add those words."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"I regret that I cannot accept this proposal even when amended by the addition of the words 'the said registration fee' after 'recover,' though I have a certain amount of sympathy with its object. The idea is that if the successor does not come to the scratch and apply for registration, the landlord shall be able to press registration upon him and recover the fee. Under Act X of 1859 and under the Bill as amended we leave the transferee to take action and place him under certain disabilities if he neglects to do so. I think it is preferable to leave it at that for the present. When we have observed the working of the transfer sections for a few years, it will be possible to say whether they attain the desired object and to propose amendments if they fail. I do not think that the time has yet come to introduce an innovation of this sort. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put in the amended form and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

37. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that a new proviso be added after clause 13 A (3) as follows, namely:—

"Provided always that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize a division of a tenure or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof unless it is made with the express consent in writing of the landlord or of his agent duly authorized in that behalf."

1A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the following be substituted for sub-clauses (1) and (2) of clause 13 A, namely:—

(1) In the case of every transfer of a tenure or portion of a tenure by succession, the landlord shall recognize the transfer, provided that the transferee shall pay him a fee amounting to rupees two, except in the case of a bajiaftidar, when the fee shall be rupee one.

(2) If in any such case the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee, the transferee or his heir may deposit such fee with the Collector, and, at the same time, apply for registration of the transfer. The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall decide whether the applicant is the successor or not, and, if satisfied that such applicant is the successor, he shall cause the fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

The motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson said:—

"It is also necessary that I should move a small consequential amendment in sub-clause (3) where the same expression 'successor in interest' is used in the fifth line, the amendment being that 'heir' be substituted for 'successor in interest' in that line."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 13 B.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

38. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "or portions thereof" in line 2 of clause 13 B (1) and the words "or portion" in line 2 of the proviso to the same clause be omitted.

39. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or sikmi zamindar" be inserted after the words "kharida jammabandi" in line 3 of clause 13 B (1) (b).

40. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "or his successor in interest" in line 2 of clause 13 B (2) be omitted.

He said:—

"With your permission, Sir, I will move the following amended motion with regard to this section, that for the words 'successor in interest' in line 2 the word 'heir' be substituted."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson said:—

"I do not think the same considerations apply in this case, when we are delaying with transfers by sale, gift or exchange."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

41. If motion No. 38 be carried, the Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "a portion thereof" in line 2 of clause 13 B (3) be omitted.

42. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shanker Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "the landlord shall be entitled to recover by suit and" be inserted after the word "application" in line 5 of clause 13 B (3).

43. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the following proviso be added after clause 13 B (3), namely:—

"Provided always that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize a division of a tenure or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof unless it is made with the express consent in writing of the landlord or of his agent duly authorized in that behalf."

Clause 13 C.

44. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause 13 C be omitted.

45. If motion No. 44 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that for clause 13C (1), (2), (3) and the Explanation, the following be substituted, namely:—

13 C. (1) Except as provided in section 13 B, every transfer by sale, gift or exchange of any tenure or portion of a tenure shall be invalid unless it was made with the consent of the landlord, or unless there is a custom, usage or customary right of such transfer without the consent of the landlord on payment of a fee being made to him.

(2) When any tenure or portion of a tenure is so transferred, with or without the consent of the landlord, as aforesaid, the landlord, on registration of the transfer in his office, shall be entitled to levy a registration fee as follows, namely:—

(a) In the case of a sale, Rupees twenty-five per centum or the market value of the tenure or portion of the tenure transferred:

Provided that, until sufficient reason to the contrary is shown, the market value shall be deemed to be the consideration money as shown in the deed or document affecting the transfer, or, where there is no such deed or document, the consideration money actually paid for the transfer.

(b) In the case of a gift or exchange, a fee six times the annual rental of the tenure or portion thereof, as the case may be, or, if rent be not payable in respect of the tenure or portion thereof—then a fee of Rupees ten:

Provided that, where rent is paid in kind and is fluctuating, the average yield to the landlord during five agricultural years preceding the sale shall, for the purposes of this section, be taken as the annual rental of the tenure or portion thereof.

(3) If, in any case, the landlord accepts the fee authorized by sub-section (2), his consent to the transfer shall be deemed to have been given.

(4) If, in any case, a dispute arises between the transferee and the landlord either with regard to the validity of the transfer or with regard to the fee payable for such transfer, the landlord or the transferee shall apply to the Collector who shall inquire into and decide the same.

(5) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of either party to bring a suit in the Civil Court to contest the correctness of the finding of the Collector with regard to the validity or otherwise of the transfer, but, subject as above and to any appeal or revision as provided for in this Act, the order of the Collector under this section shall be final.

(6) If, notwithstanding the order of the Collector to the contrary, the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee, the transferee may deposit such fee with the Collector, who shall cause the said fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize a division of a tenure or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof unless it is made with the express consent in writing of the landlord or of his agent duly authorized in that behalf.

46. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "the landlord shall be entitled to recover by suit and" be inserted after the word "application" in line 5 of clause 13 C (4).

47. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "or portion of a tenure" be omitted in clause 13 C (1) wherever they occur.

48. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "within six months from the date of transfer" be inserted after the word "shall" in line 4 of clause 13 C (1).

49. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "market value" be substituted for the words "consideration money" in line 2 of clause 13 C (1) (a).

50. If motion No. 47 be carried, the Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "or portion" in lines 4 and 5 of clause 13 C (1) (b) be omitted.

51. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "recognized the transfer" be substituted for the words "accept the requisite fee" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 13 C (3).

52. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move the following amendments in clause 13 C (3), viz.:—

(i) that the words "transferee or his successor" be substituted for the word "landlord" in line 6;

(ii) that the words "to obtain registration of the transfer of the tenure or a portion thereof" be substituted for the words "to refuse his consent to the transfer" in line 7;

(iii) that the words "transferee or his successor" be substituted for the word "landlord" in line 8; and

(iv) that in the same line, the word "not" be omitted after the word "is."

The whole sentence, therefore, to read as follows:—

"The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall thereupon inquire and decide whether the transferee or his successor is entitled by custom, or for any other good and sufficient reason, to obtain registration of the transfer of the tenure or a portion thereof; and, if the Collector finds that the transferee or his successor is so entitled, he shall cause the said fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered."

53. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "tenure is transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord and whether the landlord has" be substituted for the words "landlord is entitled by custom, or for" in line 6 of clause 13 C (3).

54. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "tenure is so transferable and the landlord has no good or sufficient reason to refuse his consent" be substituted for the words "landlord is not so entitled" in line 8 of clause 13 C (3).

55. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "and any arrears of rent due" be inserted after the words "he shall cause the said fee" in line 9 of clause 13 C (3).

56. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the following proviso be added at the end of clause 13 C (3), namely:—

"Provided that nothing in this section shall confer the right of subdividing a tenure without the landlord's consent, and that the transfer of a portion of a tenure and the registration of the same by the landlord shall not be deemed to constitute a subdivision of the tenure. The holder of the tenure and the transferee of the portion thereof shall be jointly and severally liable to the landlord for the rent of the entire tenure."

57. If motion No 52 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the Explanation to clause 13 C (3) be omitted.

58. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the Explanation to clause 13 C (3) be omitted.

59. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the following be substituted for the Explanation to clause 13 C (3), namely:—

"Explanation.—The landlord may refuse registration of the transfer on the ground that there is no custom of transfer, unless it is shown that, by such custom, he is not entitled to refuse consent to the transfer of a tenure."

60. If motion No. 58 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "The landlord shall not be entitled to refuse registration of the transfer on the ground of custom, unless he can show that by such custom he is entitled to refuse consent to the transfer of tenures" in lines 1 to 4 of the Explanation to clause 13 C (3) be omitted.

61. If motions Nos. 58 and 60 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "The fact that the landlord is in the habit of charging fees on the registration of transfers of tenures shall not by itself be taken as proof that he is entitled by custom to refuse his consent to the recognition of transfers in individual cases" in lines 4 to 8 of the Explanation to clause 13 C (3) be omitted.

2A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the following be substituted for clause 13 C (1), namely:—

Transfer in other cases.

(1) In cases other than those covered by section 13 B, when any tenure or portion of a tenure is transferred by sale, gift or exchange, the transferee or his successor in interest shall apply to the landlord to whom the rent of the tenure or portion thereof is payable for registration of the transfer, and the landlord shall, in the absence of good and sufficient reason to the contrary, allow the registration of the transfer. The fee payable on such transfer shall be—

(a) in the case of a sale, rupees twenty-five per centum of the consideration money, or the fee specified in clause (b), whichever is greater, and

(b) in the case of gift or exchange, a fee six times the annual rental of the tenure or portion thereof, as the case may be, or, if rent be not payable in respect of the tenure or portion, then a fee of rupees ten.

The motion was put and agreed to.

3A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the following be substituted for clause 13 C (3), namely :—

(3) If in any such case the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee, the transferee or his successor in interest may deposit such fee with the Collector and, at the same time, apply for registration of the transfer. The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall decide whether the tenure is transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord, and whether the landlord has any good and sufficient reason to refuse his consent to the transfer; and, if the Collector finds that the tenure is so transferable and that the landlord has no good and sufficient reason to refuse his consent to the transfer, he shall cause the said fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

The motion was put and agreed to.

4A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the Explanation to clause 13 C (3) be omitted.

The motion was put and agreed to.

New Clause 13 CC.

5A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the following new clause be added after clause 13 C:—

He said:—

"Before I read it out I wish to point out that I intend to make a very slight modification in the drafting of it. For the word 'thereof' in line 5 I have been advised that it would be better to substitute the words 'of the tenure'; and for the words 'of the same' in the last line I am advised that the word 'thereof' should be substituted. This is purely a drafting modification.

"I will now read the amendment as thus revised:—

13 CC.—The transfer of a portion of a tenure and the registration of the same under section 13 A, 13 B or 13 C shall not be deemed to constitute a division of the tenure. The transferee of such portion and the holder of the remainder of the tenure shall be jointly and severally liable to the landlord for the rent of the entire tenure, unless the landlord has consented, in the manner specified in section 91, to a division of the tenure or to a distribution of the rent thereof."

Effect of transfer of portion of a tenure.

The motion was put and agreed to.

New Clauses 13 D and 13 E.

62. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the following be inserted as clauses 13 D and 13 E, namely:—

"Fee on application under section 13 A, 13 B, 13 C or 25 A.

13 D. An application to the Collector under section 13 A, 13 B, 13 C or 25 A shall be accompanied by such fee, in addition to the fee payable to the landlord, as the Local Government may, by rule, direct."

"Return of landlord's fee.

13 E. If an application under section 13 A, 13 C or 25 A be disallowed, the Collector shall return the landlord's fee to the applicant."

He said:—

"The object of clause 13 D is that power may be given to recover the necessary costs that will be incurred on the hearing of applications, and issue of notices from the party who applies for registration. One beneficial effect of this will be that it will prevent bogus applicants from coming forward and worrying the Collector and landlord.

"The object of clause 13 E explains itself.

"I think there will be no opposition to these two additions."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 6.

6 A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the figures and letter "13 E" be substituted for the figures and letter "13 C" in line 5 of clause 6 (1) (ii) and in line 3 of clause 6 (1) (iii).

He said:—

"Clause 6 refers to the provision that bajiaftidars shall be deemed to be tenure-holders for the purpose of these transfer clauses. Clauses 13 A to 13 C were the original transfer clauses. By these new additions they become clauses 13 A to 13 E."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 25 A.

77. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din moved that clause 25 A be omitted.

He said:—

This was unknown in the Bengal Tenancy Act.* It is altogether a new provision. It was never put in the Bill itself, and the public had no opportunity to offer their opinions with regard to this clause 25 A, nor were the opinions of the several associations ever asked on this clause. It appears that this clause 25 A enacts something which is not known even in the Bengal Tenancy Act.* The present clause gives to the tenant right of a transfer of a portion of a holding, although under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act,* section 88, a transfer of the portion of the holding without the consent of the landlord is invalid, yet in the present clause there is no provision to safeguard against the transfer of a portion of a holding without the consent of landlord; rather there is an express provision that tenants will be at liberty to transfer the entire or a portion of their holdings.

The second objectionable feature of this clause is that the onus of proof of custom or usage has been thrown on the landlord. This is against the elementary principles of the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act.† In the Bengal Tenancy Act* there is section 183, and all such transfers of occupancy

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.
† i.e., Act I of 1872.

holdings are regulated by the provisions laid down in section 83. In the present Bill you have a parallel clause 246, and it would be much better to leave the transfer of holdings of occupancy-rights to be regulated by clause 246 of this Bill.

Then, again, so far as the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act* are concerned, the onus has been thrown upon the transfer to show that the transfers are valid on account of there being the custom or usage of such transfers in the vicinity or in the locality itself, but in sub-clause (3) we find that the landlord will have to prove a negative thing. He will have to prove that there is a custom by which he can refuse to recognize such a transfer. This is altogether a novel thing

"My next objection with regard to this clause is that an appeal has been provided for to the Collector, from all orders passed by a subordinate officer, but no second appeal to the Commissioner has been allowed, although we find that a revisional power is given to the Commissioner under sub-clause (4) of clause 25 A We are well aware of the virtues of such revisional jurisdiction of the Commissioners. When they are reluctant to interfere with the findings of the Lower Court in appeal, how could we expect any better thing on revision. Then, again, the parties have been given a right to go to the Civil Court, but a presumption has been provided to be given to the orders of the Collector. Now, the hands of the Civil Court ought not to have been fettered in this way The party who is aggrieved by the order of the Revenue Court, if he goes to the Civil Court, will have to establish his case, but why should you give a presumptive value to the order passed by the Revenue Court? I have just read the re-drafted clause as well, but I find that there is no clause guarding against the transfer of a portion of the holdings, nor will it sufficiently meet all the objections which I have put forward before the Council.

"Then, again, so far as the onus of proof, the custom or usage is concerned, the re drafting clause is also not explicit. It leaves the matter in the dark, and there would be confusion hereafter as to whether in such matters the landlord has to prove or the transferee has to prove that there is such a custom. Those are my grounds as to why I propose this amendment No 77. With these few words I move that clause 25 A be omitted altogether."

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said :—

"I have an identical motion on the list of business, and with your permission, Sir, would like to support the motion of my Hon'ble friend, Maulvi Saiyid Fakhr ud-din.

"This clause deals with the question of transfer of occupancy-rights. This is a subject, Sir, which has been discussed, considered and decided by eminent men from the time of the commencement of the British Government in this country. In the famous minute of Sir John Shore (afterwards Lord Teignmouth), dated 1789, attached to the Fifth Report of the Select Committee to the House of Commons, that authority laid down that the raiyats may acquire right of possession in the soil, but this right did not authorize them to transfer it, and it was so far distinct from a right of property. He, also, after fully considering the question as to whether the right of transfer should be given to the raiyats, thus concludes his observation.—

> "After weighing the above considerations, my opinion is that were the raiyats alone to be considered the privilege of transferring the lands held by permanent occupants should be vested in them But as the zamindars and talukdars also claim consideration as their acknowledged rights would be infringed by conferring such privilege on the raiyats, and as this infringement does not seem essentially necessary for the ease and security of the latter, the privilege in question should not I think be given to the raiyats by the authority of Government, but allowed to be at any time voluntarily given or sold by the zamindars themselves"

"By the legislations that followed this famous minute no right of transfer was conceded to the occupancy-raiyats. Act X of 1859 also did not confer

such right. The matter again came up for consideration when a consolidated rent law for Bengal was taken up, and the Bill known as Recovery Rent Bill was introduced into the Legislative Council of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal on the 4th January, 1879. There was a provision in the Bill conferring such right on the tenants, as appears from the Proceedings of the Bengal Council, 1879 (pages 9 to 13). Sir Alexander Mackenzie strongly recommended this concession in favour of the raiyats. He said, "We have, I say, every reason to believe that to recognize the transferable character of the occupancy raiyat's tenure in Bengal will improve his position in many ways, and that he will in turn improve the land." This innovation recommended by Sir Alexander Mackenzie was strongly opposed by the Hon'ble Rai Kristo Das Pal Bahadur, as appears from the Proceedings of Council (pages 15 to 27). Though this Bill was referred to a Select Committee (on the 11th January, 1879), it was subsequently decided that the whole law should be consolidated by an Act of the India Council, and the Tenancy Bill was introduced in the Council of Governor General (on 2nd March, 1883), by the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert Under Mr. Ilbert's Bill the right of occupancy was transferable subject to certain rights reserved to the landlord. The Bill was referred to the Select Committee which after mature and deliberate consideration expunged this portion of the Bill. Sir Stuart Bayley, the Member in charge of the Bill, himself a warm advocate of conferring this right of transfer on the raiyats, in presenting the report of the Select Committee announced that an important change was made in regard to the transferability of occupancy rights, and that instead of legalizing it and regulating it by law, it was left to custom, and added that "the Council will not have to consider the schemes of pre emption, registration and landlords' fees which occupied so much of the time and attention of the committee." Sir, though the matter was abandoned by Government, the Hon'ble Mr Amir Ali moved on the 5th March, 1885, an amendment similar to the provisions of the Bill now before you, to the effect that an occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled to transfer his holding, and where there is no custom of transfer the landlord shall be entitled to a fee of 10 per cent on the purchase money. The only difference between the Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali's motion in 1885 and the present Bill being that the landlord under this Bill is to get 25 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. as proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali. An interesting debate followed this amendment, and though some of the high officials freely gave out that in their opinion this right should have been conferred on the tenants, they refused to support the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali. Some said that in the interests of the tenants themselves this right should not be conferred on them. His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal (Sir Rivers Thomson), who was himself strongly in favour of this right being conferred, concluded his speech by saying thus, "After much consideration the safer view has prevailed that the introduction of any provision like those which the Hon'ble Member has moved should not form part of our present legislation." His Excellency the Viceroy (Lord Dufferin), in winding up the debate from his place in Council, made these observations. His Excellency said:—

> 'In the first place we have to consider the matter from the point of view of right and equity. Sir John Shore, a contemporary authority upon the subject, has stated in the most positive manner that the occupancy-right does not include the right of the sale or transfer, and the Courts of Bengal, as I understand, have maintained this view. It is, therefore, a question as to how far we should be justified in giving an occupancy-tenant a right carrying a money value to which he has not hitherto been entitled by law, etc., etc.

The matter was then dropped. Sir, I have gone through these details to show that this is a question which has been thoroughly discussed, shifted and settled Some officers, like the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, have held that this right should be conferred. Others, like the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox, have held that in the interests of the tenants themselves this right if conferred instead of proving a boon to them will cause their ruin. Others have held that the Crown has no right to confer on the tenant a right which he never possessed and divest the landlord of his right which he has enjoyed and possessed ever so long. But after thorough discussion and mature consideration they have all agreed, though by different process of reasoning, that the tenant has no such right except as a gift from his landlord or by long established custom and usage This is the law laid down in the Bengal Tenancy Act.* One would have thought, Sir, that this question was concluded by authority and cannot be re-opened. Coming to recent legislation, the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act† does not confer any such rights. With regard to the present legislation now before the Council, I find that the committee which sat at Cuttack to consider the matter was by a large majority opposed to this right being conferred on the tenants. The Hon'ble Mr Janaki Nath Bose was opposed to it The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill was, of course, for it But the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox recommended that the law as laid down in the Bengal Tenancy Act* be followed. I presume the draft Bill, which was submitted to the Government of India, did not contain this new provision added by the Select Committee. In any case, it was not in the Bill as introduced in Council. The Statement of Objects and Reasons distinctly in paragraph 18 lays down, 'As regards raiyats, it is now proposed to decide the question on the basis of custom (clause 246). and thus to follow the provisions of section 183 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.*' It was only subsequent to the introducton of the Bill that the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson in his letter of 30th November, 1911, to the Government, and in his speech which he delivered for submitting the Bill to the Select Committee, raised this question, not on any new facts since discovered by him, but on the old grounds. His grounds, so far as I have gathered, are shortly as follow:—

"Firstly, the Crown should in his opinion take powers to permit freedom of transfers of raiyati holdings and to fix a limit to the registration fee payable to the landlord.

"Secondly, numerous transfers having taken place as appears from the settlement proceedings, in his opinion this was the most opportune time for laying down a general rule which will decide the question once for all.

"With regard to the right of the Crown to concede this right to the raiyats, all that I have to say is this, that if this concession had been entirely in the gift of the Crown, no one could have objected, although, as appears from his note, that he himself is doubtful if this concession will work to the benefit of the tenants; for in paragraph 16 of his letter he suggests that if this concession does not work well this law might be subsequently repealed and all sales might be altogether prohibited. There are others who are of opinion that this will prove the extinction of the cultivating class. My submission, however, is that you have to consider the vested rights of the landlord. You cannot ignore that right. You do not propose to give anything which is entirely in your gift. You want to deprive the landlord of some privileges and give them to the tenant. Have you a right to do so? In the language of Lord Dufferin you have not.

"As regards the number of sales that are alleged to have taken place as a ground for this extraordinary measure. Granted that it is so. The point is not as to how many sales have taken place, and whether they are numerous or few, but the point is whether the sales have been held without the consent of the landlord and have been held to be valid. If 75 per cent. of the holdings have been sold with the consent of the landlord, it will not and cannot prove that there is a custom of sale without his consent. It has been held in various cases by the Hon'ble High Court that the essence of such a usage is that transfers made to the knowledge, but without the consent of, the landlord, are valid and must be recognized by him (11 Calcutta Weekly Notes, page 83). I have searched in vain amongst the papers sent to us if any such position is maintained in Orissa. There are none.

"My submission is that no case is made out for changing the existing law, and the innovation introduced by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.
† i.e., Bengal Act VI of 1908.

Bill after it was introduced into Council should be expunged. I therefore beg to support the motion now before the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said :—

"Sir, I was opposed to the proposal of making occupancy rights absolutely transferable. I am still opposed to that proposal, but then existing facts must be faced, and the law should be altered in such a way as to fit into the existing state of things. Sir, since the last revisional settlement a very large number of transfers of occupancy-holdings has taken place, and my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox, will be able to inform the Council as to the exact number of such transfers and the quantity of lands so transferred. This clause 25A leaves the law as it was under the Bengal Tenancy Act,* because, Sir, if in any local area a custom exists for making such transfers valid, the custom will have its way and the Collector will be bound to give effect to the custom. If, on the other hand, no such custom prevails even if the transfer takes place, the mutation will not be allowed It was observed that zamindars in case of such transfers were levying fees varying from 10 to 15 per cent. of the consideration money to 50 per cent. and upwards, and in some of the zamindaris it was found that the levying of such fees almost amounted to blackmailing. The object of this clause is to legalize the realization of a reasonable fee by the landlord, and it was considered that 25 per centum of the consideration money would be a reasonable amount. On the other hand, the transferor and the transferee were to be given to understand what they were bound to pay under the law to the zamindar for making the transfer valid. This clause was not the result of a sudden idea. The Hon'ble Mover of the amendment will find that so late as 1908-1909 at the conference held by the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox at Cuttack with the representative gentlemen of the town the matter was thoroughly discussed, and most of the zamindars agreed to 25 per cent. of the consideration money. I also notice that in the opinions submitted by some of the associations the matter is also discussed So I do not think that it is right to say that the Select Committee all of a sudden thought of the matter and enacted a clause like this The Hon'ble Mover of the amendment also says that the burden of proof will lie on the landlord. I think that it is not a right view of the law. It is the transferee who is to apply to the Collector in case of refusal by the landlord, and the Collector will have to be satisfied that the holding was transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord. When such an issue was raised, it was incumbent on the applicant to prove this issue in his favour or, in other words, the onus or burden of proof is on him; and I think that the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer will support me in my view of the law, so that, Sir, you will notice that the law is left where it was under the Bengal Tenancy Act* and that the matter will be regulated by the custom prevailing in a certain locality. In order to remove the difficulties which have been met with in Orissa during the last provincial settlement and in order to legalize the realization of certain dues which were being realized by the landlords and also in order to make the matter clear to the transferees that such transfers are not valid without the consent of the landlord unless there be a custom to that effect in that locality, I say, that this clause was enacted after consideration of the above points and after a good deal of deliberation."

The Hon'ble BABU BRAJ KISHOR PRASAD said :—

"Sir, I rise to raise my voice against this amendment which has been proposed by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. So far I think that the provision embodied in clause 25A is one of the many wholesome principles which have been introduced in the Orissa Tenancy Bill, and the tenantry of Bihar look forward to the day when some such provision will be introduced sooner or later into the Bihar Tenancy Act I can speak from my personal experience and tell this house that the present state of law as it stands makes the position of the tenant very very deplorable, because all of us who have to work in the mufassal know that the rulings of the Calcutta

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

High Court have made it impossible to prove custom. Whenever any case, in which there is a transfer even by mortgage, comes to the Civil Court, the result is that the poor tenant or the transferee is dispossessed of the holding, and the general result is that the tenants are impoverished. Of course, I believe, Sir, that according to the Indian Evidence Act * or according to any law as it stands, the onus is upon the transferee to prove the existence of any custom, and that is the very thing which ought to be removed. As this provision embodies that amendment, I beg to support the clause as it stands. I would like to see the onus thrown upon the landlord to prove the existence of any custom which would entitle him not to recognize the transfer. With these few words I beg to support the clause as it stands and to oppose the amendment proposed."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"Sir, I wish to speak a few words in support of the amendment that clause 25 A be omitted. My reasons are these:—I know that the practice has grown up everywhere in Bengal and Orissa to recognize the transferability of occupancy right where such transfer is recognized by custom or usage, and the zamindars give effect to such transfers by accepting a fee of 25 per cent. of the consideration money But the first thing I learn from the remarks made by the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose is that in Bengal the practice prevails that the zamindars are bound to recognize the transferability of a portion of an occupancy holding. But I think nowhere the practice prevails of compelling the zamindars to recognize the transferability of a portion of a holding. It is, therefore, an innovation, and as such would lead to complications and unpleasantness in the relations between the raiyat and the zamindar. It is also an innovation which is detrimental to the interests of the zamindar, in that a portion of the occupancy-right should be allowed to be transferred and the zamindar should be bound to recognize the transferability of a portion of a holding."

The Hon'ble MR. MADDOX said:—

"Sir, as the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur has referred to my opinion, I should like to say a few words. I regret that I cannot give the figures as the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose asked me to do, but no doubt the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson will supply them. I have studied these figures and I can state how numerous the transfers are and how very universal the practice is in the three districts of Orissa. I may say that when I left Orissa in 1899 I was opposed to this provision and even after 5½ years I should oppose this provision, but since then I have examined a mass of evidence collected, and I am satisfied that such a provision is necessary. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur referred to the proceedings which led to the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act† in the Supreme Council. I would ask him again to look at the words of the Lieutenant Governor of that time. His Honour stated that compulsory provision of this kind did not come within the scope of the 'present' legislation (present is the word used by His Honour). I do not imagine from that that a legislation on this subject could be considered to be precluded in the future. My opinion now is that the Orissa raiyat, having read this, thinks that he is fit to enjoy this provision, and this is a provision which is of advantage both to the landlords as well as to the tenants and which would settle innumerable disputes. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said:—

"Before the Council votes on this amendment I should like to refresh the minds of Hon'ble Members regarding the salient facts of the case. Revision operations have been going on for the last five years throughout the temporarily-settled estates of Orissa, and careful statistics have been kept by the officers of the Settlement Department regarding the extent to which transfers of occupancy rights have occurred. These statistics show that during the

* i.e., Act I of 1872.
† i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

past 10 or 12 years no less than 140,000 acres of raiyati lands have changed hands for an aggregate consideration of 77 lakhs of rupees. On this an additional one-fourth, equal to nearly 20 lakhs, was paid by the transferees to the landlord as the price of the recognition of the transfers at the time when they were entered in the landlords' books. I may add that a considerable number of these transfers were brought to the notice of the landlord in the course of the present much-abused revision settlement, and it was the confidence inspired by the presence of the attestation officer that led the parties to deal with one another and arrange for the recognition of numerous transfers that had up to that date not been brought to the notice of the landlord and received his recognition. When the landlords found that the revision operations were bringing this benefit in their train, they ceased to be hostile to the operations, and in fact welcomed them. It was at the time of recording these changes that the Settlement Officer found that the payment of one-fourth of the consideration money was practically the universal practice. Cases did come to his notice in which exacting landlords had demanded higher fees and refused to recognize a practice which had become the general usage, but those who asked for more than 25 per cent were ashamed to own it when confronted by the Settlement Officer. Although it is a heavy fee, the raiyat is willing to pay it rather than lose the valued right of transfer. I have questioned influential landlords on the subject, and they all admit that one-fourth is the proper fee, and this is what we propose in section 25 to recognize as the usage in the areas where the custom of transfer has been found to exist. We have enumerated in Explanation (2) the nature of the objections which may be considered to be reasonable. It cannot be said that we are introducing something that is absolutely new, without any consideration and respect for the landlord's wishes. The whole point of section 25 A is that we are not introducing anything new or changing the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act.* The Bengal Tenancy Act* says that transfers shall be regulated by local custom or usage. We have found in the temporarily-settled estates of Orissa that a certain usage does exist, and we have incorporated this in clause 25 chiefly with the object of preventing the exaction of a larger fee than is recognized as fair by all zamindars in Orissa to whom I have spoken on the subject.

The statistics collected by the Settlement Department show that about three-fourths of the transfers have occurred amongst the raiyats themselves while one-fourth has been in favour of landlords and one-fourth in favour of mahajans.

"The safeguards provided in the Bill will tend to diminish the amount of transfer which occurs in favour of the last-named class.

"We have not at present any reason to fear that recognition of transfer will encourage improvidence amongst the cultivators. Cultivators are liable to be met by sudden calamities, as for example, the loss of plough cattle by disease. By the sale of half an acre a cultivator can meet such a calamity and, as soon as a good harvest comes, he re-purchases his half acre or buys somebody else's. Or if the calamity be overwhelming, he perhaps sells out altogether, sets off for Calcutta or elsewhere, takes up service, amasses a little money, and then, having made his little pile, returns to his native village and settles down again as a cultivator. I think that we ought not to place any obstacles in the way of this process which is so beneficial to the raiyat and is not injurious in any way to the interests of the landlord.

"A good deal has been said about the reference to a portion of a holding in clause 25 A. Now I want to explain to the Council that more than two-thirds of these transactions, extending over 12 years, and covering 140,000 acres, were sales of part holdings, and no distinction is made by landlords in actual practice in dealing with these part transfers We have proposed to make no distinction in the Act, except that we have introduced certain safeguards against excessive subdivision. It would be a great mistake in the circumstances of Orissa not to allow the transferee and transferor to become separate in responsibility, once the transfer has been recognized. This is the universal practice, and I have never heard of any landlord who took his 25 per cent. and refused to allow the distribution of rent consequent on the transfer.

"We do not propose to extend the provisions of section 25 A to the permanently-settled estates, because we have not sufficient information regarding the usage of transfer in these areas. We justify clause 25 A entirely on information which we have collected in the course of the revision settlement operations in Orissa We cannot assign any similar or sufficient reason for extending the provisions to the permanently-settled area, and I have therefore in the separate amendment which stands in my name proposed that the section shall not extend to the permanently-settled areas.

We have been told that the right of transfer did not exist in the year 1789. But that was about 120 years ago, and we are not legislating now for 1789. We are legislating for the present day and for the future. We have also been told what was the position of the case at the time that the Bengal Tenancy Act was under discussion, that is 30, years ago. We do know that at the time the Bengal Tenancy Act was under discussion there was a very strong volume of opinion in favour of making all occupancy holdings transferable, and we also know from the correspondence and the discussions that took place then that the reason why no such provision was made in the Bengal Tenancy Act was that there was lack of uniformity in the practice of transfer throughout the Province. There was a great deal of diversity of opinion as regards the conditions under which the practice should be recognized. It was impossible to lay down any rule based on uniform or universal usage, and therefore the question was held over. I have read the correspondence and I remember seeing a definite statement made by a previous Lieutenant Governor of Bengal that if the practice of transfer had become uniform he would have no hesitation in recommending to the Government of India, and passing a legislative enactment which would give a right of transfer in accordance with the practice that had become uniform. That is precisely what we want to do in the case of Orissa Attention has also been drawn by the Hon'ble Member to the fact that there is no such provision in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, but there again the situation is absolutely different. We know that in Chota Nagpur, as in the Sonthal Parganas, the great bulk of the cultivators are aborigines or semi-aborigines, who cannot be trusted to exercise the right of transfer without coming to grief, but there is no reason to believe that the exercise of this right which is now being exercised as a matter of fact daily in Orissa, will cause disaster to the people of Orissa. The two cases do not stand on the same footing. Attention has been drawn to a remark made by me that if ever the recognition of transfer proved disastrous in Orissa the time would then have come to interfere—either to repeal the section or to limit the right of transfer. I do not think that is an adequate argument against our recognizing the existing usage in the present Bill. It might possibly happen, though I think it is highly improbable, that in the course of 30 years we shall find lands drifting into the hands of money-lenders and the situation might become such that it would become necessary to re-consider the whole matter. There is no reason why we should not act in the light of the information that we now possess, and acknowledge a usage which has become universal and which in the opinion of all those who are acquainted with the facts acknowledge should be incorporated in the law."

The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur said.—

Sir, I beg to make a few observations with regard to the provision in clause 25 A. This provision seeks to give transferabilities to all occupancy-holders In the Bengal Tenancy Act the matter, that is, the incidence of transferabilities, depends upon the question of custom or usage. It is no doubt from one point of view very desirable that occupancy-holdings should be made transferable Considerable difficulty is felt by the agriculturists when their hands are handicapped and they cannot mortgage and sell their holdings in times of need. At the same time, to protect the interests of the landlords, the existing Tenancy Act has made the question dependent upon the existence or otherwise of custom or usage. In Bengal, when there is a transfer, the landlords sue the transferee for ejectment, treating him as a trespasser. So far as my experience goes in the generality of cases they are settled, and the landlord becomes content with receiving 25 per cent. of the consideration money and a little increase in rent also. In Bengal, however, the Tenancy Act* does not contemplate the transfer of a portion of an occupancy-holding. This is an innovation. In the Bill, not only is the transferability sought to be given to the sale of one integral portion of the occupancy-holding, but it also tries to give that incidence to a portion of an occupancy-holding. The Bill is defective in one respect. One-sixth of an occupancy-holding would be a portion of a holding, and if a holding consists of 20 bighas of land, 3 bighas of land might be sold. In practice I have noticed in hundreds of cases that a tenant who has a holding, say of 12 bighas of land, sells 2 bighas in one case, sells 2 bighas in another case he sells 5 bighas to a person, fixing an imaginary rent for the same generally proportionate to the rent payable for the entire holding. When such a case comes before the landlord in Bengal, even if he be so disposed as to recognize the transfer, there arises the difficulty as to whether the rent which has been fixed as among themselves by the vendor or vendee is adequate for the land that is sold. A holding consisting of 12 bighas of land contains first class, second class, third class and fourth class lands, and the zamindar does not know what to do, he has to make an inquiry for himself in the presence of the vendor and the vendee and then come to terms. Now, as the Bill now stands, an occupancy-holder might sell one-fourth, one-third, one-sixth or one-eighth of a holding, or he might sell a few bighas of land forming, as it were, component parts of the entire holding and this would give rise to the difficulty. No doubt the Government intends to make by this provision a certain provision regarding the transferability. well and good. But let it be confined for the present to the entire holding. Any attempt to legalize transfer of a portion of a holding would give rise to difficulties and complications which would give rise to litigation, and I submit that ought to be avoided. I do not wish to take up the time of the Council with further observations than I have put forward, and I would ask the Hon'ble Member, and in fact the Council, to consider this aspect."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said —

"Sir, after the very interesting speech of the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur, I ought to explain to the Council what the provisions are with regard to the transfer of occupancy holdings. I understand the Hon'ble Member would have no objection to these provisions provided they were confined to complete holdings His objection is that the time is premature to put them in force with regard to part holdings. With regard to the practical aspect of the case, transfers of part holdings do take place in Orissa, and it is especially for those that we want to provide But the Hon'ble Member will see that in Explanation II (iii), one of the points to which the Collector shall have regard in considering whether he should give his consent to the transfer—whether he should make the landlord give his consent to the transfer—is whether the transfer results in the creation of unreasonably small holdings; and then, again, in clause 9f it is laid down that the division of a tenure or holding or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof shall not be binding on the landlord unless it is made with his express consent in writing or with that of his agent duly authorized in that behalf I submit, Sir, therefore, that we have made ample provision for the protection of transfer of part holdings from abuse, and that the Council need have no hesitation in passing this clause 25 A on account of any apprehension that it might go too far as regards part holdings.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said: —

"Your Honour, I raised two or three points in connection with clause 25 A. My Hon'ble friend, Babu Janaki Nath Bose, seems to think that clause 25 A as it stands at present—of course I do not refer to the re-drafted clause 25 A—will throw the onus of proving custom upon the tenant or upon the transferee. He wanted to refer this matter to the Legal Remembrancer, but I submit, Sir, that no reference is necessary If the Members of the Council were to read two or three lines, they would be fully convinced that the sentence as it stands at present in sub clause (3) throws the onus upon the landlord. It is not the tranferee who is to prove the validity of his transfer; it is the landlord who is required to prove such custom by which he can refuse to recognize the transfer. In sub clause (3) the sentence runs thus:—"The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall thereupon inquire and decide whether the landlord is entitled by custom, or for any other good and sufficient reason, to refuse his consent to a transfer." Now there cannot be any room for doubt that the sentence as it reads in this sub-clause throws the onus upon the landlord and not upon the tenant. Now, no doubt, as I have submitted before, that in the re-drafted clause 25 A this matter has been left in the dark, and that would be a bone of contention hereafter, whether the onus is, in the peculiar circumstances of the case, upon the tenant or upon the landlord But we are now considering clause 25 A as it stands in the Bill, we are not considering the re-drafted clause 25 A; and therefore I think my learned friend's argument is that the sentence as it stands throws the onus upon the tenant or upon the transferee is not correct or sound."

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said:—

'May I suggest that it would be preferable if we considered the present re-draft rather than the clause as it came from Select Committee?"

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID FAKHR-UD-DIN said:—

"After this clause is considered."

The PRESIDENT said.—

"Of course, that has not been moved yet."

The Hon'ble MR. CHAPMAN said —

"The re-draft is perfectly clear, the original clause is obscure"

The PRESIDENT said.—

"I do not think the Hon'ble Member need waste time over the original clause because the amended clause is going to be proposed."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID FAKHR-UD-DIN said.—

"Now with regard to the re-drafted clause 25 A, of course I submitted before there is no safeguarding against the transfer of portions of the holding. I have heard just now from the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox and the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson that in the majority of cases in Orissa portions of holdings have been transferred, and that therefore there is presumption of usage. I submit that the Hon'ble Gentlemen have failed to consider the underlying principle of custom or usage, the transfers which take place without the landlords' consent, but with their knowledge and without any successful opposition on behalf of the landlords will go to establish usage or custom. If in Orissa portions of holdings have been transferred with the knowledge and consent of the landlords, they would not raise presumption of any usage. If the landlord has recognized such transfers on taking any salami, say 25 per cent., on the consideration money or something so, that recognition would not establish usage or custom Again custom requires the establishment of transfers from time immemorial. I submit, Sir, that the clause 25 A as it stands will be most injurious, and I further submit, Sir, that even the re-drafted clause 25 A does not meet all the objections and that even should not be adopted."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

78. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause 25 A be omitted.

79. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that clause 25 A be omitted.

80. If motion No. 78 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that for clause 25 A the following be substituted, namely:—

"Transfer of occupancy-holding by sale, gift or exchange.

25A. (1) Every transfer by sale, gift or exchange of any occupancy-holding or a portion of a holding shall be invalid unless made with the consent of the landlord, or unless where there is a custom, usage or customary right of such transfer, without the consent of the landlord on payment of a fee being made to him.

(2) When any occupancy-holding or portion of a holding is so transferred with or without the consent of the landlord, as aforesaid, the landlord, on registration of the transfer in his office, shall be entitled to levy a maximum registration fee as follows, namely:—

(a) In the case of a sale, a sum equal to 25 per cent. of the market value, or to six times the annual rent of the holding or portion thereof, whichever is greater:

Provided that,

(i) until sufficient reason to the contrary is shown, the market value shall be deemed to be the consideration money as shown in the deed or document effecting the transfer, or, where there is no such deed or document, the consideration money actually paid for the transfer; and

(ii) in case the rent is paid in kind and is fluctuating, the average yield to the landlord during five agricultural years preceding the sale shall, for the purposes of this section, be taken as the annual rental of the holding or portion thereof.

(b) In the case of gift or exchange, a sum equal to six times the annual rental of the holding or portion thereof:

Provided that, in case the rent is paid in kind and is fluctuating, the average yield to the landlord during five agricultural years preceding the sale shall, for the purposes of this section, be taken as the annual rental of the holding or portion thereof.

(3) If, in any case, the landlord accepts the fee authorized by sub-section (2), his consent to the transfer shall be deemed to have been given.

(4) If, in any case, a dispute arises between the transferee and the landlord, either with regard to the validity of the transfer or with regard to the fee payable for such transfer, the landlord or the transferee shall apply to the Collector who shall inquire into and decide the same.

(5) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of either party to bring a suit in the civil court to contest the correctness of the finding of the Collector with regard to the validity or otherwise of the transfer, and, subject as above and to any appeal or revision as provided for in this Act, the order of the Collector under this section shall be final.

(6) If, notwithstanding the order of the Collector to the contrary, the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee, the transferee may deposit such fee with the Collector, who shall cause the said fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered

(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize a division of a tenure or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof unless it is made with the express consent in writing of the landlord or his agent duly authorized in this behalf.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

81. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "with the consent of the landlord or according to custom" be inserted after the word "exchange" in line 2 of clause 25 A (1).

82. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "or portion of a holding" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 25 A (1) be omitted.

83. If motion No. 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or portion of a holding" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 25 A (1) be omitted.

84 The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "within six months from the date of transfer" be inserted before the words "to the landlord" in line 3 of clause 25 A (1).

He said —

"There is no provision in clause 25 A to expedite the transfers, and it is necessary that the transfer should be registered in the presence of the landlord as soon as possible and I think that is the intention of the Hon'ble Member in charge. So I propose that these words be added

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said —

"Sir, I oppose this amendment because I do not think it would do any good. I am just as anxious as the Hon'ble Mover that these transfers should be recorded as soon as possible. But would the mere putting in of the words "within six months from the date of transfer" effect this object? Their effect would rather be to deter people who have not come forward within six months from coming forward later We are dealing with ignorant raiyats who do not know the law very well, and if the transfer does come to notice more than six months after the transaction, why should we prevent the transferee from paying the fee to the landlord and getting the transfer formally recognized. I do not think that this amendment would do any practical good. I therefore oppose it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

85. If motion No. 83 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or portion" in line 4 and the words "or portion thereof" in lines 9 and 10, 12 and 13 in clause 25 A (1) be omitted.

86. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "market value" be substituted for the words "consideration money" in line 2 of clause 25 A (1) (a).

87. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the following be substituted for clause 25 A (3), namely:—

(3) "If the landlord demands a higher fee than that prescribed in clauses (1) (a) and (1) (b) of this section, the transferee or his successor in interest may apply to the Collector. The Collector, after notice to the landlord, shall (?) make a summary inquiry. If the Collector is satisfied that the complaint is true, he shall inflict a fine on the landlord not exceeding twice the excess fee demanded. If the Collector finds that the complaint is false, he shall direct the applicant to pay all legitimate costs incurred by the landlord during the summary inquiry."

He said:—

"Sir, first of all I shall ask the permission of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to be a little indulgent to me and allow me to make a slight alteration in the amendment so as to include also sub-clauses (4) and (5). It was, as it seems, rather an oversight on my part or the typewriter's mistake"

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sub-clauses (4) and (5) are proposed to be cut out altogether."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Sir, I have very carefully and with much interest listened to the many speeches which have been made regarding the condition of the raiyat and what can be done to help him. Unfortunately the raiyat is not here—the raiyat is not to be found anywhere in this hall, and all of us say that we are his representatives One sees an agent of the Gorakshini Sabha with a picture of the cow going about collecting funds to save cattle from slaughter; you see also the cow in a picture of Bovril; so everybody thinks he can represent the raiyat. I do not say that I am a representative of the raiyat. I wish I were. I should certainly feel a greater pride in occupying this seat here, and I do not mind standing at the farthest point of this hall so long as I can say fitly that I represent the poor raiyat Sir, I have mixed with him, I have made my feeble attempts, unsuccessfully, I must say, to improve his condition. At any rate, here we have found the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox was not his friend, but he has changed since The Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose was not his friend, but he has changed since The Hon'ble Mr McPherson has been his friend within the last five years. When the Committee met at Cuttack, at which the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox presided, I was his friend and I continue to be his friend—at least I am an older friend than any of these gentlemen Then the question that has been put before us is the transferabilty. I have read that word and, when I go through the cumbrous provisions, the different stages at which the landlord might oppose him, I ask, where does all this ability go? It adds to the ability of opposition, not to the ability of transfer. The most unfortunate circumstance in connection with this question is that it is not possible for us to place ourselves in the poor raiyat's position when he is on the verge of starvation and wants to sell a plot of his holding. Perhaps the floods have come, starvation stares him and his family, his house has been washed away, and then he wants to sell a portion of his holding in order to leave his family there in his village and to go to some place to work as a coolie, and wants his railway fare; that is the time he wants to sell his holding The question is, none of us can place ourselves in that position and realize the pinch of necessity as it pinches him at that particular time. Sir, everyone—many at least—can play the Hamlet's ghost on the stage, but does anybody realize the feelings of Hamlet's ghost? It is necessary for one to die like Hamlet, be buried, and then come out of his grave and then he would know what the feelings of Hamlet's ghost were. So it is not possible for us to realize the raiyat's position. All that I can say, Sir, apart from wit, but if it were possible for me to picture in graphic language the condition of the raiyat in the circumstances to which I have referred, and if I could hold up before the minds of the Hon'ble Members here the picture, I should say, there, there is the man! He wants to sell his land; he wants to go away at once; and then, I should ask you, are you improving his position by putting all these clauses here, which enable the zamindar to say he is a bad man; that man has got a bad character,—all these sort of objections. What does that mean? These are the zamindar's lookout. The transferee buys, and the zamindar bargains with him; if the zamindar bargains for a thief, let him have a thief, but let the poor raiyat who wants to have a little cash have facilities. This is putting stumbling blocks in his way.

"Now the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson says—I have taken down his words—that we do not want to increase litigation by suggesting means of litigation. What becomes of the state of things when you put in all these—in every instance the zamindar can oppose Now the thing is this. the zamindar no doubt has a right to the land, but we must take the raiyat's share in it; he brought the land to a better condition, and we all know the old couplet:—

When Adam delved and Eve span,
Where was then the gentleman?

The man brought the land under cultivation, who worked on the land which was lying waste at the last settlement—it is the raiyat who has brought it under cultivation The Government reaps the benefit of the cultivation, the zamindar reaps the benefit of the cultivation."

The Hon'ble MR. MADDOX said.—

"I rise to a point of order It is not the landlord's description we are discussing, but the demand by a landlord for higher fees. Have the Hon'ble Mr. Das's remarks anything to do with item No. 87 or the demand of the landlord for higher fees?"

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said —

"All that I mean by bringing forward these explanations is to consider whether the landlord has got a sufficient case in refusing his consent to the transfer."

The Hon'ble MR MCPHERSON said:—

"I think, Sir, that the Hon'ble Mr. Das is in order. What he suggests is that this amendment of his should be substituted for the whole of sub-clause (3), including the Explanations. He can, therefore, discuss the Explanation."

The PRESIDENT said·-

"Your amendment is to replace the whole of No. 73?"

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—"Yes."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"Then he is in order in discussing the various grounds on which he wishes to have it removed. You are quite in order, Mr. Das."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said.—

"All these grounds must be removed if you want to give him facility. I do not want to disturb the right of the zamindar. It is settled that he should have 25 per cent. of the consideration money. The remedy is not sought for all cases The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson says this, that in most cases the zamindar receives 25 per cent., and it is only a few grabbing zamindars whose cases require special legislation. Very good. Then who ought to be punished? These grabbing men ought to be punished. The majority of zamindars are good; they allow the transfers. I am talking only of Orissa. I have no right to talk of Bihar or Bengal; and the majority of zamindars are willing; they allow the raiyat to transfer. Very good. Then there are a few, and what is the evil? These few want more than 25 per cent. Very good. I say, if they want more than 25 per cent., punish those unscrupulous zamindars. As soon as a zamindar demands more, the raiyat goes to the Collector and says—well the law authorizes 25 per cent. and this man wants from me 50 per cent.; and the Collector inquires and says—you wanted 25 rupees more, you will have to pay a fine of 50 rupees. This he decides in a summary way.

"The zamindar, if he is a good man, will take 25 per cent.; if he is a bad man, he will want more than 25 per cent., and the transferee by some means will have to make it up with the zamindar. Now, the zamindar knows that he has got all this armour and he can object on such and such grounds; so he says to the transferee, "You go to the Collector; I will go to the Civil Court; I will take the matter to the highest Court and you calculate the cost of the litigation with me. Instead of that, you pay half of that amount to me." That is what will be done under the provisions of the Bill. Under my proposal all that will be removed."

The Hon'ble SIR BIJAY CHAND MAHTAB, MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said:—

"I am sorry I have to oppose this amendment on the ground that, if we look at clause 25 A (8), we find that this has been put in to safeguard certain customs that may exist, and the point that the Hon'ble Mr. Das has in view is that, if there be such landlords in Orissa—he does not speak very highly of Orissa—they will oppress the raiyats, but the safeguard is that he may appear and be heard, etc., and the Collector may 'for any good and sufficient reason refuse his consent to the transfer.' "

"Supposing the reason that the Hon'ble Mr Das has in view is not a good and sufficient reason, the Collector will certainly reject the landlord's proposition. I do not see, therefore, why the Hon'ble Mr. Das in this amendment should have brought in all sorts of things, including 'Hamlet's ghost.' "

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"I admit that in this matter I have a certain amount of sneaking sympathy with the Hon'ble Mr. Das. What he apparently wants to put into the Bill is that all occupancy-rights are transferable, that zamindars are entitled to be paid a fee of 25 per cent., and that if they ask for more than 25 per cent., the raiyat may go to the Collector and get a penalty out of his landlord equal to double the amount of the excess demand. That may be a very desirable position, but what we have to consider is the question of practical politics. Even with all these safeguards that we have included in our clause 25 A—safeguards in the interests of the zamindars—there has been a considerable amount of opposition to our proposals. If we had put forward propositions such as Mr. Das has suggested, we should have had all the zamindars of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa on the top of us, and there would have been no chance whatever of carrying our proposals. I do not see that his proposal is a practical one in the present state of affairs, and I do not see how we can possibly accept his amendment at this stage of the discussion. Mr. Das, I may remark, himself threw out as a general accusation against the Bill that we had ransacked all the law of India to find repressive legislation to utilize against the peaceful Uriyas. This little addition to the penal clauses of the Bill now proposed by him does not seem to accord with his accusation or with his general attitude towards the Bill. I must oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"I do not look upon it as a penal clause. I made a remark to that effect, but what I really meant, as I shall perhaps shew hereafter, is that the Bill gives us perhaps the character of being the most turbulent people under Your Honour's Government. I do not like to say a word about the zamindars of Bihar or Bengal. I do not know them, and perhaps there are many very kind or very good landlords amongst them; at any rate, most of our zamindars are good enough, and what I say is, do not throw the apple of discord amongst them. If they can settle it between themselves let them do so. If a raiyat dances attendance on a zamindar and works a little for him, he may thereby get his fee or a portion of his fee taken off. But if he goes to Court he finds a formidable enemy, and I would rather have 'the song of the dying swan' from the raiyat.

"If the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson has sympathy with my views, I expect him to have the courage of a Scotchman."

The result of the division was ayes 4, noes 36, and the motion was therefore lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

88. If motion No. 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "whether the holding or portion thereof is transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord or whether the landlord has" be substituted for the words "whether the landlord is entitled by custom or for" in line 6 of clause 25A (3).

(The Hon'ble Member, however, stipulates that if his motions Nos. 83 and 85 be carried, the words "or portion thereof" in the above amendment should be omitted.)

89. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move the following amendments to clause 25A (3)—

(i) the words "transferee or his successor" be substituted for the word "landlord" in line 6;

(ii) the words "or for any other good and sufficient reason" in lines 6 and 7 be omitted; and

(iii) the words "to obtain a registration of the transfer of the holding or a portion thereof" be substituted for the words "to refuse his consent to the transfer" in line 7.

The whole sentence, therefore, to read as follows:—

"The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall thereupon inquire and decide whether the transferee or his successor in interest is entitled by custom to obtain a registration of the transfer of the holding or a portion thereof, and if the Collector finds that the holding is so transferable, etc."

90. If motion No. 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "and any arrears due for the holding" be inserted after the words "cause the said fee" in line 10 of clause 25A (3).

91. If motion No 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the following proviso be added at the end of clause 25 A (3), namely :—

"Provided that no such application shall be admitted by the Collector if it is made after six months from the date of the landlord's refusal."

92. If motion No. 89 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that Explanation I to clause 25A (3) be omitted.

93. If motion No. 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that Explanation I to clause 25A (3) be omitted.

94. If motions Nos. 79 and 93 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "that the holding is transferable by custom" be substituted for the words "that he is entitled by custom to refuse his consent to the recognition of transfers in individual cases" in lines 3 to 5 of Explanation I to clause 25A (3).

95. If motion No. 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the following be substituted for Explanation II to clause 25A (3), namely:—

"Explanation II.—The following shall be considered good and sufficient reasons for the landlord's refusal to give consent—

"(i) that the transferee is a non-agriculturist or a professional money-lender;

"(ii) that the transferee does not reside within, or in the vicinity of, the village in which the holding is situated;

"(iii) that the transfer does not result in the creation of unreasonably small holdings; and

"(iv) that the transferee is a habitual defaulter of rent or a person who, for any other reasonable cause, should not be made a tenant of the landlord without his consent."

96. If motion No. 83 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that Explanation II (iii) be omitted.

97. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "is in respect of a portion of a holding" be substituted for the words "results in the creation of unreasonably small holdings" in Explanation II (iii) to clause 25A (3)

98. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "provided that the Court shall presume such finding to be correct until the contrary is proved" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 25A (5) be omitted

99. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "provided that the Court shall presume such finding to be correct until the contrary is proved" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 25A (5) be omitted.

100. If motion No 79 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "provided that the Court shall presume such finding to be correct until the contrary is proved" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 25A (5) be omitted.

101. The Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, to move that for sub-clause (5) of clause 25A the following be substituted, viz.—

"(5) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any party to institute a Civil suit on any matter decided by the Collector under this section."

7 A. The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that for sub-clause (3) and Explanation I thereto of clause 25 A the following be substituted, namely:—

"(3) If, in any such case, the landlord refuses to accept the requisite fee, the transferee or his successor-in-interest may deposit such fee with the Collector, and, at the same time, apply for registration of the transfer. The Collector, after giving notice to the landlord to appear and be heard, shall decide whether the holding is transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord and whether the landlord has any good and sufficient reason to refuse his consent to the transfer; and if the Collector finds that the holding is so transferable, and that the landlord has no good and sufficient reason to refuse his consent to the transfer, he shall cause the said fee to be delivered to the landlord in the prescribed manner, and shall, by an order in writing, declare that the transfer has been duly registered.

Explanation 1.—The fact that the landlord is in the habit of charging fees on the registration of transfers of holdings shall not by itself be taken as proof that the holding is not transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord."

The motion was put and agreed to.

8 A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that sub-clauses (4) and (5) of clause 25 A be omitted.

The motion was put and agreed to.

9 A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the following sub clause, to be numbered (4), be added at the end of clause 25 A, as amended in Council, namely:—

"(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to the transfer of an occupancy-holding in a permanently-settled estate."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 246.

15 A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson, with the permission of the President, moved that the following new illustration be added after illustration 1*a*) to clause 246, namely:—

"(1*aa*) A usage under which a raiyat in a permanently settled estate is entitled to sell his holding without the consent of his landlord is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That usage, accordingly, wherever it may exist, will not be affected by this Act."

He said:—

"This is a consequential amendment to No. 9 A The illustration, as it stands in the Bengal Tenancy Act,* was included in the original draft of the Bill. It was removed from the Bill when it was proposed to make clause 25 A generally applicable. Now that clause 25 A has been made inapplicable to permanently-settled estates it is necessary to restore the illustration, so far as permanently-settled estates are concerned."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 50.

128. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajiaftidar" in lines 1 and 4 in the proviso to clause 50.

Clause 52.

129. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "in a permanently-settled area" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 52 (1) be omitted.

130. If motion No. 129 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "situated in a permanently-settled area" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 52 (2) be omitted.

* i.e., Act VIII of 1885.

Clause 54A.

131. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that clause 54A be omitted.

He said:—

"This is a new measure and has been taken from the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act* It encroaches upon the existing rights of the landlords. Clause 148 in Chapter XII, which is practically the same provision as this, limits its application to temporarily-settled areas, and this one—54A—will practically be introduced for permanently-settled areas. I have got another amendment on permanently-settled areas, so I need not say anything about that. It is intended to apply to permanently-settled area, where Chapter XII is not introduced. I think this restriction should not apply not only to permanently-settled area but also to temporarily-settled area. I beg to move that this clause be deleted."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"I have the same amendment and if Your Honour permits me, I will make my remarks."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"Certainly."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"This I oppose because it is really injurious to the interests of the raiyat. What was the actual state of things when the revisional settlement work began? From the year 1840, when we had a revenue settlement to sometime in 1890, the raiyat was in the habit of breaking up waste land and bringing it under cultivation and enjoying the produce without paying any rent for it, because the zamindar did not care to measure the land. From time to time the zamindar measured the land and then they settled up accounts and the raiyat paid something. Of course it will be said that he was not a raiyat there; it was the zamindar's property and he was encroaching upon it. So he has no doubt in that case, but the zamindar by custom had allowed him; there was good feeling and the zamindar showed him that indulgence But the Revenue settlement work began. To quote the words of the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson he says:—

'The Government of India have suggested that the relations of landlord and tenant in Orissa are not such as to justify interference of this kind, but in my opinion there is nothing which is more essential for the preservation of satisfactory agrarian conditions in Orissa than the authoritative settlement of the disputes that have arisen in the course of revision, or will arise in the course of maintenance, between landlord and tenant over this and other like matters It is one of the regrettable results of revision work that it has brought to the prominent notice of the proprietors thousands of cases of petty extension of cultivation, each of which has become a bone of contention between landlord and tenant, the landlord claiming that the tenant is a trespasser and refusing his permission to the inclusion of the area in the original tenancy except on payment of a rack-rent, the tenant claiming, according to old custom, to hold at the average village rate or at the rate paid for similar lands in the vicinity Had there been no revision settlement and no maintenance, the tenants would, in 99 cases out of 100, have gone on extending their cultivation without let or hinderance and at the next land-revenue settlement they would have been assessed to rent for the excess area at the average village rate, without any claim or remonstrance on the part of the zamindar. During the course of the last revenue settlement operations, no proprietor, to my knowledge, ever maintained that his tenant was a trespasser in respect of excess area, or claimed a rent in kind The custom is undoubtedly, as stated by Mr. Taylor, that tenants in Orissa break up waste lands in villages with or without the express consent of the landlord, and from time to time the latter measures up the new cultivation and settles a fair rent which formerly used to be the village rate for similar lands in the vicinity. The extreme rise of prices in recent years has tempted the cupidity of landlords, and they are endeavouring to break down the old custom It is our duty to stand between the landlord and tenant and see that the latter is not wronged by the former. We have largely created the difficulty by our interference. We should not run away from it'

"They say 'we have largely created the difficulty by our own interference and we should not run away from it' and to-day they want to interfere again and bring about unfriendly relations. It reminds me of the mother-in-law in an English house—I don't know what it is in a Scotchman's house. In an Englishman's house the mother-in-law comes there and disturbs the friendly relations in the family, and then she says 'you don't agree and I must be here to see that you do agree.' But this disagreement comes about by her presence and yet she says she must be there.

"Looking at it from a serious point of view, there is the Government of India's opinion that the relations between the landlord and tenant would not justify such a measure. This is brought from Chota Nagpur. But how long has it been in Chota Nagpur? It has been there from 1908. I was reading only the other day a part of the speech delivered by the Lieutenant-Governor of East Bengal—a part of the farewell speech to the Council, and there he said 'experience should be the basis of legislation and we must proceed slowly.' We lose sight of the fact that during the last few years there have been several Acts introduced into Chota Nagpur with a view to place on a satisfactory basis the relations of the landlord and tenant there. We also know all about the Munda raiyats and this Act has been in existence only for 2 years, and so little known about it when the Bill was introduced into Council those gentlemen who are responsible for the Bill had not thought of introducing it into the Bill: not only that, but I beg to raise a very serious objection which, in my honest opinion, is deserving of consideration, that is, having in view that remark from the Government of India that the relations of landlord and tenant do not call for such a thing, I beg to inquire whether the consent of that Government has been taken to the introduction of this special clause by the Select Committee in that Select Committee."

The Hon'ble MR McPHERSON said:—

"May I rise by way of explanation merely to point out that this is not a clause introduced by the Select Committee? The principle was already embodied in the Bill in clause 148, and has been sanctioned by the Government of India. It is the same principle in a different place."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"It is the same principle but it is very different in form. Then Sir, we have had sufficient experience during the revision and Revenue settlements of Orissa as regards the prudence and desirability of introducing one Act which was meant for one part of the country in another part of the country. The Bengal Tenancy Act* was introduced and after all these troubles Government found out that a separate Act was necessary, and now in the face of that experience —an experience the result of which is before us and has been the occasion for much discussion in this Council—it is decided to import into Orissa a part of Chota Nagpur Act.

"Looking at the Chota Nagpur Act† I find, this, Sir, that the oral or written consent of the landlord for the conversion of a raiyati holding shall be required in every case. Now the state of things in Chota Nagpur is very different. Korkar means lands, by whatever name locally known, such as bahbala, khandwat, jalsasan or ariat which has been artificially levelled or embanked primarily for the cultivation of rice, and which previously was jungle, waste or uncultivated, or was cultivated upland or which though previously cultivated has become unfit for the cultivation of transplanted rice. These different kinds of waste lands include also lands which have been cultivated once and have been allowed to grow waste. Then the condition of things is very different in Orissa, and nobody can say how this will work in Orissa. Then the introduction of this into Orissa will at least disturb the happy state of things and peaceful state of relations between landlords and tenants in Orissa which have existed hitherto. Who wants it? Neither the zamindar wants it nor the raiyat wants it. He may be foolish. He sleeps over his rights. He allows the raiyat to cultivate his lands without taking any rent from him. That is his lookout. But I suppose he is not so foolish, but knows that, after all, the raiyat is something like a garden to him. Every time he goes to him, he will have something from him, and therefore he allows him to have all these advantages. Then the raiyat does not want it. This is introduced by the Settlement Department. The Settlement Officer is there and he says: 'I have said that I have created the disturbance, and I must be here because I mean to do the same thing which created the disturbance before.' That is the sort of argument I submit this ought to be removed and further it is not called for. It is really legislating to disturb a happy and peaceful state of things. We do not want to increase litigation and friction between the landlords and tenants. The one is rich and the other is poor. There must be a conflict of interests between these two classes of people, and the less the prominent points of this conflict are brought to the notice of the parties, the better for the parties, and the better will be the relations between them. If an attempt is made by legislation to bring into prominence the relations between the two, more frequently, the result will be friction, and I think peace ought to be bought at any price, even at the price of the desire to legislate."

The Hon'ble MR. MADDOX said:—

"Sir, I think that if an Uriya raiyat were here to listen to the latter part of the debate he would perhaps recognise his mother-in-law. I do not see how the Hon'ble Mr Das can say that this clause is not designed in the best interests of the raiyats It is designed to give them protection and to preserve to them the fruits of their labours subject to proper control by the landlords. I may say that this clause incorporates one of the conditions on which this legislation was founded. Many grievances were considered and as the Hon'ble Mr. Das mentioned yesterday, the bajiaftidars were one of the classes who were found to have been wrongly recorded. The bajiaftidars have now been put on a better basis in this Bill, as also the chandnadars and the proprietary tenure-holders and others. This provision is one of the means which have been sought in this Bill to redress the grievances so far as the raiyats are concerned, and there are others for the landlords and the zamindars. It was found that they had difficulty in paying their land-revenue and a concession has been devised whereby they shall get as an addition to their private lands, lands which were found in their cultivation at the last settlement. These lands will be recorded as their nij jote or private lands on which occupancy-rights will not accrue as an addition to the nij-jote lands which they had before, that is to say, the proprietors' private lands will be increased by double the amount which they formerly had. In return for this concession the zamindars are asked to recognise the lands which the tenants have reclaimed by their exertions. It is a part of the concession which the landlords will give up, in return for which they will get a concession of increased area of private lands. I think that this particular clause is a very fundamental clause indeed, and I beg the Council to retain it."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sir, I will first endeavour to explain to the Council the history of this clause as it appears not to be clear This and the ten following amendments relate to the reclamation of waste lands by raiyats. In the course of the revision settlement it was found that raiyats were in possession of areas, usually of inconsiderable extent, which from a comparison with the maps and records of the previous settlement appeared to be reclamations of former waste lands. A considerable amount of dispute arose over these petty reclamations, the raiyats contending on the one hand that they brought them under reclamation in accordance with ancient custom or with the consent, tacit or expressed, of the landlord or his local agent, the landlord contending on the other hand, that the reclaimers were trespassers. The disputes were in practically all cases, amicably settled on the interposition of Assistant Settlement Officers the landlords withdrawing their objections on receipt of a small salami from the raiyat and a fair and equitable rent was settled for the additional lands in accordance with the provisions of section 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act,* corresponding to clause 54 of the present Bill. When the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox explained to the Orissa Committee of 1909 the concession which he porposed to recommend to Government with regard to private lands of proprietors in Orissa the proprietors who took part in the proceedings acquiesced in his proposal that the Orissa Tenancy Bill should include provisions on the lines of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act for the assessment of new reclamation to which landlords had not taken objection within two years of its commencement. These provisions were embodied in clause 148A, which is a part of the maintenance chapter of the Bill. It is still uncertain whether the policy of maintenance will be extended to Orissa and it is possible that Chapter XII may never be given effect to. The Select Committee have therefore repeated the provision of clause 148A with certain modifications in this clause 54 A. If there be a periodical revision of records at regular intervals of three or five years, landlords will receive up to date maps and records of their villages and will be in a position to detect with ease encroachments on waste lands. Under these circumstances, there is no reason why provisions which find a place in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, should not apply to areas in which the provisions of Chapter XII are in force. The case is somewhat different in areas that are not affected by Chapter XII. In such areas, or throughout Orissa, if it be decided to have no maintenance of records in Orissa, it was thought by the Select Committee that two years was too short a period in which to expect a landlord to take cognizance of unauthorised extensions of cultivation. The period was accordingly extended to four years. A further concession was made that if the reclaimed areas were situated in tracts of waste land that had not yet been included in villages as defined in section 3, the ordinary 12 years' rule should apply. Such tracts are said to exist in some of the larger permanently-settled estates like Kujang or Kanika, and it was represented that reclamation may go on undetected in such areas for more than four years. It was therefore reasonable to make this concession in their favour. I oppose this and the other amendments to clause 54A because I consider the clause to be necessary for the proper administration of the agrarian law and the regulation of the relations of landlord and tenant in Orissa. If a landlord neglects his estate to such an extent as to fail to detect for four years extensions of cultivation, it is only fair that he should pay for his neglect. It is grossly unfair that the average mofussil raiyat who has spent his time, labour and money in making an addition to his holding, either in ignorance of the fact that his landlord's written or specific consent is necessary, or under the impression that he has made the reclamation with his landlord's knowledge or with the tacit consent of his landlord or of the landlord's local agent, should at the end of four, six or ten years be liable to be turned neck and crop out of the land which he has redeemed from barrenness and converted into a source of profit both to himself and his landlord. What we provide is that in such a case the labourer shall retain the land on condition that he pays a fair and equitable rent for the same. The right of the reclaimer has always been regarded with consideration in the agrarian economy of India. Section 52 is a testimony to that, indicating as it does, that the common practice is to measure up lands periodically and assess additional areas that may be found to have accrued to holdings by reclamation. It was the old custom of Orissa. When the last revenue settlement of Orissa was made, rents were adjusted on an area basis and no landlord ever sought to deny the right of his raiyat over any area that appeared to be in excess of the previous settlement area or the area shown in the landlord's own papers. I rest my defence of this provision on grounds of common honesty and equity. The clause as it was drafted commended itself to the approval of the landlords who were on the Select Committee. I would ask those of them who have now proposed

these amendments to display the spirit of generosity and equity towards their tenantry in this matter and to withdraw their opposition.

"Before sitting down, I wish to make a few remarks regarding some points raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Das. I will first deal with his objection that in this particular matter we are copying from the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act a provision that has only been in force for four years, and that four years is not long enough to enable us to judge of its working. He has also told us that experience should be the basis of legislation To my mind inclusion of this provision in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is a very strong argument indeed for its inclusion in the Orissa Act The case of Chota Nagpur is exactly on all fours with that of Orissa. The old custom was undoubtedly in Chota Nagpur, as in Orissa, that raiyats who made additions to their holdings by reclamation had rent assessed on these additions. But what is now happening in Orissa happened also in Chota Nagpur The landlords instead of following the old custom began to put forward the contention that the raiyats were trespassers in respect of these additional areas. I may here read a passage from Mr. John Reid's edition of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. The language in which he explains the reason why this addition was made to the Chota Nagpur Act runs thus —

> 'The common practice according to which some landlords used to allow raiyats to prepare korkar without objection for a period of four or five years, and then sue them for ejectment as trespassers when the lands became valuable, is met by the provisions of sub section (3). Unless the landlord now sues for ejectment within two years from the date on which the cultivator commenced to prepare the land, he will be deemed to have given consent and to have condoned the trespass (if any).'

"That is exactly what we are doing in Orissa: We find that landlords are beginning to object to these petty reclamations and to threaten that they will sue the raiyats in the Civil Courts for ejectment. As a matter of fact they have sued in some cases, but they have never pressed the plea of trespass home We have settled, as I have said, thousands of these cases in the revision settlement without objection and similar disputes which have gone to the Special Judge or the Civil Court have been settled amicably in the same way.

"In these circumstances we have embodied in the law a provision that if reclamation has gone on without objection for a certain period, say four years, the landlord will be presumed to have given his consent and to have known that the raiyat is reclaiming the lands in question. In some ways I am indebted to the remarks that have fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Das, because they support the arguments on which we have based the introduction of this provision into the Act. He has told us that it has been from time immemorial the custom in Orissa for raiyats to reclaim additional areas, and to pay additional rent for them, when they are brought to light by periodical measurement. It is because this old custom is being infringed, that we are endeavouring to provide this compromise in the Bill.

"Then, the Hon'ble Mr. Das has taken hold of some opinions that I expressed elsewhere on this subject, to discuss what is really a different subject, viz., the subject of maintenance of records. That will come on in due time. What I want to point out to Mr. Das is that you do not avoid the difficulty by excluding a provision of this kind from your Bill. We should merely be running away from the difficulty if we took no action in the matter. The question has arisen. The doctrine of trespass is being maintained by some landlords, and, as a matter of fact, suits are being filed for the ejectment of reclaimers. I do not know in what sense Mr. Das can represent himself as a friend of the raiyats in this matter, when he asks the Council to exclude this clause from the Bill. If no action be taken, the question will only be postponed until the next maintenance operations, if there be any such, or until the next revenue settlement comes on. We do not want to wait till it is too late.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Das says that by this measure we are only going to disturb the friendly relations that subsist between landlords and tenants in Orissa. He says that the Orissa landlords are people who sleep over their rights. That is just what we want to avoid. We do not want them to sleep over their rights for ten or twelve years and then wake up to find valuable plots of land, made by the raiyats, which they can claim as their own. We want to have the matter decided on the spot and at once. With these remarks I oppose the amendment."

On the Hon'ble Mr. Das rising to reply, the President said :—

"I do not think that you have got the right to reply in regard to this."

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said :—

"He also has a motion on it."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"He ought to have moved the amendment first if he wanted to have the right of reply."

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said :—

"I think, Sir, that the landlords in Orissa are not very interfering and do not interfere with such cultivation, and the present happy state of things will be disturbed by the introduction of this new clause Therefore I wish to press this motion."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

132. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that clause 54A be omitted.

133. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "oral or" in line 2 of clause 54A (1) be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, these words will unnecessarily increase litigation. In every case the trespasser shall raise the plea of oral consent. It is difficult to decide a case on oral evidence, and as this is an exceptional privilege to the raiyat, we should confine ourselves to 'written consent,' which will be easy to prove or disprove."

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said :—

"I do not accept this amendment. I think it is better to leave the words 'oral or' as they are in the clause."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

134. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "oral or" in line 2 of clause 54A (1) be omitted.

135. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause 54A (2) be omitted.

136. If motion No. 131 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that clause 54A (2) be omitted.

137. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the word "twelve" be substituted for the word "four" in line 3 of clause 54A (2).

He said :—

"Sir, this provision lays the axe at the root of proprietary right. The principle of the right of property is that a man is not only allowed to dispose of his land usefully, but also to let or refuse to let at his own pleasure without anybody's leave, in fact to do what he likes with his own. This clause gives right to any trespasser who may scatter a few seeds upon a plot of land unknown to the landlord, and there is no reason whatever why a landlord should be compelled to recognise him as a tenant after a short period. The raiyat may be a most undesirable person, and the landlord will have no option to pick and choose and settle with another raiyat who may give a better rent and better security for the payment of such rent in consideration of the increase of population, increase of agricultural profits and increase of demand for land If for some reason the trespasser remains in possession and if he refuses to execute a lease tendered by the landlord, the landlord will be driven to the necessity of instituting a suit in order to obtain a fair rent from him, and he will have no right to deal with him at his discretion. If this clause be passed they will effect a redistribution of property, the raiyats being given a right which they do not now possess but which they will try to obtain by hook or by crook, and the landlords relegated to a back seat, though their responsibilities as owners will remain just the same. In fact this clause proposes a redistribution of property between landlord and tenant without offering any compensation to the landlord for the deprivation of the sum of his rights. It will set up class against class and aggravate the evil of litigation. By clauses 110 and 257 the rights of the landlords both in temporarily and permanently-settled estates to contract with their raiyats have been taken away and the Revenue Officer has been made the arbiter of their fortunes, and now the power of the landlord even to drive away a trespasser from his own land has been withdrawn, and this I should say is the last straw to break his back.

"No reason has been assigned why the period of twelve years provided by the general law of limitation for bringing suits against trespassers should be curtailed to four and two years in permanently and temporarily-settled estates, respectively. The period of twelve years was provided after due deliberation. The difficulty and inconvenience of the landlord may be best realised if the trespasser can manage, in collusion with the landlord's agent and employés, to keep back all information about the occupation from his knowledge. This collusive and clandestine occupation will tend to increase the value of the land, and will hold out a premium to encroachments without taking into account the loss which the landlords might sustain Under the circumstances the periods prescribed in the Bill are too short, and the general law of limitation should be retained."

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said :—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment because I think that the Council have practically voted against it already. If you substitute '12' for '4' in clause 54 (2) you may as well wipe out the section altogether. As the Council have voted in favour of the section, I do not think the Council can possibly accept the suggestion that 12 be substituted for 4."

A division was then taken, with the following result —

The result of the division was Ayes 12, Noes 29, and the motion was therefore, lost.

138. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the word "eight" be substituted for the word "four" in line 3 of clause 54A (2).

He said:-

"For reasons stated I beg to move that the word 'eight' be substituted for the word 'four' in line 3 of clause 54 (a) (2)."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said:—

"I cannot accept this amendment, Sir. I have already explained that in my opinion four years is the maximum limit that ought to be allowed for interference by the landlord. There are several amendments suggesting 12, 8, and 6 instead of four. I ask the Council to stick to the period which is in the Bill. I think this is a matter in which the zamindars might profitably display a little generosity and equity towards their tenants, instead of making this persistent opposition to the provisions of the section. If they are going to admit the principle at all, they had better admit it generously than attempt to whittle it down in this way."

The motion was put and lost.

139. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the word "six" be substituted for the word "four" in line 3 of clause 54A (2).

He said:—

"I had a modest amendment. I thought the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill would be able to accept it, but since he has opposed the other amendment and is not prepared to make any concession, I beg to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

140. If motions Nos. 131 and 136 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "six" be substituted for the word "four" in line 3 of clause 54A (2).

141. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the following be added after clause 54A (3), namely:—

"(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to permanently settled areas."

He said:—

"There are large areas of waste land in permanently-settled estates. It is to the benefit of the proprietors of those estates to encourage cultivation. Every facility is given to authorized cultivation. Clandestine cultivation ought to be checked. The following are the principal arguments put forth for retaining this clause:—First as the Government has been generous enough to allow the proprietors of the nij-chas lands that are in actual cultivation in the temporarily-settled area, it is proposed to give some concession to the raiyats in this Bill. But the Bill does not give any compensation to the permanently settled area, so I do not see why the right should be allowed here. The second argument is that the extension of cultivation will be checked, or the legitimate growth of land-revenue interfered with. This argument has equal force so far as the permanently-settled area is concerned. It is to the interest of the landlords to extend cultivation, and as the jama is settled in perpetuity there is no question of increase in land-revenue being interfered with. Sir, on these grounds I move 'that nothing under this section shall apply to permanently-settled areas.'"

The Hon'ble Mr. H McPherson said:—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment. After the long explanation I have already given of the section I think it is unnecessary to speak at any length on this amendment. One justification for this section is, as my hon'ble friend Mr. Maddox has pointed out, that it was part of a bargain that was made with the temporarily-settled proprietors; but I rest the section on the broader grounds of common honesty and common equity. I have already explained that I think it is grossly unfair to allow a raiyat to cultivate for four years—twelve years in the case of the larger tracts of waste land—and then to turn him out of the land after he has made it profitable both to himself and the landlord. On these broader grounds I oppose any curtailment of scope of operation of this section."

The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo said:—

"The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson and also the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox have submitted that this is a compromise between the temporarily-settled zamindars and the Government, but I do not think the zamindars of the permanently-settled area were ever consulted in this matter, and as regards the constitution of the Orissa Committee, there was no one from the permanently settled area in that Committee; and, Sir, it is rather hard on the proprietors of the permanently-settled areas. If there is a custom such as the Hon'ble Member says to exist in Orissa, such custom has not been enquired into in the permanently-settled area, and so the Council does not know what the custom is in the permanently settled area. When that has not been ascertained I think that the provisions of this clause should not be applied."

The motion was then put and lost.

OATH OR AFFIRMATION OF ALLEGIANCE.

The Hon'ble MR. BUTLER made the prescribed Oath of his Allegiance to the Crown.

THE ORISSA TENANCY BILL, 1912.

Clause 57.

142 The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad moved that the following be substituted for clause 57, namely:—

"57. When a tenant makes a payment on account of rent, the payment may be credited to the account of such year and instalment as the landlord thinks fit."

Appropriation of payments.

He said:—

"The clause was divided into two parts in the original Bill, and this clause is a complete production of section 55 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. I am aware, Sir, that the provisions of this clause are mainly based on sections 59 and 60 of the Indian Contract Act. Section 59 provides that when a debtor, owing several distinct debts to one person, makes a payment to him, either with express intimation or under circumstances implying that the payment to be applied to the discharge of some particular debt, the payment, if accepted, must be applied accordingly. Section 60 provides that where the debtor has omitted to intimate and there are no other circumstances indicating to which debt the payment is to be applied, the creditor may apply it at his discretion to any lawful debt actually due and payable to him from the debtor, whether its recovery is or is not barred by the law in force for the time being as to the limitation of suits. Now it seems to me that the application of these two sections of the Contract Act in the case of landlord and tenant is not right. The relation that exists between the debtor and his creditor, to my mind, materially differs from the relation that exists between the landlord and his tenants Under these two sections which mainly govern the case of a creditor, it is possible that a debtor under certain circumstances, if there be more than one debt, be obliged to make a condition that he is making the payment towards a particular debt. For instance, a man has borrowed money from a creditor, and mortgaged a property of his, and similarly he has mortgaged another property and also a third property. Therefore he owes to the creditor three distinct debts under three distinct mortgage bonds. Circumstances may arise in his case under which he may require a particular property to be freed and he may make the payment intimating to the creditor that this particular money should be credited to the particular debt for which that particular property was mortgaged. But the case of a tenant materially differs inasmuch as a tenant when he owes rent to a landlord he can have no occasion or necessity to intimate to the landlord at the time of payment that he is making the payment for a particular time and for a particular instalment, unless it be conceded that the tenant at the time of making the payment has in view the application of the question of limitation. If the tenant has not paid for a series of years and if he goes with one year's rent to his landlord and tells him that he pays for the current year, the presumption will naturally arise that he wants to take a mean advantage of the law of limitation. There is the question of limitation pending, and why should the tenant pay for the current year when he owes his landlord for three or four years. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has told us that the Bengal Tenancy Act has worked satisfactorily for the last very many years, and therefore there is no reason to go against that Act.

So far as Bihar is concerned, and so far as the collection in Bihar by landlords is concerned, I can very safely assert that this particular section of the Bengal Tenancy Act has not been taken much advantage of by the tenants. The usual way in Bihar is that when a tenant comes to make payment in a zamindar's cutchery he simply says 'Here's your rent,' and the money is credited from the first year in which the defalcation took place. In that way the landlord and tenant make their settlement.

"There is another remark which I should like to make. It will unnecessarily encourage litigation. That there would be a strained relationship produced between the landlord and his tenant if the clause is passed in its present form, goes without saying. At present whenever the question of limitation comes in and the zamindar is thinking of instituting a suit against his tenant, the tenant comes to him with one year's rent and tells him. 'Look here, I pay you one year's rent. You can very well wait for another year more.' And the zamindar agrees, and waits for another year before he brings a suit against his tenant. But if you allow this clause to be passed, the result will be that the tenant will want his landlord to credit his money towards a particular year's rent and the zamindar will also, to avoid the law of limitation, will at once rush into Law Courts. This sort of unnecessary litigation should always be avoided. I should like to be enlightened by my friend, the Hon'ble Mr Das, as to how this section has been working in Orissa, but as I have already stated, that in Bihar there has been no occasion in which a tenant has desired to make use of this section. And I ask the Hon'ble Members who have held charge of districts in Bihar to cite me cases in which the tenant demanded that under the section of the Bengal Tenancy Act, he wanted the money to be paid against any particular date.

"There is also another danger if you allow this clause to be passed into law, and it is this Where is the remedy for the tenant so far as evidence goes? Here you give him a power to go to the zamindar's cutchery and tell the amla of the landlord that he pays rent for a particular year. I presume he gives him a verbal intimation. Then consider the actual position In the cutchery the tenant, who is generally an illiterate person, makes payment for a particular year His case is that according to the term of section 57, he, at the time of payment, intimated to the servant of the zamindar verbally that the rent is meant to be credited for a particular year. The amla of the zamindar, in order to avoid limitation, enters the money against a year different from what is proposed by the tenant. Now, in most cases, the tenant is an illiterate and uneducated person. He cannot read the receipts. He pays down the amount with a clear intimation to the amla that it is for the year say, 1297. The amla credits it against 1295. The tenant goes away from the cutchery. Several days after he get his receipt read by somebody, and finds that a wrong entry has been made. What is the remedy that you provide for him in a case like this? All that he can do is to institute a case. He can only go to the Civil Court. If he, at the time of making payment intimated to the amla of the zamindar that the payment was meant for a particular year, his receipt shows otherwise He has no evidence whatever. At the time of payment he went alone to a place where he can get no evidence from if the zamindar chooses to be dishonest. The patwari will swear against him. Now what will you be encouraging? The tenant will naturally feel that at the time of going to the cutchery he was alone. And as he cannot produce any evidence, he will be guided by the circumstances of the case, and try to secure false evidence in support of his contention. He will go to some other tenants, and say: 'Look here, you come and depose in Court, that at the time I went to make payment, you also came with me, and heard me telling the amla to credit the amount to such and such a year' Now you are practically—if you just think about the consequences of the section—encouraging false evidence got up not only by the tenant but the zamindar's amlas will also depose falsely. I, therefore, submit for the consideration of Your Honour and also the Members of this Council that if you consider the two clauses of section 57 carefully, you will come to the conclusion that it will cause hardship both to the landlord and the tenant. Therefore, Sir, in the interest of both, I desire to move that in the case of the landlord and tenant a difference ought to be made from the Indian Contracts Act, and the zamindar ought to be given the option of crediting any amount of money that is paid to him by a tenant into any year that he wishes to do Why should you, indeed, protect the tenant, who in this instance, is the defaulter. He is the man who has not paid rent. He is decidedly in fault. He comes after 3 or 4 years, and says, 'I want to pay for one year only, and I want to pay for a particular year.' After all, the zamindar is the creditor and option should be given to him to credit that amount of money for any year he considers necessary, and it will prevent at least one thing, and that is, that zamindars who do not like to institute suits against their tenants will not have to go to Law Courts. I have known of cases in which the zamindar settles with the tenant by taking from him one year's rent and crediting it to the first year of default. This prevents him from going into Law Courts to guard against limitation and this also satisfies the raiyat."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Sir, I had no intention to speak on this amendment, but as the Hon'ble Member who has moved the amendment has referred to me, all that I can say is that the question is one which raises a difficult problem as to what can be done for the raiyat. He is ignorant. He pays his rent for one year, and the receipt is given for another year He cannot read. There will always be men in the world who will take advantage of ignorance of other people, and surely zamindars' men are not above that class. In this Council legislate as much as you can, zamindar's gomasthas will not come from a different class of people Nothing can make the raiyat educated or literary. An illustration suggests itself to my mind. I hope I will not be misunderstood. When I make use of illustrations I do not mean to offend any ones feelings. The illustration that suggests itself to my mind is this: A man who never learnt to read and write saw people use glasses who were supposed to be learned. He went to a spectacle shop. He was asked to try pair after pairs but nothing suited him, as looking through the glasses he saw that printed letters were to him as meaningless as they were before. Then the shop-keeper asked him, do you know to read? The man replied why should I come for glasses if I knew to read? So we think that as soon as we pass a law beneficial to the tenant, we think he knows his rights. But that is far from being the fact. I hold myself second to none in this Council in my endeavour to help the raiyat. But there is no getting out of difficulties You may change the law. the same defect arises. If the zamindar chooses to be oppressive, the raiyat can do nothing. I do not know anything of Bengal, but my experience in Orissa is that there are not many zamindars of that class there. There are a few, but they are exceptions."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"Sir, I regret that so much eloquence should be wasted, but I cannot advice the Council to accept the amendment The Hon'ble Mover of the amendment has given us plenty of á priori reasons, but we must now proceed along the duller paths of experience and common sense. The simple facts are that there has been no litigation and no strained feelings over this section for the last 20 years, and we need not pay any attention to á priori reasons. The clause which is under discussion is a reproduction of section 57 of the Bengal Tenancy Act* and has been in force in Orissa since 1891. I find that there has been no ruling of the High Court under this section, and as I have said before in connection with another section, the Council may safely take it that a provision of the law which has never been brought before the High Court can be treated as thoroughly satisfactory. On the merits also there is not much to be said for the Hon'ble Member's proposal. The raiyat is the debtor, and when he brings in money to pay his dues it is surely for him to say to what particular portion of the arrears the payment should be applied. I do not see how such action can in any way injure the landlord; but the Hon'ble

* i e, Act VIII of 1885

Member's proposal might injure the raiyat. The Hon'ble Member has told us that there is the question of limitation, of which he might take advantage. But there is also the question of enhancement. Supposing a raiyat is in arrears of rent for three years and supposing that during the three years the landlord has made an enhancement of rent which the raiyat has not accepted; the landlord if he were left to himself would apply the payment in such a way as to make it easy for him to prove that an enhancement had taken place, but there is no reason why he should be given these facilities. On the other hand there is every reason why the raiyat should be able to say: I wish the landlord to apply this payment to the liquidation of undisputed arrears and to leave the question of the disputed arrears for decision by private arrangement or by a competent Court. The Hon'ble Member is mistaken in thinking that no use is made of the section in Bihar Directly a rent dispute arises, the first thing a tenant does is to endeavour to have his payments applied in such a way as not to prejudice his side of the case The evidence is not always so clear as it might be, but this is because the landlord tries to manipulate the payments in such a way as to support his side of the case. But the tenant is entitled to the first say It is I believe a settled principle of law that a debtor who makes a payment has a right to stipulate to what portion of his dues that portion should be applied and there is no reason for altering this in the case of landlord and tenant I must therefore ask the Council to reject the amendment"

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR said:—

"I think, Sir, that a legislative body ought not to abandon a principle which has been acted upon for over 50 years and a new departure ought never be made unless there is a very strong case made out. In the present Tenancy Act this principle has been adopted and a debtor has a right to make a payment of money specifying the way in which it is to be appropriated and it is not at all a technical matter. It is based on sound universal principles of justice and freedom of action. A debtor may say 'I owe you different items of money but I pay you this amount for the specified debt,' so he has freedom of action which is based upon universal principles of justice. As this principle has been acted on for over half a century, there is no reason why a new departure should now be made."

The Hon'ble MR. SAIYID WASI AHMAD said:—

"Sir, there was only one thing that I wanted to hear from the Hon'ble Member in charge in reply to my amendment, namely, what could be the motive of a tenant to go and dictate his terms to the landlord. I think that in the case of an ordinary debtor and creditor an occasion may arise in which the debtor may be almost forced to go to the creditor and dictate his terms, but in the case of a tenant who owes rent for three or four years can anyone possibly imagine a single case in which the tenant will be under the necessity of dictating his terms, that he owes money for a particular year and I fail to understand if such a case can ever be thought of and in the absence of such cases, the only conclusion that I can arrive at is that whenever a tenant will come to a zamindar and dictate his terms his object is to defeat the terms of the Indian Limitation Act and thus avoid limitation so that one or two years may expire and the zamindar may not institute a case against him for arrears of rent. Except this idea, I cannot for a moment conceive a case in which a tenant might say:—'Well, I owe you rent for four years from 1904 to 1907, but I pay you for 1907.' I submit, Sir, that unless and until substantial reasons are placed before the Council in support of the fact that there may be an occasion in which a tenant may be forced under certain circumstances to go and say that he wanted the payment to be made for a particular year. I think that the Council ought to accept this amendment."

Clause 60.

143. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the following proviso be added after clause 60 (3a), namely:—

> "Provided that the Collector shall not hold an inquiry or impose a fine if the tenant has already instituted a suit as provided in sub-sections (1) and (2) of this section"

He said:—

"Your Honour,—With your permission and with the previous consent and approval of the Member in charge I beg to move the above amendment in a slightly modified form. The amendment will run thus: That after sub-clause (3b) of clause 60, the following sub-clause (3c) be inserted:—

> '(3c) Nothing in sub sections (3a) and (3b) shall apply if the tenant has already instituted a suit under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2).'

"I do not think that any speech is necessary in moving this amendment, inasmuch as I think the Hon'ble Member in charge will accept it."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said:—

"Sir, I accept this amendment."

The motion was then put in the modified form and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

144. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "summary" in the last line of clause 60 (3a) be omitted.

145. If motion No. 144 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the word "summary" in line 1 of clause 60 (3b) be omitted.

146. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the words "on his own motion or" be inserted after the word "either" in line 2 of clause 60 (3b).

He said:—

"Sir, I propose that the words 'on his own motion or' be inserted after the word 'either' in line 2 of clause 3(b).

I do so because there is no provision in the sub-clause, as it stands, for the Collector taking action when the facts come directly to his notice, either as a revenue officer or as a court. Unless this small addition is made, then if the Collector be in camp and facts come to his notice, which render it desirable for him to take action under this section, he will have to go through the farce of having a report made to himself by a subordinate officer. Similarly, in the case of sub-clause (4), which provides for reports being made to the Collector when instances of neglect to give receipts come to the notice of Courts, I think it is desirable that the Collector should be able to take action of his own accord if the offence comes to his notice when he is himself sitting as a Court.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motion was by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

147. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson to move that the following be inserted after clause 60 (3b), namely:—

"(3c) When a fine is imposed under sub section (3a), the Collector may, in his discretion, award to the tenant, by way of compensation, such portion of the fine as he may think fit."

148. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "between the landlord and his tenant" be inserted after the word "proceeding" in line 1 of clause 60 (4).

He said:—

"Sir, this refers to the report made by any court or presiding officer that any landlord has failed to give a receipt to his tenant. It is desirable that he should not make such report unless he finds it in any proceeding between the landlord and his tenant. It is obviously unfair that such report be made behind the back of the landlord, and without giving him any opportunity of disproving this charge against him As the section stands, the court or officer may come to a finding in a proceeding between strangers, which very often will not be correct and simply cause harassment to the landlord."

THE HON'BLE MR. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sir, I cannot accept the addition proposed by the Hon'ble Member, because it is desirable that the sub-clause should be left as wide as possible. Most of the difficulties connected with the adminis ration of the agrarian law are caused by the wilful neglect of landlords to deliver to their tenants the receipts prescribed by the law, and it is desirable to facilitate, as far as possible, the enforcement of the law. This addition, will merely circumscribe the action of the courts in reporting cases of neglect when they come to notice. It is easy to imagine a case in which the proceedings are between landlord and landlord, and in which both landlords may have to give evidence regarding the receipt of rent from tenants. In such a case it may come to the notice of the court that receipts have not been granted in the proper form. I do not see why we should cut out any particular class of cases by making the proposed addition."

Clause 62.

The following motions were by name of the President, withdrawn:—

149. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "under sections 13 A, 13B or 13C" in line 1 of clause 62 (a) be omitted.

150. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause 62 (c) be omitted.

10A. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the word "or" be omitted after the figures and letter "13B" in line 1 of clause 62 (a), and that the words "or under any law previously in force" be inserted after the figures and letter "13C" in the same line of the same clause.

The sub-clause, therefore, to run as follows, namely:—

"(a) registered under section 13A, 13B or 13C, or under any law previously in force, as sub-proprietor or tenure-holder, or"

He said:—

"I proposed this amendment in the separate list, because I thought it might meet a difficulty anticipated by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur.

"The point is that we provide in clause 62 for a receipt being valid when it is granted by a sub-proprietor or tenure-holder duly registered under section 13A, 13B, or 13C, or duly recorded as such in a record-of-rights. The small point occurred to us that between the preparation of the record-of-rights and the commencement of this Act, there may be cases of registration under Act X of 1859. It is to provide for these cases that I propose this amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 65.

151. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad moved that the word "shall" be substituted for the words "may, at the discretion of the Court" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 65 (2).

He said —

"My object in making this amendment was that all such notices must necessarily be received by the landlord, so that no excuse could be made afterwards that they did not receive such notice."

THE HON'BLE MR. H. MCPHERSON said —

"Sir, I object to this amendment. It may not be convenient in every case to serve notices by registered post. It may be much more convenient to serve them by hand or by other methods. There is no reason why we should tie down the Collectorate offices to any particular form of service."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 67.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

152. The Hon'ble Mr. M S. Das to move that the words "whether tenure-holder or raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajiaftidar" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 67.

153. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the words "a chandnadar" be inserted after the word "rates" in line 2 of clause 67.

He said:—

"Sir, no provision is made in the Bill, as it stands, for the procedure to be followed in recovering arrears of rent from chandnadars, although they have now been classed as tenants. As their rents have been fixed for the term of the revenue settlement and they are practically on the same footing as thani raiyats, I propose that they be added to the enumeration in clause 67 of tenants whose holdings are liable to be sold in execution of rent decrees."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

154. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or an occupancy-raiyat" in line 2 of clause 67 be omitted.

155. If motion No 154 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the present clause 67 be numbered as sub-clause (1) of that clause, and that the following sub-clause be added, namely :—

"(2) Where a tenant is an occupancy-raiyat, he shall not be liable to ejectment in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, if the amount decreed is paid into Court within thirty days from the date of the decree, or, if the Court is closed on the thirtieth day, on the day upon which the Court reopens."

Clause 68.

156. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "whether a tenure-holder or raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajyaftidar" in line 3 of clause 68

157. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the words "a chandnadar" be inserted after the words "raiyat holding at fixed rates" in line 3 of clause 68.

He said :—

"This amendment is consequential to the amendment No. 153, which I have proposed in dealing with clause 67."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 69.

158. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the word "money" in line 1 of clause 69 be omitted.

He said .—

"Sir this word indirectly introduces a law that rent paid in kind shall bear no interest. There is no justification for this. In many cases the Bhaoli rent may be lower than money-rent, still the landlord will not be entitled to get interest. This law will act as an encouragement to the tenant not to pay his rent in kind. Even if limitation for such suit be one year as proposed, it may take the landlord years before he can realize his Bhaoli rent. Why should his just dues all the time bear no interest? It is unjust, unfair and inequitable, and the landlords have done nothing to deserve this treatment. I am aware that, under the corresponding section (67) of the Tenancy Act, a doubt is thrown whether that section applies to produce-rent, but the remedy lies not to exclude Bhaoli rent from this amended section, but to amend the section in such a way as to include Bhaoli rent. In any case, there is no justification for this alteration of the Tenancy Act."

THE HON'BLE MR. MCPHERSON said :—

"Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur, because all the provisions about produce-rents were agreed to by the Orissa zemindars, who were consulted in the matter in 1909. They have also commended themselves to the Orissa Members. They are fair concessions and are justified by the fact that produce-rents are in all cases much higher in incidence than cash rents. All the various concessions about limitation of amount, limitation of period of recovery and exclusion of interest, have been approved by the local people concerned, and I do not see why the Hon'ble Members from Bihar should object to them"

The motion was then put and lost

The following motion was, with the leave of the President, withdrawn —

159. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that for the words "half the agricultural year" in line 3 of clause 69, the word "period" be substituted.

160. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "or of the institution of the suit, whichever date is earlier," in lines 4 and 5 of clause 69 be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, as it is now, the tenants pay interest either up to the date of payment or up to the institution of the suit, whichever date is earlier. When the suit is instituted and until it is decreed, no interest is paid, and after the decree, only about 6 per cent. is paid. So, if my motion be accepted, the interest at the rate of 12½ per cent. will be continued till the payment. This will be a great advantage for the prompt realization of rent."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said:—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment on the ground that the clause reproduces the existing law and practice, and is the same as in the Bengal Tenancy Act. The plaintiff puts his full demand, including interest, into his plaint. The suit is then adjudicated upon. Rent suits do not, as a rule, take a very long time to try, it is usually three or four months, but the period may be longer or shorter, and, in any case depends much more on the action of the landlord and of the court, than it does on the raiyat. We think it is desirable that there should be no inducement given to the landlord to prolong the period of adjudication, nor do we think it is right, that while the landlord is taking his time over the case, or the court is postponing its disposal, interest should go on running against the raiyat. The court has power, under another provision of the Act, to decree damages if it thinks that the conduct of the raiyat deserves special notice. I do not think that sufficient reason has been shown in support of the addition proposed by the Hon'ble Member, and I therefore oppose it."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 70.

161. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the word "shall" be substituted for the word "may" in line 4 of clause 70 (1).

He said:—

"Sir, in Orissa, even up to 1907, the courts used to allow damages on suits for arrears of rent when it was proved to the satisfaction of the court that the tenants either refused or neglected, without reasonable or probable cause. But since the amendment of the Bengal Tenancy Act in 1907, probably in no case damages were allowed. So, under the circumstances, where the tenant has refused without any probable cause, if the word "shall" be substituted for the word "may," damages will be awarded in such cases."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said:—

"Sir, I cannot accept this amendment, because I think we ought to leave the question of damages to the discretion of the Court which hears all the circumstances of the case. We do not want to convert our courts into machines. We should leave them a certain amount of discretion. By substituting the word "shall" for "may" you deprive them of their existing discretion. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

162. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "These damages, if awarded, as well as the amount of rent and costs decreed in the suit, shall carry interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum from the date of decree until payment thereof" be inserted after the words "as it thinks fit" in line 7 of clause 70 (1).

Clause 71.

163. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that clause 71 be omitted.

He said:—

"This section deals with the produce-rent. Drastic changes are made in the present Bill with regard to recovery of Bhaoli rent. In the first place it makes it illegal for the landlord to recover more than half the gross produce of the land. Secondly, it lays down that no interest on any account shall be payable for the Bhaoli rent and thirdly, it provides that one year instead of three years limitation shall apply to Bhaoli rent. The explanation states that, in estimating the value, the court shall be bound to do it according to the rates at the time of harvest. All these provisions are new and do not find a place in the existing law. There is no justification for the changes. No reason has been assigned why these drastic provisions are necessary in the case of Orissa zemindars, and not in the case of the zemindars of the other parts of the province. All the innovations made by this section are objectionable. The first part limiting the share of the landlord to one-half is apparently made to discourage sanja system in Orissa, which corresponds with the mankhap or manhunda system in Behar. I may be permitted to draw the attention of my Hon'ble friends from Behar to page 7 of paper No. 1, where Mr. Levinge says that the matter is important "as whatever is decided now may be taken as a precedent in connection with the treatment of mankhap rents in Bihar." They must not, therefore, think that they are not affected by this legislation. Sir, I do not see why there should be any objection to sanja rents. I have heard it often said by the tenants that next to money-rent they prefer the sanja or mankhap rent. It is to all intents and purposes money-rent It does not fluctuate, it does not leave room for dispute or dissensions The tenants prefer it because under this system they can cut and harvest the crops at their convenience, without interference from the landlord or his agents. In theory, the adhbatai or dhulbai system is good, but in practice, it is source of some trouble to the tenants. He cannot do anything without the landlords simsan or servant deputed to get the crops divided. These men must not only be fed but must be paid something. So long as the crops are not actually divided, the tenant cannot take away any portion of his share without his landlord's consent. No such difficulty arises in mankhap or sanja system He has absolute control over the entire crop. He knows what he has to pay, and above all he is independent of the landlord's agents. The only difference between money and sanja rent is that one is payable in money and the other is payable in kind When I say that tenants prefer sanja system, I assume that the grains payable by him is a fair proportion of the gross outturn. If it is not fair, it must cause hardship but this applies to money-rent also. If the money-rent is not fair, it must cause hardship. If you are satisfied that in Orissa sanja rent is disproportionately high, the remedy does not lie in an indirect legislation you propose, but to take power to fix a fair and equitable rent. But there is no satisfactory evidence that sanja rent is high. Mr. Levinge says he has not enquired as to how far sanja rents are oppressive, but he says, he has heard no complaints in regard to them. If so, why you should condemn this system. The effect of the legislation you propose is that in bad years, the landlords will get less than what he would be entitled to under the sanja system, and in good years, he will not be entitled to more than the sanja rent fixed. Mr. Levinge justly observes at page 7 of his letter, dated the 28th November last, with reference to this provision "that it would be entirely one-sided, for it would give the raiyat the benefit of a bad year while conferring no corresponding benefit on the landlord in a good one." But, Sir, I go a step further. I show that by this provision you sow a seed of discord between the landlord and tenant. What is the practical effect of this legislation? It is this, that the landlord would naturally resent payment to him of a smaller rent than he is entitled to under the contract. The tenant on the other hand, even when his crops are good, under the advice of village tout refuse to pay his just debts and take away the whole crop The landlord will go to court. As the crops are already cut, there is no tangible evidence as to what was the yield There is hard swearing on both sides, from which it is difficult to find out the truth, and the court has to decide the case on his own surmises, for it is difficult to get reliable evidence as to how much crop yielded in a particular field in a particular year. This dispute between the landlord and the tenant continues from year to year The lawyers are to be fed, the court amlas, from the process-server upwards, are to be pacified and both the tenants and landlords are ruined Sir, in your solicitude for the welfare of the tenants, do not give them an indefinite law under which they will remain in constant feud with their landlords, for it is sure to cause the extinction of the tenants more often than of the landlords. Give them a simple law under which they may live in peace with their landlords, and may have as little chance of litigation with them as possible. I have already dealt with the question about payment of interest. There is no reason why the landlord should not have a return for the use of his money by the tenants. Then as regards three years' limitation, you think that this is for the benefit of the tenant. You think that the landlords, to increase their hold on the tenant, do not sue till their claim is very heavy and cannot be discharged by the tenant This is your idea. My experience, however, is otherwise. There are very few landlords who allow their money to remain with the tenants in the hope of increasing their liabilities. All landlords are anxious to realize their dues at the proper time, and if they do not bring any suit at the end of each agricultural year, it is not to increase the liability of his tenants, but out of regard for the interest of the tenants and for fear of the expensive character of your law courts. Every landlord knows that when he has to go to court, he as a rule loses at least 30 per cent. of the principal money The transfer of jurisdiction from the civil court to the Collector may be of some benefit, but will not make appreciable difference in the costs. Nothing has been shown that the landlords of Orissa have misused the provision of three years' limitation. I strongly object to this innovation, both in the interest of landlords and in the interest of the tenant alike. Successive rent suits, year after year, should be discouraged and not encouraged The explanation is also startling. The effect of this explanation is that, even if the tenant does not pay his rent in the proper time, the landlord will not get the price of the grains as prevalent at the time of payment but as prevalent at the time of the default of the tenants, and that without interest Instead of punishing the guilty party, the defaulter, you punish the landlord. One would have thought that the price should be calculated, either obtaining at the time of the harvest or at the time of payment whichever was to the advantage of the landlord. Sir, look at this clause from any point of view, it is exceedingly objectionable and I move that it be expunged altogether from this Bill."

THE HON'BLE MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN:—"I beg to support the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur. The proposed amendment has been fully discussed, but I beg to submit, Sir, that it is purely an innovation, for if under a certain agreement between the landlord and the tenant, more than half the gross produce has hitherto been paid, there is no reason why this should be cut down. Of course, even in Behar, it has been generally found that what was payable over and above half the produce constituted Municipal cess commonly known as abwâls. Then again the landlords are not entitled to realize these arrears unless they go to court before the end of the agricultural year next following that for which the rent was claimed to be due. This is also a new provision. Why should you have such a legislation. Why should a landlord be forced to bring suit in so short a time? He may not be in a position to do so. There is already a period of three years in which the suit is to be brought, but here the period is cut down to one year. If the tenant chooses to pay the money within one year, the landlord will have no objection to receive it, so there is no reason why the period of limitation existing in the present law should not be adhered to. Then, again, the explanations added to the clause are similarly objectionable, as the Hon'ble Mover of the amendment has already pointed out. I need not take up the time of this Council by discussing all these points again.

But I should submit that this is enacting a new thing altogether which did not find its place in the existing law, this is apparently giving an undue advantage to the tenants, and giving the tenants an inducement to withhold the Bhaoli rent, as he will neither have to pay any interest, nor even the landlord's half share of the real produce, over and above that in cases of petty and poor landlords there will be the risk of limitation With these observations, I support the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur.

THE HON'BLE MR. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sir, I oppose the amendment. The Hon'ble Member who has proposed this amendment, and the Hon'ble Member who has supported him, have been talking very much more from a Behar point of view than from an Orissa point of view They have been keeping both eyes on Behar, and closing them entirely to the local conditions of Orissa. The provisions of the Bill on the subject of produce rent must be considered together. They represent an arrangement which was regarded as fair and equitable by all Orissa landlords who were consulted, and they are in accordance with local custom The one-half limit is the almost universal practice in Orissa, where the grain is divided, at the time of harvesting, in equal portions between the landlord and the tenant. There appears, therefore, to be no reasonable objection to our laying down one-half as the maximum share of the landlord. Then as regards the question of limitation. Grain rents are always collected, or ought always to be collected, on the spot when the crop is harvested That being so, there is no reason why we should allow the landlord to sue for this form of rent up to three years. We have reduced the period of limitation to one year In practice, this means that the suit need not be brought until at least one more harvest has been reaped by the raiyat. If, for any reason, the landlord has not received his share of the previous year's crop, then, if the year that follows is a prosperous year, the raiyat will be able to make good the previous year's deficit. There is no reason why the matter should be left over for three years. The ordinary period of limitation for a cash-rent is three years, and no hardship arises when a raiyat is sued at one time for three years' arrears, because the cash-rent farely represents more than one-sixth of the produce, but in the case of a produce-rent it is entirely different, for if the raiyat is sued in the fourth year for arrears of rent, he will be sued, as a rule for one and-a-half times the produce of the year in which the suit is brought What we want to do is to compel landlords and tenants to adjust their accounts, as regards produce-rents, at the time of harvest or as near as possible to the time of harvest. We do not want the account kept open until it is impossible for the raiyat to clear it. As I have already said, these proposals have been approved by the Orissa zamindars, and there is no reason why we should not accept them. We are not dealing now with Behar, where, in my experience, I have known cases in which as much as 27 seers out of every 40 is taken by landlords We are not legislating for a state of affairs like that. We are legislating for people who are satisfied to follow an equitable arrangement, an arrangement whereby one half of the produce is taken as rent I have so far said nothing about sanja rents, but I do not think it is necessary to make any special provision for them. or desirable to exclude them from the operation of the section. If the sanja be heavy rent, it should be discouraged If it be a small rent, say, one fourth of the average produce, then, the section will hardly ever apply to it. It will not apply to it unless you have less than an eight-anna crop, and that will not be often. It will perhaps be argued that as the raiyat gets off with a small proportion of his crop in a good year, the landlord should be allowed to realize the full sanja rent in a bad year, but we know that in actual practice when a very bad year occurs, and there is either no crop at all or only a four-anna crop, the full amount of the sanja is never exacted. No material hardship is inflicted on the landlord because the sanja rent has been included in these provisions. If the landlord does find that any hardship occurs, he has a very simple remedy. He has only to go into court under the provisions of clause 41 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and ask that a fair and equitable cash-rent be fixed instead of the sanja rent. With the rent so fixed he will be on the same footing as the landlord of an ordinary cash paying tenant. He will be able to receive in full and to sue for arrears of three years.

The motion was then put and lost.

164. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanjan Deo moved that the words "when the rent of any land is taken by appraisement or division of the produce, or partly in cash and partly in kind," be substituted for the words "where the rent of any land is paid in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another or partly in one of those ways and partly in cash" in lines 1 to 4 of clause 7.(1).

He said:—

"Sir, both this amendment and No. 168 are just to exclude sanja from the operations of this clause, but as the Hon'ble Member in charge has already said he would not exclude sanja, I do not think there is any use in pressing this amendment. I would withdraw it.

The amendment was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

165. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the words "or any interest on such rent, or to recover any arrear of such rent by suit, unless the suit is instituted before the end of the agricultural year next following that for which the rent is claimed to be due," in line 7 to 10 of clause 71(1) be omitted.

He said:—

"The period of limitation fixed for the recovery of produce-rent, as fixed by sub-clause 1 of this clause, is only one year, whereas the period of limitation fixed for the recovery of money-rent is three years, though rent means 'whatever is lawfully payable or deliverable in money or in kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by tenant" (see sub clause 17 of clause 3 of the Bill). The reason assigned for the difference in the periods of limitation for the recovery of arrears of rent, paid in cash or in kind, in paragraph 3 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons, is "the landlord lets the lean years pass and waits for a fat one. He can easily prove condition of the crops just reaped, while evidence as to the previous crops is necessarily weaker, and he expects to induce the Court to decree the rent of all the three years at the same rate.' As I said in my note of dissent, the reason appears to be neither cogent nor founded upon any principle. It totally ignores the duty of a person to discharge his obligation, when under the law it is incumbent upon him to do so. If a tenant under the law is bound to pay his rent, either in money or kind, he must pay that rent without waiting for any demand from his landlord, and it is on this principle that the law awards interest or damage, when an arrear is found due from a tenant. Why should a landlord be taken to task when the tenant fails to discharge his legal obligation? If a tenant who pays produce-rent does not deliver the produce as it falls due, he must take the consequences of the law upon himself. The period of limitation, that is one year, which has been prescribed for the recovery of arrears of rent in kind with a view to benefit the tenant, would be harassing to the tenant himself, by reason of the fact that he is likely to lose the sympathy and kindness of the landlord, who, like most of the landlords in Orissa, is always ready to suit his convenience, and wait for the payment of the arrears due till a prosperous year. On the other hand, the landlords also would be harassed, by being compelled by law to institute suits against their tenants just after the rent has fallen due, while the cost of the suit would be very heavy, which the poor tenant will have to pay. No one, therefore, would be benefitted by this clause except the lawyers and the Government, as litigation would increase to an alarming extent, and the tenant would be at the mercy of pettifogging touts and muktears. This clause is also objectionable on the ground that sanja rent which is a fixed produce-rent, has been included in it, and no exception has been made in its favour."

THE HON'BLE MR. MCPHERSON said: "Sir, I oppose this amendment, for the reasons I have already given in discussing the previous amendment on the same section. I should like, however, to explain to the Council, by an example, what the meaning of the one year 'limitation' really is. Let us take a rice crop that has been cut in January of the present year 1912. Then, if the raiyat did not make that division of the crop that he ought to have made, on the ground at harvest, an arrear falls due. The limitation provided in this clause gives the landlord until the 15th April of the year 1913 to put in his suit for arrears. He must put it in before the end of the agricultural year following that in which the rent became due. As the agricultural year ends about the middle of April, the landlord has thus about fifteen months in which to recover arrears of rice rents. He can thus afford to wait till the crops of the following year become ripe for harvest. We thus really give him two years and not one year. I would also remind the Council that the landlords of Orissa have the right of private distraint. If they do not collect their rents one year, they can distrain the next year's crops. In my opinion, we provide quite enough facility for the recovery of produce-rents, which should be recovered in the year in which the crops are grown, and not at some distant date."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President withdrawn .—

166. If motion No. 165 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishkesh Laha to move that clause 71 (2) be omitted.

167. The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson moved that the word "sub-section" be substituted for the word "section" in line one of the Explanation to clause 71 (1)

He said :—

"This is purely a verbal amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

168. If motion No. 164 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the following be added after clause 71 (3) :—

"(3) Nothing in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall apply to a produce-rent which is fixed in quantity. The landlord shall not be entitled to any interest on such rent."

Clause 76.

169 The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that clause 76 be omitted.

170. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "unless and until the transfer has been duly registered as required by section 25A" in lines 4 and 5 of clause 76 be omitted.

Clause 78.

171. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that clause 78 be omitted.

Clause 79.

172. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that the words "or makes the land unfit for cultivation" be inserted after the words "landlord's property" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 79 (5).

Clause 82.

173. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad moved that clause 82 be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, I beg to move that clause 82 be omitted. Clause 82 runs thus: 'A non-occupancy raiyat shall be entitled to construct, maintain and repair a well for the irrigation of his holding, with all works incidental thereto, and to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission in writing.'

"Now this is a right that is going to be given to a non-occupancy raiyat, and apart from placing him on the land for the purpose of agriculture, he also gets a right to build a house for himself and also for the members of his family with all necessary out-offices. I do not know what out-offices a tenant may require—but from this section, if I take a concrete case of a non-occupancy raiyat who has just taken a settlement of, say, about two bighas of land, and it so happens, Sir, that he may have ten children, he goes to the landlord, and says, 'Look here, I want to build houses for myself and also for the members of my family,' and in this way he takes, say, about two or three cottahs of land for building purposes alone, and then he starts his cultivation: it is quite possible that that man may be ejected from the holding the very next year or the year after. Now the procedure adopted here is that the non-occupancy raiyat does not get only the right of building dwelling-houses for himself and the members of his family, but if he is ejected, he is entitled to receive compensation from the landlord for all the constructions and buildings that he may have made during his stay. Well, I submit that it will be very hard for a landlord if a raiyat is allowed to build a house and after a short stay if he is ejected, the zamindar will have to pay compensation for his buildings. It may not work so hard in the case of permanent tenants or occupancy tenants, who always live on the land, but this is a case in which a non-occupancy raiyat is going to get this right, and I submit, Sir, that cases may arise in which it will result in this, that the tenant takes a settlement, he builds his houses there, and if after a year or two the landlord wishes to eject him he is obliged to pay compensation which ordinarily he would not like to do, and therefore practically he becomes a sort of settled raiyat of that land. Take another case in which a tenant gets a settlement of only ten bighas of land, and pays a rent of twenty rupees to the landlord, and if after one year the landlord is asked to pay compensation of Rs. 200, which he will not readily do, the result will be that in certain cases the landlord will be forced to allow the tenant to continue on that land. For these reasons I submit, Sir, that this clause be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

It is much to be regretted, Sir, that the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act had not the advantage of the Hon'ble Member's legal acumen to assist them in their labours. But these labours were completed 27 years ago, and I would suggest to him that we really cannot go into all the fundamental principles which lie at the bottom of the tenancy law of the province. Apparently the word "out-offices" has frightened the Hon'ble Member, and brought to his mind the idea of carriage-houses, motor-houses, and things of that kind; but if the Hon'ble Member would go to any village and look at the non-occupancy raiyats' houses and surroundings, he will see that there is nothing to be alarmed at, even if the raiyat has ten children. His amendment would have the effect of depriving the non-occupancy raiyat of the right which he has at present to make irrigation wells, and to make a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family. As a rule he is an extremely poor person, with a very small holding, and the Hon'ble Member need not be frightened that he will spend an extravagant sum on his well and on his house, so as to make it difficult for the landlord to pay compensation. I submit, Sir, there is no reason to alter the present provisions of the law which give non-occupancy raiyats this very small right; and if they were a more important class, I should say that they ought to be given greater privileges. As it is, they are a very small poor and unprosperous class, and there is no reason for curtailing such small privileges as they at present possess. I therefore oppose the amendment.

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 83.

174. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "two years" be substituted for the words "twelve months" in line 2 of clause 83 (3).

He said :—

Sir, in clause 83 only 12 months are allowed to a landlord to register any improvements that might have been made. I think this period ought to be extended to two years as proposed, because these improvements ought to be encouraged by Government, and the landlords should not be debarred from the right of registration of any such improvements. So I propose, Sir, to substitute two years for twelve months in line 2 of clause 83(3)

The HON'BLE MR KERR said :—

I do not think there is any reasonable ground for this amendment. Under the section which we are considering a landlord who makes an improvement must apply within 12 months after it has been made for its registration, if he wants to use the improvement as a ground for enhancing the raiyat's rents. The Hon'ble Member would have this period extended to two years. Now it is very important in connection with improvements to get on record as early as possible facts which are necessary in order that they may be registered. Everybody knows that very soon after an improvement is made, doubts begin to arise whether it is an improvement, or whether it could possibly cost so much as the landlord says. Questions of this kind can only be decided if enquiry is taken up at a reasonably short period after the improvement has been made. To deal with those inquiries after a period of two years would very often frustrate the whole object of the registration of improvement. There is absolutely no reason why a landlord who has made an improvement should not apply for registration directly after he did so. He has made the improvement himself, and he knows its cost and all particulars about it. There is therefore no reason to allow him to delay for two years in applying for registration, and such delay could only result in imperfect information being registered and in giving unnecessary opportunities for disputes as to the facts which have to be registered I therefore oppose this amendment.

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 87.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn.—

175. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or the proprietor of an estate" be inserted after the word "holding" in line 2 of clause 87 (1).

176. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the words "or the proprietor of an estate" be inserted after the word "holding" in line 2 of clause 87(1).

He said :—

I do sincerely hope that the Hon'ble Member in charge will see the reasonableness of this proposal. The clause, as it stands, only covers the case of a tenure-holder when he is making an acquisition. But there might be cases where the proprietor wants to make an acquisition for public purposes, and it might be that the tenure-holder in an estate for instance the mokadam does not want to acquire. There might be cases where it is not to the interest of the tenure-holder to acquire. The proprietor cannot acquire a portion of a land belonging to his tenure-holder, though he by so doing can confer a benefit on the public. Therefore I hope that this amendment should be accepted by the Council.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

The effect of section 87 of the Bill is that raiyati land can only be acquired for public and semi-public purposes by the immediate landlord of the holding. The Hon'ble Member's amendment would have the effect of enabling a superior proprietor to acquire land for this purpose. This would introduce a wholly unnecessary complication. If the proprietor divests himself of his interests in favour of a tenure-holder, he ought not to be allowed to come in during the currency of the tenure and to take away from a raiyat land which formed a part of the tenure when he took the lease. To allow a superior proprietor to come in like this would only cause troublesome confusion and dispute. A superior proprietor can very well wait until the term of the tenure is over before acquiring land for any of the purposes mentioned in the section. I must therefore resist the amendment.

The Hon'ble MR DAS said :—

I must say that I fail to see the reasonableness of the argument advanced by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr He has told us that a superior landlord should not be allowed to acquire land which he let out to a tenure-holder during the currency of the tenure But as a matter of fact we find that Government, the supremest of all, acquires land which belongs to its subjects for purposes of public utility. Suppose a road is to be constructed, and it lies along the whole length of an estate The tenure-holder is a person whose tenure covers one-fourth of the estate. The proposal is that the road should run along the whole length of the estate, but the Hon'ble Mr Kerr says that this should not be allowed. But if the Government wanted it for works of public utility, I do not think the Hon'ble Member would oppose it. I did not expect that amendments like this will be opposed. But I suppose any suggestion coming from a non official member must be opposed

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

177. If motion No. 175 be carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or proprietor" be inserted after the word "landlord" in clause 87 wherever it occurs

178. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the word "a" be substituted for the word "the" in line 3 of clause 87 (1).

179. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "for excavating a tank for the supply of drinking-water or" be inserted after the words "such as the use of the land" in lines 6 and 7 of clause 87 (1).

He said :—

It is very necessary to put in these words. Though it is said in the clause "for the good of the holding," still it is restricted by the words "for the village road and embankment." The Collector, when dealing with cases under this clause, might think that tanks are not included in this Excavation of tanks are very necessary for drinking purposes. It may not always be for charitable or religious purposes, it may be for sanitation.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

I do not think that the words proposed by the Hon'ble Member are very necessary, because the excavation of a tank for the supply of drinking-water would in most parts of the country be treated as being for the good of the holding or tenure or estate in which the land is comprised, and the Bill already provides for works being undertaken for this purpose. If however the Council desires to have these words inserted, I see no harm, and I should be prepared to advise Government to accept this amendment. But the actual wording must be changed. It may be left to the Secretary to the Council.

The PRESIDENT said :—

The Hon'ble Member would do well to move his amendment on Saturday, in a form acceptable to the Hon'ble Member in charge.

The motion was accordingly postponed.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

180. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "for any such purpose" in line 10 of clause 87 (1) be omitted.

181. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "and to the landlord when he is a tenure-holder or a raiyat" be added at the end of clause 17(1).

182. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "or to the tenant and such tenant's landlord, as the case may be," be inserted after the word "tenant" in line 1 of clause 87(2).

Clause 90.

183. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "in his own right" be inserted before the words "to cultivate his holding" in line 3 of clause 90 (1).

He said:—

The clause, as it stands, leaves ground for collusion with a view to defraud the zamindar. Many cases may arise where neither the transferor nor the transferee might pay rent, although the transferor holds the land of the transferee as an under-raiyat. The proposed amendment will be a penal provision to insure the property on the application for recognition of transfer. And this will prevent collusion between the transferor and the transferee.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

The object of this amendment is apparently to limit the rights of a raiyat to sub-let his land or to give a mortgage with possession. No reason has been given for this serious limitation of the powers of an occupancy raiyat. The effect would apparently be if any raiyat finds it inconvenient for a short period to cultivate his land himself or if a raiyat died and his widow could not cultivate the land herself, she would have to abandon it. This would obviously be very unfair, and there is no justification for this curtailment of the existing rights of the raiyat. I must therefore oppose this amendment.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

184. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "for his own benefit" be inserted after the word "person" in line 4 of clause 90 (1).

185. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the words "member of his family or by his under-raiyat" be substituted for the word "person" in line 4 of clause 90 (1).

He said:—

Sir, the clause, as it stands, leaves the zamindar in darkness as to the persons who should be employed for cultivating his land. All that my amendment seeks is to restrict the cultivation to the members of the raiyat's own family or his under-raiyat; so that this would not cover cases where there has been a collusion between the purchaser and the vendor. It is all right when members of a raiyat's own family cultivate the land. There is sure to be no dispute and no trying to defraud each other. That is the object of my amendment, and I do not like to take up the time of the Council any longer.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said.—

Mr. Das's amendment does not go so far as that of Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo, which has just been objected. Mr. Das would apparently allow sub-letting to an under-raiyat, but he would not recognise cases where a raiyat temporarily gave a mortgagee possession of his land or temporarily lent it to another person to cultivate it.

The Hon'ble Mr. Das said:—

I am willing to recognise mortgaged land.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said:—

If we are going to deal with the matter in this way, we shall be kept here all day thinking of possible cases which ought to be recognised. I do not think this would be practicable.

The section as it stands is purposely wide so as not to interfere with the existing powers of the raiyat to dispose of his lands. I see no reason to narrow it, or to impose any restrictions on the existing powers of raiyats, and I therefore oppose this amendment.

The motion was then put and lost.

186. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that clause 90 (2) be omitted.

He said:—

The sub-clause should be omitted, for this is practically unnecessary. If a zamindar takes forcible possession of a holding, the raiyat can always go to the law court. This sub-clause pre-supposes a state of things which is very different from facts. It pre-supposes stringent relations between the landlord and his tenant which does not exist. It takes for granted that the zamindar is always trying to take possession of lands which belongs to the raiyat declaring them as abandoned, and therefore the zamindar should be called upon to serve a notice. Now take the case when there has been a flood or famine, and the raiyats have gone away from their holdings and the zamindar does not know whether they would return at all. It would be quite unnecessary for the zamindar to give notice to the Collector before he takes possession of such lands. I object to this sub-clause, simply on the ground that it supposes a state of things which does not exist at all. Legislation, as we have been told, should be based upon actual experience, and not upon hypothesis.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said:—

This amendment of the Hon'ble Member would destroy a safeguard which was considered necessary in the Bengal Tenancy Act, and has been in force in Bengal for the last 27 years. Anybody who knows anything about the mufassal and the relations of many landlords with their tenants, will recognise at once that it would be extremely dangerous to allow landlords to treat a raiyat's holding as abandoned, without going through the formality of serving a notice through the Collector. It is really a safeguard for the landlord. Good landlords can by this means safeguard themselves from the risk of being treated as trespassers. This sub-clause is really in the interest both of the raiyats and landlords, and I would urge the Council to reject this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. Das said:—

I do not see what and whose interests are safeguarded. The matter now stand thus: If the zamindar takes forcible possession of another's land, he would be guilty of trespass under the Indian Penal Code. But if he serves a notice, then he is not liable to be prosecuted in a court for tresspass. So really you are not safe-guarding anything. While you say you are helping the raiyat, you are not helping him at all; you are keeping a loophole open. The raiyat might as well say "save me from my friends.

The amendment was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

187. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "from the date of publication of notice" in line 5 of clause 90 (3) be omitted.

Clause 91.

188. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "save as provided in sections 13A, 13B, 13C and 25A" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 91 be omitted.

189. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "save as provided in sub-section (2) of section 25A" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 11 be omitted.

Clause 91.

11A. The Hon'ble Mr H. McPherson moved that, for clause 91, the following be substituted, namely:—

"91. A division of a tenure or holding, or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereto, shall not be binding on the landlord, unless it is made with his express consent in writing, or with that of his agent duly authorised in that behalf:

Division of tenancy not binding on landlord without his consent

Provided that, if there is proved to have been made in any landlord's rent-roll any entry showing that any tenure or holding has been divided, or that the rent payable in respect thereof has been distributed, such landlord may be presumed to have given his express consent in writing to such division or distribution."

He said:—

The amendment as printed in the separate paper has a slight mistake in it. In the second line the word "thereto" should be read as "thereof." This amendment is part of the arrangement come to regarding the transfer clauses, and is merely a reproduction of section 88* of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The motion was put in the altered form and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 96.

190. The Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that clause 96 be omitted.

191. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "the District Judge may on the application, in case (a), of the Collector, and, in case (b)," be substituted for the words "the Collector may of his own motion or on the application" in line 6 of clause 96.

He said:—

Sir, a change of considerable magnitude has been proposed to be made in the existing law with regard to the appointments of common managers. It is proposed to transfer these cases from the jurisdiction of the District Judge and High Court to that of the Collector and Commissioner. I admit this alteration is proposed with the best of motives. But I venture to think that a closer examination of the proposed change will convince Your Honour and the Council that it is of a far-reaching effect and should not be made. It affects the very existence of the landlords of joint estates and tenures. The first legislation on this subject was made in 1812, when by Regulation V of 1812, powers were given to Zilla Courts to appoint competent men to manage the property of joint undivided estates. To deprive a person of the right of the management of his property was a serious matter and could only be taken under very extraordinary circumstances and with proper safeguards. The safe guards in the law of 1812 were that action could only be taken in cases of disputes causing (1) inconvenience to the public, and (2) injury to private rights. The other and most important safe guard was that the jurisdiction vested in the Court of Zilla Judge, which could act only on the motion of Revenue authorities or any one interested in the estate itself, and not on his own power. This provision about the appointment of common managers was considerably enlarged when the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed, but no change of jurisdiction from the Judicial to the Executive was ever suggested, contemplated or made. The result has been that Zilla Judges under the superintendence of the Sudder Dewani Adawlut and High Court have exercised this jurisdiction for over one hundred years. It is now proposed in the present Bill that the jurisdiction should vest in the Collector under the superintendence of the Commissioner, and not in the District Judge and High Court as it had hitherto existed. I may say in passing that in this respect the condition of Orissa is on the same footing as that of other parts of the Provinces in Bengal and Bihar, and I do not think that it is maintained that Orissa so far as this matter is concerned should be treated differently from other parts of the province. I look on this proposed change with great alarm, and my fear is that a provision like this will place all the co-owners of estates and tenures in Orissa in a most dangerous position. It will lead to most disastrous consequences to them, and they and their property will incur the risk of being placed in charge of common management more often and more largely than is either good for them or for the country. Hitherto if any dispute existed between them and their co-owners causing inconvenience to the public, the Collector, and in case of injury to private rights, the person interested, had to move the District Judge, who after going through the matter may or may not appoint a common manager. In case he did appoint, the party aggrieved could come up to the High Court for redress Now in Orissa the Collector will take the initiative and act as a Judge. If he hears from the Police or from the Settlement office or in a private conversation with any person or at the European club that there exists any dispute between co-owners not necessarily causing inconvenience to the public, but causing injury to private rights (which all disputes do), he can without waiting for a complaint from the aggrieved party at once take action and call upon them to appoint a common manager, and if they do not appoint a common manager, he himself can appoint a common manager, and thereupon the co-owners not only lose the management of their estate; but if the Bill is passed into law as it stands with the additions made therein, he cannot transfer or mortgage his rights or even apply for partition. If this section is passed as it stands, I sincerely pity the positions of all co-owners in this tract of the country from big zamindars down to holders of smallest tenure. They will be in constant dread of the Executive head of the district. They can at any time be deprived of the control of their property. It must not be supposed that I am saying anything against the Collectors, for whom as a body I have the greatest respect, regard and admiration. But, Sir, there is something which the lawyers call "judicial interest" or "judicial bias." Human nature is human nature and one of the elementary principles of jurisprudence is that you cannot be both prosecutor and judge. You set at naught the first principle of law, and make the Collector both prosecutor and judge. He can take action on his own motion in case of any dispute with which the public peace is not concerned, and he can decide the matter himself. It is placing in his hands a power which should never be placed in the hands of any person, however great confidence you may have in him. It is not only necessary that justice should be done, but it is absolutely necessary that the people should have no misgivings about the tribunal where they have to go to for justice. Then let us see what is the reason for the change. It is said that the Collector can keep better supervision over the managers than the District Judge can do. I admit that this is so. I admit that as rule management of estates cannot be properly supervised by the District Judge in the same way as by the Collector. You do not however propose to give him the supervision of management only, but you propose to give him the jurisdiction to take the initiative and to decide as a judge as to whether a common manager should be appointed. This difficulty of management by the District Judge has been felt before. We find it was felt so far back as 1827, for Regulation V of 1827 recognised that management by District Judge was less satisfactory than management by the Collector. It therefore authorised the District Judge in case where he decided to appoint a manager to issue a precept to the Collector directing him to manage the property. This provision was replaced by a provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act, section 96, empowering the Local Government to nominate a person as manager for any area; and when the manager is so nominated, the District Judge should be bound to appoint him as common manager under the Tenancy Act If the question of management only is concerned, the difficulty might be obviated by the Local Government exercising the powers under this section But there is no reason why the power of taking the initiative should vest in the Collector. My last objection is that the matter has not been properly considered. I am aware that Mr. Adami, the District Judge of Cuttack, supports this provision, but he supports it simply on the ground of better supervision of management. He has not one word to say about the desirability or otherwise of adopting a line of action which would make the Collector both prosecutor and judge. Except Mr. Adami, no other District Judge has been, I believe, consulted, and above all the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court who have exercised the jurisdiction for over one hundred years have not been referred to Is it fair to them, is it to say the least courteous on your part to oust them from their jurisdiction they have exercised for over 100 years without hearing from them as to what they have to say on the subject? When the effect of the Bill is properly understood, it is bound to create an alarm. I therefore propose that the present law need not be disturbed.

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BOSE said.—

Sir,—This amendment has been very eloquently proposed, and the objections are on general grounds, but the change in the law that we propose is based upon actual experience. I can inform the Members of this Council that this system of managing certain estates through a common manager has been in vogue in the district of Cuttack for about 20 or 25 years Of course, I find that the Judge who first took over the charge of one estate, rather liked the work. He took interest in that family whose estate came under his management But then I am in a position to say that no other succeeding Judge ever liked this kind of work, and generally speaking there were several reasons for this—the first was that the Judge was busy with judicial work, and he had hardly any time to devote to the management of the estates, the second reason was that he had not the machinery at his command with which to work; and there was another reason, Sir, that these estates were generally embarrassed estates, and defaults were made in payment of Government revenue or the properties had been mortgaged or brought to sale in civil courts, and these things gave a considerable lot of trouble to the District Judge. He did not at all like either to write to the Collector to postpone the revenue sale or to write to the subordinate courts to adjourn execution sales Mr. Adami is no doubt emphatic in his opinion that he has not been able to work this system well, and it was preferable that the common manager should be under the Collector. I may also say, Sir, that at the Conference held in 1909 by Mr. Maddox most of the gentlemen consulted were in favour of the transfer of jurisdiction to the Collector. But the Hon'ble Member who proposes this amendment said that the Collector would be situated as a prosecutor and judge I fail to see anything like that in this matter. On the other hand, if there was any inconvenience to the public or injury to the private rights, the Collector was in a better position to ascertain these than the District Judge, who would depend simply upon the evidence which may be produced before him; and I have noticed, Sir, that though the Collectors have many sins to atone for as regards their sympathies with the respectable people of the district or with the owners of embarrassed estates, I have always seen that the Collector was very sympathetic with the members of these ancient embarrassed families. Not only the Judge was of this opinion, but the local opinion was certainly the same There is no harm in my telling the Council that Mr. Levinge, the present Commissioner, is also of opinion that the jurisdiction should be transferred to the Collector. There is also another reason that the common manager's accounts ought to be examined periodically at least. But I am sorry to say that though these estates had been under the management of the District Judge for several years, owing to the want of any qualified officers, the accounts were never audited and no one knows how they stand. For this and other reasons it was thought fit to change the jurisdiction and place such estates under the Collector.

"As regards the curtailment of the power of co-sharers, I can also say from my experience that it is very necessary, for otherwise though all the co-sharers may think fit to place their estates in the hands of the Collector, some of them may change their minds afterwards, and by their conduct make the management impossible. For this and other reasons the change in the law is required, and I think except the general remarks already referred to there is nothing in the local conditions or experience actually gained by competent men which shows that this change in the law is not required.

THE ORISSA TENANCY BILL, 1912.

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON :—

This amendment (No 191) and the twenty which succeed it all relate to the provisions included in the Bill on the subject of common managers, and the main object of attack, is the proposed transfer of jurisdiction from the District Judge to the Collector. The first point to note is that all the amendments have been proposed by Hon'ble Members from Bihar. There is not a single amendment suggested by any of the Hon'ble Members who represent Orissa, and it may be inferred that the provisions of the Bill have the entire approval of the latter. The proposed innovation in the law is not one which is being thrust upon an unwilling people by Government It is an innovation which was sought by the people themselves, and Government was content to place itself in their hands and accede to their wishes. If Mr. Maddox's report of April 1909 be referred to, it will be seen that the zamindars, whom the Hon'ble Member has solemnly warned of the threatened invasion of their cherished rights of property, were themselves the first to suggest the change. They were dissatisfied with the working of the Bengal sections. Mr. Maddox translated their suggestion into proposals which were laid before the Orissa Committee of 1909. The Committee, with the exception of one common manager, who was also a pleader, one mukhtear and one zamindar, were strongly in favour of transferring the jurisdiction of the Judge to the Collector, "not only," I quote from Mr. Maddox's report, "because the Collector is familiar with the agricultural conditions of the district and controls all revenue matter (the area for the most part being temporarily settled), but also because he is more likely to appoint competent persons as managers and to supervise their work effectively."

The proposals which were incorporated in the Bill were circulated to the three associations who may be said to represent the landlord's interest in Orissa. Not only did all three associations approve of the proposals; they suggested that Government should go further in the direction of strengthening the hands of the common manager and curtailing the powers of the co-sharers during the term of management. They wanted Government in fact to introduce some of the provisions of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act. Let me now read what the District Judge of Orissa wrote on the subject when the Bill was circulated to him:—

"The changes proposed in clauses 96 to 103 of the Bill are strongly to be advocated. There are at present six estates under common management under the District Judge of Cuttack, one of them being the Bhingapur estate, about the largest estate in Orissa. All, except one of these six estates, may be said to be in extremis.

"It is impossible for the District Judge, in the course of his duties, properly to supervise the common managers; he has no regular staff for the purpose and cannot afford the time to go out on tour.

"Furthermore, suits are constantly coming before him on appeal which, properly speaking, he should not hear, being in a way an interested party. Parts of the estates are constantly being put up for sale in execution of decrees, and it falls upon the District Judge to petition the subordinate courts to give time; at the same time he has to call for explanations from the lower courts for the delays in completing execution cases.

"The Collector can far better supervise the management, having experienced Deputy Collectors under him who can give the estates their individual attention.

"All the properties of the co-proprietors should be brought under the common manager. There has been difficulty, for instance, in selling off some house property of the proprietors of the Bhingapur estate in the towns of Puri and Cuttack. Such property is not at present covered by the Bengal Tenancy Act. I would suggest the inclusion, with necessary modifications, of the provision of sections 3, 10, 11, 17 and 18 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, 1876."

The suggestions of the local associations and the District Judge were considered carefully in Select Committee. The Committee were unable to accept all the suggestions, because it is not the business of a Tenancy Act to provide for the preservation of Encumbered Estates. The details of clause 101 where they differ from those of section 98 of the Bengal Tenancy Act—and these also are the subject of attack by the Hon'ble Members from Bihar—represent the extent to which the Committee considered it safe in a Tenancy Act to admit the suggestions and accede to the wishes of the local associations.

We have now the very curious situation that when Government has embodied in a Bill provisions which are in compliance with the unanimous and urgent representations of the people of Orissa, the whole scheme is violently assailed by representatives of Bihar. Sir, it does not bode well for the newly strengthened connection between Bihar and Orissa that what may be called the senior partner in the new concern should adopt this attitude towards the junior member of the firm. I would ask the Hon'ble Members from Bihar to look at the question in this light and to abandon their opposition to this portion of the Bill.

The Hon'ble mover has laid much force on the point that the control of the working of common managers has hitherto rested with the Hon'ble High Court, and has endeavoured to excite us by holding up the new provisions to execration as an invasion of their ancient jurisdiction But, Sir, in the management of disorganized estates of all kinds, there has always been close co-operation between the Judicial and the Executive There has been no jealous rivalry. When we have shown that the existing system has not worked well in Orissa and that there is a universal desire to adopt instead management under the control of the Collector, no reasonable objection can be urged to the change. What the Hon'ble Member losses sight of or does not fully appreciate is the closeness of the connection which exists between an Orissa Collector and the landed interests of his district. The discussion indeed throws an interesting side-light on the difference that has been made to Orissa by the fact that its land settlements are temporary. The Collector is the trusted friend of the proprietary body, and the holy horror with which the Bihar Members regard these proposals is not intelligible to the people of Orissa.

There is one point, Sir, in the Hon'ble mover's remarks which has arrested my attention. He is afraid of the unlimited discretion that is conferred on the Collector to appoint common managers It is no more unlimited, of course, than the discretion of the District Judge under the Bengal Act, for in this matter the District Judge exercises executive functions, and there is no appeal to the High Court against his orders; but he fears that the powers will be more extensively used by the Collector, who may act more frequently on his own initiative. Although the working of the provisions has been subjected to the revisional powers of the Commissioner by clause 102A, which has no counterpart in the Bengal Act, there is, I admit, some little danger that the provisions of the Bill may be overworked by an indiscreet or over-enthusiastic Collector. Government has no desire to throw unnecessary work on its mufassal officers. It is true that the successor of an officer who had overworked the sections might disencumber himself of the burden under section 102, but it is not always easy and not always satisfactory to get rid of a responsibility. I therefore propose, Sir, with your permission, to suggest that no appointment of a common manager under clause 98 or release of a property under clause 102 shall be made without the sanction of the Commissioner. The effect of these additions will be to steady the working of the provisions, by affording less play to the idiosyncracies of individual officers.

I propose to move the necessary amendments when the clauses in question come up for discussion.

The Hon'ble Bábu Baikuntha Nath Sen said:—

I rise, Sir, to support the amendment. Under the Bengal Tenancy Act the appointment of a common manager, his powers and duties, are provided in sections 93 to 100 of the Act. The District Judge has the right to appoint a common manager on the representation of the Collector under certain circumstances, i.e., when there is inconvenience to the public, and on the representation of co-owners when there are injuries to private rights. The District Judge has the power of appointment, and the High Court has the power to make rules for the working of this chapter Now a departure is sought to be made, and the Collector-Magistrate is to take the initiative, and he can himself appoint a manager The rules which are provided under the Bengal Tenancy Act, and which are to be framed by the High Court according to the provisions in the Bill, are to be framed by the Local Government, so that practically it comes to a question of the divesting of the jurisdiction of the District Judge and of the High Court, and of vesting the same jurisdiction in the Collector and in the Local Government. This departure, therefore, is a very important one; it affects the principle, it changes the forum, and unless a good and strong case is made out, the Council, I think, should not make a new departure. It has just now been observed by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, that the Orissa people do not object to that provision, but the Bihari Members have taken upon themselves to move the amendment. It does not matter much whether the amendment comes from the Bihari Members or from the Orissa Members; no doubt importance should be attached to the statement made by the Hon'ble Member just now that this measure would not be forced upon an unwilling people, as if the people of Orissa are willing to accept it. Suggestions by the local associations have been referred to, and they suggest that the powers should continue in the District Judge It has further been observed by my hon'ble friend, Babu Janaki Nath Bose, that the District Judge is so much overworked in his judicial duties, that he cannot afford to give proper time to considerations of questions which arise and he has further observed that he has not the proper machinery which the Collector has ow if the District Judge has not sufficient time, I think that the Collector-Magistrate, with his multifarious work, has got still less time. That is no ground As regards the machinery, I must speak from personal experience. There is one estate called Patikabaree estate, which is under the management of a common manager appointed by the District Judge of Murshidabad. The sheristadar of the Judge is a most competent person, he supervises the work, and the work is going on very satisfactorily. So that I am not prepared to admit that there is any force in the argument that the Judge has no time, that the Judge has no machinery, to supervise the work. Then comes the question as to why especially any large powers are intended to be given to the manager under the new Bill Why should there be this divesting of authorities and powers from the judiciary and vesting it in the executive? Sir, I beg to submit, with every deference to the opinion which has just now been expressed by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, that the people—that the public at large—have the greatest confidence in the administration of the law by a judicial officer and ultimately by the High Court. They look upon actions taken for administrative purposes by the executive authorities with some degree of misapprehension; rightly or wrongly they do so. Here the co-owners have got vested interests, and I find from the provision made in clause 101 that the co-owners will not have the right without the sanction of the Collector to apply for partition even of the estates; that is depriving them of vested rights. When there is a common manager appointed a dissolution of the common management takes place ipso facto by a partition of these estates Now, under the Bengal Tenancy Act, a co-owner is not under any disabilities to apply for partition, nor is he bound to take the previous sanction of the District Judge or any one else; he can at once apply for a partition, and then the common manager disappears altogether. Now, a greater power is being sought to be given to the common manager, and when there is a common manager appointed a co-owner will not have the right to apply for partition without the sanction of the Collector; this places him under an enforced artificial disability; this deprives a vested right. For such enlarged powers, has a good case been made out for this departure? I need not enter into the reasons for the misapprehensions I do not say that every Collector or every Magistrate will act in a perverse way—far from that; but Magistrate-Collectors in their over-zeal, in consequence of mistakes connected with the appointment of the common manager, may take action which may result in a serious injury to co-owners. I will take a simple case for illustration: Sir, suppose there are ten co sharers, and one of them dies, a dispute arises between the heirs of that particular co-owner—the nine co-owners have got nothing to do among themselves—but the heirs of the tenth co-owner fight among themselves, which brings inconvenience to the people or, in other words there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace The whole property is brought under a common manager It is certainly possible—it might take place - it might happen—if the Collector were trying in his own way to take up the case of the heirs of the tenth of the estate. I will not dilate on this point, because cases are conceivable in which this may be worked in an oppressive way. To avoid all these things, I submit that the law as it prevails in Bengal ought to be adopted, and, being a representative of the people, I must say with some degree of confidence, with due deference of course to the opinion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, that this would be against the wishes of part owners and against the wishes of the people. This will not be a popular measure. Government should certainly have consulted them before taking such a step by which vested rights will be interfered with, by which the jurisdiction of the District Judge and the High Court will be taken away, and such measure should be adopted with the greatest caution. I am aware of the fact that a provision has been made in this Bill for the revisional powers of the Commissioner. Under the existing law there is no right of appeal a High Court, of course, could exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction of interference in special cases No provision for appeal is made in any of the provisions, but the Commissioner has been given powers of revision, very likely to safeguard the interests of the co owners. I do not think that is sufficient, and I therefore support the amendment.

The Hon'ble SAIYID FAKHR-UD-DIN said —

Sir, I rise to support the amendment, and I am very glad to find that this amendment is not only supported by the representatives of the people of Bihar, but also by the representatives of the people of Bengal. Of course, I do not know what the reasons are which led the representatives of the Orissa people not to put forward any amendments with regard to this clause, but we have here to look at the principle of law which we are going to enact We ought not to judge the utility of the clause from the point of view as to who is proposing amendment, but the merits of the clause and the amendment should be dealt with independently of any such idea Such remarks and observations made by the Hon'ble Member in charge as regards almost every amendment proposed by Bihar members are quite out of place. Hitherto we had given jurisdiction to the District Judge for the appointment of a common manager with revisional jurisdiction invested in the High Court, and now a big change is proposed to be made in the existing law, the Collector is being vested with the power of appointing a common manager of his own motion even without any application on behalf of the co-owners. If he is satisfied that there is some inconvenience, or there is a likelihood of breach of the peace, he might appoint a common manager. Now this measure is no doubt very stringent, and it ought to be applied only in extreme cases and under exceptional circumstances; and hitherto in order to safeguard the misuse of this power, the District Judge was vested with the power of appointing a common manager on the application of a Collector, or even on the application of a private party. Now it is suggested that the District Judge had not sufficient machinery, and therefore it was difficult for him to look after the management We know that under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, the civil court has power to appoint a Receiver, and the Receiver has to manage the estates under the supervision of the Civil Judge; he has to submit his accounts to the Judge. And even if we assume that the machinery which the District Judge has got is not sufficient to look after the management of such undivided estates, of course we could provide him with sufficient staff and sufficient machinery, by which the District Judge could manage the estates efficiently, but there is no reason why these powers should be vested in the Collector who himself has got manifold business to look after. You do not propose to shorten the work of a Collector, but you make him to do other additional works. If you say that the Collector has got Deputy Collectors under him, he can efficiently work through them. You can similarly empower a District Judge to employ subordinates—Munsifs—I think the District Judge in that case would be able to manage the estate more satisfactorily than the Collector. Then we find in the present clause of appointment of common managers' some stringent provisions have been made that the co-owners will not be entitled to sell, mortgage or lease any part of the property, nor will they be entitled to move the Collector or the Civil Courts for a partition of their share. Now when such stringent provisions have been made, it is but fair that the District Judge should exercise that power which hitherto he had enjoyed of appointing a common manager, as practically the Collector will for the time being confiscate this estate, and the co-owner will not be entitled to sell, mortgage, or lease his own share, nor will he be entitled to go before the Collector and ask for a division of his own lands, so that he may be free from all these difficulties. He can do these things only with the sanction of the Collector. I beg to submit, Sir, that, having regard to the stringent provisions which are now introduced in the subsequent clauses of this Bill I think the existing law should not be changed, and that this power which was given to the District Judge should be retained. I notice in the reply given by the Hon'ble Member in charge that no explanation has been offered as to why the Hon'ble High Court was not consulted in this matter. Under the Bengal Tenancy Act we find that it was the High Court which framed this rule now the High Court will have nothing to do under the new clauses of the Bill Is it fair that you take away the power of the High Court but you do not consult that body? The landlords will always be at the mercy of the Collector. If the Collector is displeased with any landlord, his estate will be confiscated under the garb of inconvenience to the public or private right under the provisions of this clause. He will not be under the control of the Civil Court I am fully sure that this clause will arouse alarm in the minds of the landlords With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support this amendment

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

I wish to add, Sir, to the Bengal support for what it is worth I was not quite prepared for such a large and persistant promulgation of the opinion that whenever "territorial legislation," if one may so call it, comes up before this legislature or any other legislature, there is to be, at least, by implication also a sort of territ rial ear-marking of support of the different sections composing the legislature That idea has been, earlier in the debate, properly combated in other concerns, and whatever application the idea may be conceded to have to matters of technique and details, it would be undesirable to extend it and emphasize it in connection with the larger questions of principle, such as are involved in this clause and in this amendment The matter has been discussed on the merits at some length, and it is not necessary for me to travel over the same ground that has been covered by other speakers Reference has recently been made to the Receiver provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, and reference may be made to other law under wich the civil court has, under given conditions, power to interfere, whenever there is dispute of the kind contemplated in this clause. At present there is one, and only one, controling authority with regard to these disputes, and that is the District Judiciary. Apart from the question of the High Court not having been consulted, apart also from the question of the powers of the law courts having been taken away, not by implication any longer, but overtly, without much of a case having been made out in support of such transfer of power, we have to consider some practical difficulties that are not only likely, but are sure, to arise, when there is dual authority of the kind proposed here against all procedure. I do not know, Sir, what will happen to the larger powers with which the common manager, or rather the Collector, is proposed to be vested. But supposing those powers are given to the Collector, and supposing there is a desire to avoid the exercise of those powers whenever there is a likelihood or chance of any of the contingencies contemplated in clause 97 arising, the more enterprising co-owner would straightaway rush to the Civil Court and put his suit on the file and ask for the appointment of a Receiver to the Civil Court and put his suit on the file and ask for the appointment of a Receiver, before anybody has the opportunity of thinking of a common manager. By this clause no doubt the Collector is given the power of initiative together with those interested. Of course, as has been pointed out, it would be possible for an infinitesimally small owner to harass and annoy his co-owners by invoking the aid of this section. It would be equally possible, however, for him to go to the Civil Court and ask for the appointment of an official Receiver. Now it is possible that the appointment in many cases of a Receiver would not be a blessing after all, and the administration of an estate through a common manager may have advantages which the Receiver is not able to furnish. The average zamindar having disputes with his co-owners, has not largely availed himself of the opportunities of having a Receiver appointed, but has preferred the channel of a common manager. That has been acceptable and should we without complete justification or more than justification do anything that will make people think—having regard to the larger powers that I have alluded to—as to whether it would not be desirable to anticipate things much earlier than when the critical stage arises to move the Civil Court and get a Receiver appointed, and make it impossible for a common manager to intervene. A sort of perpetuity has been sought to be created later on by interfering with the powers of alienation and the rights of a partition which neither the Hindu legislature nor the British legislature had thought of interfering with so long. Having regard to these proposed extensive powers, there is the greatest likelihood of the powers of a Civil Court being invoked before time, than would otherwise be the case. It is difficult to follow the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. If there is any opposition to any clause based on the existing Bengal Act, we are told that the law has done well enough for 27 years, why do you seek to interfere with it? The moment one seeks to go beyond the existing Bengal law, exception is taken that the Bengal law is no longer good enough, and reasons are found—and they can always be found when necessary—for making an advance on the Bengal law. We are not persuaded that anything like a clear case has been made out in support of the drastic and far-reaching innovation proposed in their clauses. Because Orissa representatives have not put this forward, it does not follow that they would not like to have it if the others will take it up, and a fair and reasonable case we made out in favour of the amendment. The Bengal Members have exercised a self-restraint which has been conceded to be praiseworthy, by implication, by the Hon'ble Member in charge, in interfering as little with this Bill as possible. The grievance somewhere is that the Bengal Members have not taken enough interest in this Bill, and it is complained that those who support the retention of this Bill in this Council, have not taken enough interest in its progress. I wish to assure those who make a grievance of that kind, on behalf of myself and of the other Bengal Members of this Council, that it is not the interest that is lacking, but they do not wish to needlessly hamper the proceedings and waste the time of the Council by taking up ground which others have so well and very properly covered. But when a question of principle arises, I think it is desirable that Bengal should also make its voice heard and its opinion known, and make due contribution towards securing justice for Orissa even by forfeiting the hard earned praise for good conduct attributed to the Bengal Members in regard to their marked self-effacement in this debate.

The Hon'ble MR. MADDOX said:—

I only wish briefly to refer to what the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has mentioned this morning, and that is about my report of April 1909. In that report I showed that it was clearly the wish of the people of Orissa to have these particular provisions, and the benefits to be secured by its provisions was also set forth. I need hardly remind the Members of this Council,—those who come from Bihar and Bengal and have spoken to-day—that the people whom they represent are not in such close touch with the Collector and the Deputy Collector to the same extent as the people of Orissa are, and therefore it is desirable that these provisions should be administered in Orissa by the Collector and Deputy Collector. Besides this the District Judge of Cuttack whose jurisdiction extends over Orissa has also recommended the adoption of these proposals.

The Hon'ble MR. SYAD WASI AHMAD said:—

Day before yesterday I had an amendment No. 190 to this clause which was to the effect that the whole clause should be omitted. That amendment was withdrawn by me when I saw another amendment by my friend the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur, on the ground that I thought his amendment being milder in form and also in support of the present law, the Bengal Tenancy Act which, according to the view of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, has worked so satisfactorily for the last 27 years, would be accepted. I find to-day, however, that that amendment has also been opposed, and opposed rather strongly on a different ground altogether. The first ground put forward by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill is that the Orissa Members, whom this clause particularly affects, have not said a word against these clauses, but on the other hand they have supported a change of this nature from the present law. I submit, Sir, this is absolutely no ground. As I said on the very first day of the discussion of this Bill, it is not a matter as to who speaks or who takes part in the discussion of a Bill in this Council. The whole thing is whether or not the Bill as placed before us and which we are asked to discuss and give our opinion upon is good law. That is the principle that ought to guide every Member in this hall, whether official or non-official. Now the changes that are proposed to be made by the introduction of this clause are of such a nature as to affect the very principles of the Bengal Tenancy Act inasmuch as this clause clearly changes the jurisdiction of a District Judge, and to hand it over to the District Collector. It is needless for me to remind Hon'ble Members of this Council that there is already a cry against any power being vested in the executive officers. Under this Bill you have already given enough power to the Collector. You have practically made him—if you pass this Bill into law—the zamindar of his district. He may do what he likes; all the civil suits, all the rent suits, will be tried and decided by him. He will be directly in touch with the tenants, and will be directly in touch with the villagers, and naturally will also be in touch with the zamindars. I ask you to consider seriously whether the powers that are proposed to be given to him in this Bill as a whole will or will not make him an interested party whenever a question of this nature comes up before him.

Much has been said by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that difficulties have arisen in the case of District Judges when they have to apply as managers of the estates under their charge for postponements in cases pending before Subordinate Judges. The difficulties also have arisen because District Judges have to try civil suits in connection with the management of these very villages, but will these difficulties not arise in the case of District Magistrates, who will be, as I have said, the real zamindars of the whole district? Now, when you propose to make a change in the law, you have to first of all give a clear solid reason as to why that law should be changed. Two grounds have been given for his proposed change: the first is that a District Judge should be changed, and two grounds have been put forward in support of that view—one is that the District Judge is already an overworked officer and has no time; the second ground is that as he will be an interested party, it is not desirable that he should have the management of the estates. Not a word has been said or suggested either by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, or in the opinions that have been taken on this clause, that a District Judge cannot efficiently manage the estate, or that he is not capable of doing so. All that has been suggested is that he has no time, and I ask you whether it is reasonable to take away his powers, not because he is incapable of exercising it, but because he has not sufficient staff to work under him. If he has not a sufficient number of men under him, give him more men. What will be the result of this clause being passed into law? The estates will be managed by Deputy Collectors, and not by District Magistrates. You are giving power in effect to the Deputy Collectors who are already managers under the Court of Wards. I do not wish to suggest that these Deputy Collectors do not manage the Court of Wards well and satisfactorily. But a similar question may arise when you are going to overburden the Collectors with all sorts of powers, and cases are not wanting in which we know that various District Collectors have complained of overwork.

When they have plenty of work in hand, a similar complaint will arise. So I submit that it is absolutely no ground as to why the law should be changed. As to the District Judge being interested in the matter and therefore he should not exercise his power any longer, I submit that in nearly every case that comes under the Civil Procedure Code he is interested in very many things in which he has to sit as a Court of Appeal and decide cases. The principle thing is that you cannot change a law without giving any solid reason as to why the law should be changed, and when you know that not only the people of Orissa but the entire Council—I am talking of course of the non-official Members and the entire body of people whom they represent—certainly view this change with a great deal of alarm.

Then the next point has not been answered at all, and that is that we are also taking away the powers of the High Court. Why? What is the ground there? Has it been suggested that the High Court is also overworked in spite of our having 20 or 19 Judges? Absolutely no ground has been given as to why you are going to take away their power. You console us by saying that revisional power is given to the Commissioner. What is a Commissioner after all? He is the immediate superior of the Collector. That is all on the executive side of the administration, and we oppose this clause merely on that ground, and we say do anything you like but don't give too much power to the executive authorities in their districts when we have got District Judges and Civil Courts. Even my hon'ble friend from Bengal told us just now—and correctly too—that we have got a good deal of reliance in Civil Courts, and that everybody cries and shouts for a High Court. Even we, in the new Province of Bihar, are shouting for it. Why? Simply because we believe—we may be wrong—but we believe that we will have better justice done in the High Court than at the hands of a District Collector.

Then again there is one thing to be considered which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has very frankly admitted. There is also the chance of this power being abused by over-zealous Collectors. Cases are not wanting—I need not give you instances, but those who have been reading the papers for the last two or three years will tell you that there have been cases where the District Magistrates have gone beyond their powers at times by oppressing the zamindar—if I may be pardoned to say so. What will be the result of this? If the District Collector gets annoyed with a very petty zamindar, he will say "Oh, all right, on my own motion I will take away all the powers you have got. I will not let you enjoy your own property, and what is more, I will place it in my own hands." What is the remedy for that? Save and except certain powers given to a revisional Commissioner. He is in many cases guided by the notes and remarks of his subordinate officers. We don't expect any justice there, and therefore I submit that this law which is going to be introduced in this Council is certainly very strongly being opposed by everyone concerned.

There is one more point I wish to draw the attention of the Council to and that is this. The District Magistrate is vested with this power, and he is vested to such an extent that he can initiate proceedings of his own motion. Now what is the meaning of these words "of his own motion"? That requires an interpretation, but we know the meaning as interpreted in the Criminal Procedure Code; that is to say, he may also act on the reports of the police. Now, that is a very serious thing to consider. The District Collector sitting in his district receives various reports in the capacity of District Magistrate—both confidential and private reports from the police. If the District Magistrate takes the initiative on such reports and calls upon the co-sharer and says, "You better appoint a common manager, otherwise I will take charge of your entire property," I submit that would be very hard on the zamindars, in some cases at any rate. If there is any chance of the section not working satisfactorily in the case of zamindars, I submit that in itself is a very strong ground as to why the amendment should be accepted by this Council. I, therefore, beg to support this amendment that has been moved by my friend, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay.

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said :—

I did not intend to speak on this matter, but there has been something of crimination and recrimination as to what Orissa Members have charged other

Members with, and what should be the duty of Orissa Members. I must confess I did not give any particular attention to the study of this subject. When the matter was before the Select Committee, a proposal was made to incorporate in this Bill something like the encumbered estates provisions. I remember I objected to that. Then I have heard here that those people who have their estates now under a common manager wish a change, and I have also heard people say that they would like to have the thing in the hands of the Collector. So far it is correct But I don't think anybody was consulted with regard to the provisions of the Bill as they stand The discussion now before the Council has brought out certain features, - features which I noticed at least in the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson and in the speech of the Hon'ble Member who has just resumed his seat. The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said that he could imagine an over-energetic or some such word—Collector, and the last speaker pointed out what may be done by the Collector if the words "of his own motion" were left in the clause. These are matters in which I don't think the zamindars or persons who wish for the change were consulted. At any rate the discussion of this provision in the Bill has brought to light certain dangers. Hon'ble Members of the Council who have experience, more experience than I have, in connection with the working of this provision, have pointed out these. Though I am not in a position to speak from personal experience, I may say this much, that we are not prepared to oppose any reasonable amendment. All that we say is that any opinion formed by us is not to be adhered to as persistently as it is often done by an Hon'ble Member in charge of a Bill Of course, Sir, we have been yoked with a senior partner which the Hon'ble Member, Mr. McPherson, has referred to; in taking a partner for life, one has to consult the wishes of such partner very often before they begin to live in the same house. Secondly, of course, the experience of the Bengali and Bihari are not to be thrown away and be slighted by the Orissa Members

I regret really that I cannot offer any observation based on my personal experience, nor can I claim to have given any particular attention to this subject.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said —

I wish to say one thing with reference to the remarks that have fallen from the Hon'ble Member for the University regarding the Bengal Tenancy Act. The position of Government with regard to this matter is that we resist attacks on the principles of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and we say that in cases where that Act has worked well for many years a very strong case has to be made out in favour of any change. But this question which we are now considering is not a question of principle. It is simply a question of machinery as to whether these common manager provisions should be worked by the District Judge or by the Collector. There is moreover a strong case in favour of a change The people of Orissa say that the existing machinery is not working well, and I may say here that the Hon'ble Mr. Das is wrong in thinking that this common manager provision was not circulated for opinion. It was first put forward by the Orissa people themselves in 1909, and the detailed provisions of the Bill were circulated to them some time in July or August and have been under consideration ever since. They were unanimously approved by the Orissa Association and the Orissa public. They have not, of course, seen the comparatively small amendments which were made in Select Committee, but I think we may take it that the Orissa public have approved the main principles which transfer this function from the District Judge to the Collector. The District Judge himself, who works this machinery at present, says that it is not suitable and wants a change I submit, therefore, that in this comparatively small question of machinery we ought to be guided by the wishes of the local officers and the local people and carry the provisions of the Bill as they now are.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bhupendra Nath Basu said :—

I will deal with the question that has been raised by the Hon'ble Member, Mr. Kerr, first. But before I do so I confess that if this section was not a section involving very important principles of administration, I should have taken no part in the discussion, in view of the statement made by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that "the Orissa people want it." It is because I feel that there is a very serious question of principle involved in the clause that I venture to detain the Council for a few minutes. The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr says that it is a question of machinery. It is in one sense, but behind that question of machinery is the question of the hand that applies the machinery that sets the machinery in motion, and here we have the Collector himself setting the machinery in motion and then deciding for himself at a later stage as to whether the machinery should or should not be set in motion. To those Members of this Council who have spent their lives in district work I am afraid to appeal, because naturally they grow up under a belief that whatever they do is always right, but to others who have not had the benefit of that experience I can make a most strenuous appeal. Is it right or is it proper that the person who is ultimately to decide as to whether a common manager should or should not be appointed is the person who in the first place has to set the machinery in motion? That is a simple question to which I ask for a straightforward reply. I see arrayed against me gentlemen who have held high judicial offices, and one of whom we may congratulate upon being selected to fill one of the highest posts in my province. I appeal to them, not as a matter of experience with which I shall deal later on, but as a matter of principle to say whether they would give their high approval to a procedure of that kind. Then going away from the question of principle and coming to the applicability of the section, is it not quite clear that the experience we have had absolves us from all fear of any doubt of interference on the part of over zealous district officer, but it may be that in Orissa a state of Arcadia exists, and that the happy relations existing there between executive officers and the people have not their counterpart elsewhere in the province, except probably on those carved images on Buddhist temples, where you see the lion and the lamb drinking water from the same vessel in peace and contentment. But apart from that, it may very frequently happen that obnoxious zamindars may be sought to be put down by methods which will not stand the test of judicial procedure. Many of my friends, who have been district officials— I appeal to them—would say that often times they have found or they have felt that an obnoxious zamindar, from their point of view in any event, should have been dealt with, if possible, under the Court of Wards Act. In my own experience, a case did occur, where the zamindar was forced to seek the protection of Government, after a series of prosecutions by transferring his estates to the Court of Wards.

Under the law as you are going to frame it, wherever any dispute exists between co-owners, which is likely to cause inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights, the Collector can always interfere. I ask, Sir, the Bengal men, and in that I include the members of the Civil Service—as well as my non-official friends, that is men who have lived in the mufassal and who have experience of the management of zamindaris owned by several proprietors to say—can they point out to any single zamindari in the whole area of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa as they now are, where, owing to some disputes between the co-proprietors, some injury to private rights does not often happen, and thus open the door for the appointment of a common manager, and is it intended that the entire part of the Province of Orissa should be practically under the zamindari management of the Collector. Would he be able to look after such a big estate in addition to his other duties? But it may be said that it is a state of things which is not contemplated. What is contemplated is the potential power to interfere, and not the actual interference. But this potential power to interfere is a source of great danger. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox, calls attention to his report where he says:—"Others ask for an amendment of sections 93 to 100 of the present Bengal Tenancy Act, so as to bring the procedure both for appointment and control of common managers entirely under the control of the Collector." That is one thing, but the provisions which you are seeking to introduce are quite different.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maddox said :—

May I explain, Sir, that they are detailed in a later paragraph of the same report, paragraph 30, sub-clause 14.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

I have got that part also, and I will deal with it. This is what my friend says on page 57 of the report (the people of Orissa)—

> "except the common manager who is also a pleader," and thereby hangs a tale, "are in favour of transferring the jurisdiction from the Judge to the Collector. Not only because the Collector is familiar with the agricultural conditions and controls all revenue matters, but also because he is more likely to appoint competent persons as managers and supervise the work effectively."

That I concede. But I shall presently tell the Council that it is possible to secure this without the large departure that you are seeking to make from the existing law.

My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Hugh McPherson, said, with some degree of appropriateness, that this is a matter in which the people of Orissa alone are concerned, and if they have no objection, why should others, the people from Bihar, especially, interfere? Well, this recalls to my mind a recent legislation in this Council, the Improvement Bill of Calcutta, and I should have been very pleased if the fight were left to us three on this side and the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas on the other, the rest of the Council abstaining from any discussion or voting; then I think we should not have come off in the plight in which we came off on that memorable occasion. But that is a state of things which is not possible in a corporate Council like the one that we have now got, and therefore I think it is right for Bihar Members as well as for ourselves to intervene in this discussion.

My friends are aware that there are provisions in the Code of Civil Procedure under which a property might be brought to sale by the District Judge through the agency of the Collector, and it was quite possible if there was a complaint, viz., that Judges had not got sufficient experience in the management of estates or the proper machinery under them, and that these things, the management of estates and supervision, would be better done by Collectors, it was quite easy to provide a machinery by which the Judges, after having given the order for the appointment of a common manager, were able to seek the help of the Collector in carrying out the part that is purely administrative, and which would not interfere with the judicial discretion of the Judge, or take away the powers of interference from the High Court My friend says that he is going to give us the additional protection of the Commissioner. Far be it from me to say that it is not a protection. But I would appeal to my friend himself to say what is the extent of that protection. In how many instances and cases like these would the Commissioner be inclined to interfere, because your grounds are so vague, viz, inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights? If these two things are established, it is merely a matter of discretion and not of judicial exercise of power, and in how many cases would the Commissioner interfere? Then, Sir, it has been said that some of the Orissa zamindars wanted, if it was possible, to incorporate in the law some of the provisions of the Encumbered Estates Act for the protection of their estates. That is a feeling with which I can sympathise, but at the same time, as my friend knows, the provisions of the Encumbered Estates Act cannot be called into existence until the estate has become heavily encumbered. What happens—will my friend say—to an estate in which, take for instance, one proprietor is the owner of 15 annas? He is a thoroughly capable proprietor. Another is the owner of a one-anna share. In Bengal and Bihar there are owners of shares which are much more fractional than one anna, and because of this, it enables the Collector to interfere and appoint a common manager. This appointment of common manager by an executive order takes away entirely the right of the 15-anna share-holder of the management of his own estate, but that is not all. If that were all, I could understand that it was probably the policy of Government to reduce the zamindar, upon whose co-operation it has often relied, and whose absenteeism has always been marked, to the position of mere annuitants. But more than that, from reducing them, capable men who may have fractional shares in a zamindari, into a position of mere annuitants, you take away their power of sale, mortgage, gift or lease that they can in no way deal with any portion of their property for any purpose whatever without the sanction of the Collector. My friend says, why should you fear that the Collector will unjustly withhold the sanction? I have not that fear. I take it that I need not fear. But why, because some fractional part of my estate has got into a state which would necessitate the appointment of a manager, should I be deprived of the ordinary rights of proprietors over my property, and why should I be compelled to seek the assistance of the Collector, and to be entirely dependant on his favour for the exercise of the commonest rights of property over my own state? And more than that; not only do you, by an executive order, impose upon me who may be a qualified proprietor to manage my own estates, this liability and deprive me of the rights of sale, gift or assignment, and further impose upon me this state of tutelage for all time until the Collector chooses otherwise You take away from me the right to have my own share partitioned and given to me separately so that I can exercise the rights of management and of proprietorship over my own state. Is that fair? I do not know what the Orissa zamindars may think of it, but I am quite sure that in no other part of India, except the Sonthal Parganas, would any zamindars or proprietors of estates relinquish their rights to property under conditions like these, even if the Collector were a man who would be always infallible. This is a serious innovation and a serious encroachment upon the rights of private property, and I earnestly ask the Council to carefully consider what they are going to do, and then vote upon this amendment.

The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur said :—

"Sir, we have heard in reply to several of our amendments that the people of Orissa have accepted this, and that there is no ground for the people of Bihar to intervene. Sir, the people of Orissa seem to be very gentle. But I do not know whether all the zamindars of Orissa, either of the permanently or temporarily settled estates, had in a body, for themselves, their heirs and their assigns, submitted an application to Your Honour that they wanted this change in the law for the appointment of a common manager. I do not think so. But assuming for the sake of argument that they have done so, shall we be deprived of the right of considering this question? Sir, I have heard of decrees by consent, but I have never heard until now of legislation by consent. In this case, a vital question of principle is involved, and the law as proposed to be introduced must stand or fall on its own merits. In considering the question of the appointment of common managers, there are three stages. The first is a stage of giving cognizance to the court in cases of dispute between the co owners and the hearing of the dispute by that court. The second stage is when it is found that there is a dispute and a common manager should be appointed, the court issues a notice to the joint holders of the estate, whether a common manager should be appointed or not; and if the joint owners do not agree among themselves with regard to the appointment of a certain manager, the court can itself appoint a common manager. The third stage is when a common manager is appointed, the court has the control and supervision of the management of the common manager. The amendment before the Council, which I had the honour to move, refers to the first stage, viz., that the court has to take cognizance of the fact as to whether or not there is any dispute, such a dispute in which it is absolutely necessary that a person should be deprived of the right of management and a common manager should be appointed My friends on the opposite Bench have rather complicated the issue by the introduction of the procedure of the second and third stages. They do not say that the Civil Court under the superintendence of the High Court should not have the jurisdiction of taking cognizance of a case and decide whether there is any dispute or not, or whether it is a fit case for the appointment of a common manager. What they say is this: that a District Judge cannot keep proper control over the common manager, and therefore the amendment in the law is necessary. As I said before, when moving this amendment, so far as I am personally concerned, although I know many are opposed to the views I entertain, I would have welcomed a motion to this effect that the power of taking cognizance and deciding whether a common manager should or should not be appointed should vest in the Civil Court, but that the power of keeping control over the common manager might be given to the Collector. I should have personally no objection to that; but what I seriously object to is this, and this question is a serious one, as it is a question of depriving a man of his right of management—I object that this power of deciding whether there is a dispute and whether a person should be deprived of his right of management should be placed in the hands of the Collector, and the Civil Court and High Court should be divested of that right. I submit that this change in the law can only be defended if it has been proved that the Civil Court and the High Court have failed to exercise this power properly and have misused this power. Have we got any such case before us? Can you condemn the High Court without giving it an opportunity for explaining whether it has misused this power? Is that fair? These are my grievances, Sir, and they have not been answered by the Hon'ble Member in charge. I may say that, so far as this amendment is concerned, there cannot be any dispute that the power of taking cognizance and deciding whether a common manager should or should not be appointed should vest as heretofore in the Civil Court under the superintendence of the High Court. Has a case been made out that the Civil Court should be divested of this power, and that this power should now vest in the Collector?

195. If motion No. 196 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that clause 98 of the Bill be omitted.

196. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "has jurisdiction under the Court of Wards Act in force for the time being and" be inserted after the word "Wards" in line 3 of clause 98 (a).

He said:—

Sir, my ground for this amendment is that the Court under the Court of Wards has jurisdiction only if the property consists of an estate or part of an estate paying revenue to Government, and the Act does not confer jurisdiction on it to take charge of property consisting of tenures only. These sections in the Bill deal both with estates and tenures. In order to remove the anomaly, I propose the above words to be added, but I will not press for it if it is not accepted by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said:—

I do not accept the amendment, Sir. There seems to be a similar provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act. The word "tenure" appears in section 97 of the Bengal Tenancy Act in much the same way as it appears here. Section 97 says:—

"In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes under section 95 the management of an estate or tenure, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property hall apply to the management."

The same reference to tenures occurs in section 95.

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said:—

Sir, I do not wish to press this amendment.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

197. If motions Nos. 191 and 194 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "District Judge" be substituted for the word "Collector" in clause 98 wherever it occurs.

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

Sir, may I have your permission to ask for the suspension of the Rules of Business to move an additional amendment?

The PRESIDENT said:—

Yes.

The Hon'ble MR. H. McPHERSON said:—

I beg to move, Sir, that after the words "in any case" in sub-clause (b) of clause 98 the words "with the previous sanction of the Commissioner" be inserted.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

I just want to know whether this would give the party a right of appeal to the Commissioner, or whether it would be only in the sense of a private communication between the Collector and the Commissioner.

The Hon'ble MR. H. McPHERSON said:—

Sir, the case will have to be reported beforehand to the Commissioner and, no doubt, the Commissioner will be glad to hear what the parties have to say before he passes orders. We may trust the Collector and the Commissioner to do justice in this matter.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said.—

Would it not be simpler if the power of appeal were given to the parties to the Commissioner in the case of the appointment of a common manager, and as regards sales, gifts, etc.?

The Hon'ble MR. H. McPHERSON said:—

There is also, Sir, the revisional power, and this, together with the additional words, secures our object. Knowing that the previous sanction of the Commissioner is necessary and that he has revisional powers under clause 102(a), the parties will, no doubt, go to the Commissioner and state their objections, if any.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 99.

198. If motion No 190 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that clause 99 of the Bill be omitted.

199. If motions Nos. 191 and 194 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "District Judge" be substituted for the word "Collector" in clause 99 wherever it occurs.

Clause 100.

200. If motion No. 199 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that clause 100 of the Bill be omitted.

Clause 101.

201. If motion No. 193 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmad to move that clause 101 be omitted.

202. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "in respect of all their joint immoveable property" in line 7 of clause 101 (3) be omitted.

He said—

These words are added by the Select Committee, and it is not clear what they mean. Do they mean that the common manager shall take charge of all the joint property? If so, it is exceedingly objectionable and inconsistent with section 96, where the existence of a dispute is a condition precedent for exercising this extraordinary jurisdiction of depriving a joint landlord of the control of his property. I submit that the Orissa people should not be treated in this respect in a way different from other provinces, and we should not go beyond the Bengal Tenancy Act in this respect.

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON said :—

This is one of the matters in which we placed ourselves in the hands of the local associations and representatives of Orissa. The clause as originally drafted was on the lines of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Several suggestions were made by the local associations and by the Members from Orissa to strengthen the hands of the common manager in dealing with joint properties of the people who came under management. It is one of the points in which we are asked to make an addition to the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. As the addition has been made at the request of the Orissa people, I think it ought to stand.

The Hon'ble BABU JANAKI NATH BASU said :—

Sir, this change has been made in the law chiefly for this reason, that the common manager takes charge of the estates and other tenures belonging to the co-owners, but they may have some house property in the town which properly does not come under the category of an estate or a tenure, but the fact that the family possess such properties gives rise to various disputes amongst the co-sharers, and such disputes cannot be settled unless the common manager takes over the management of such property also. And there is another reason for this If it is proposed to sell the houses in the town to liquidate the debts of the family, the common manager is not competent under the existing law to deal with such properties, and the owners themselves will not agree and will not execute a conveyance of these properties so that money may be raised and debts liquidated These are the chief reasons for it, and this is a provision of the law which has been approved of by local opinion.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

203. If motions Nos. 191 and 194 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "District Judge" be substituted for the word "Collector" in clause 101 wherever it occurs.

204. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words " nor shall they, without the sanction of the Collector—

(a) by sale, mortgage, gift or lease, assign their share of the property, or

(b) apply for a partition of the estate or other property in the Civil Court or under the Estates Partition Act, 1877," in lines 9 to 14 of clause 101 (3) be omitted.

He said :—

This is another instance of departure from existing law. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons it is stated that opportunity is taken to revise the law as to managers in other respects also. Reference is made to decision of the High Court in the case of Amar Chandra Kundu, I. L. R., 31 Calc., page 305, and in consequence of that decision it is suggested that the powers of co-owners should be curtailed. I do not see how the power in the co-sharer to alienate his share can effect injuriously to his co-sharer landlords or to management by the common manager, or to the tenants of the estate, when the transferee simply steps into the shoes of the co-sharer who transferred his share and all he does is subject to what the common manager might have done in the due discharge of his duty. It is a serious matter to deprive a landlord not only of his right to manage the property, but to deprive him of the right to exercise his proprietary right He is not an idiot, minor, insane or other disqualified proprietor enumerated in the Court of Wards Act. You step in, not because he is unfit, but because he had the misfortune to have some dispute with his co-sharer. In such a case to treat him as a disqualified proprietor is most outrageous. Then the provision preventing him from applying for partition means that when he comes within the jurisdiction of the common manager, you do not wish that he should extricate himself from his jurisdiction. You wish that he should be deprived of his management and control for ever. Ordinarily where a co-owner loses control over his property in consequence of a dispute between him and his co-owner, the first and foremost honest thought that would suggest to him is that he would get his estate partitioned so that he may no longer be a co-owner and subject to the jurisdiction of the Court. You bar that remedy. You say, "you shall not get your estate partitioned, as that will lead to the courts losing jurisdiction over you." Surely in the name of enacting an agrarian law to govern the relationship of landlord and tenant you do not wish to pass a law of confiscation of property for these poor people. These provisions are introduced into the Bengal Tenancy Act as recommended by the Rent Commission, an extract of which is given by Sir Steuart Bayley at page 379 of the debate when opposing the motion of Hon'ble Raja Peary Mohan Mukerjee for omitting these clauses from the Bill, because to some extent they concern with the relationship of landlord and tenant, for the tenant is hampered and harassed if there is dispute between the co-owners, and he is interested in the appointment of a common manager. But so soon as a common manager is appointed, the object for which you include these provisions in the Tenancy Act is attained and you must stay your hands and can go no further. This is the principle recognised in the Bengal Tenancy Act. You are hardly justified to introduce the provisions of Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, or apply the provisions applicable to a disqualified proprietor under the Court of Wards Act with respect to persons who may be as competent as any of us here, and who has full power to deal with his property subject to the rights of his tenants or of his co owner. I submit we are treading on dangerous grounds, and it is safer to follow the Bengal Tenancy Act in this respect. My hon'ble friend is very anxious to give a right of transfer to tenants who never exercised it before, but by this provision he takes away the rights of the landlords to transfer his property which he has always exercised.

The Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose said:—

Sir, these provisions have been proposed entirely for the benefit of co-owners of estates in Orissa. In fact, Sir, I may submit that the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill accepted these proposals only when he was convinced that they would be beneficial to the co-owners themselves, and that they were wanted by the people who would particularly have recourse to this law. The present law, Sir, as we find it in the Bengal Tenancy Act, has been found defective in actual working. The Privy Council has held that all the co-owners together cannot deal with their property as long as the common management lasts, but each one of them can deal with his share, or alleged share, of the estate separately. The Council ought to remember that these families in Orissa are governed by the law of Mitakshara, and when the estate or estates are taken charge of by the common manager, these shares of individual co-owners are not known or ascertained. If each individual co-owner goes on mortgaging his share or portion of his share, and if suits are brought into court to which the other co-owners and the common manager are parties, the situation gives rise to a lot of litigation which is disadvantageous to the management of the estate. Then we come to the next stage; properties are actually sold, and outsiders become purchasers of fractional shares of such estates. If originally, Sir, there were three owners of the estate taken charge of by the common manager, in three years' time there may be three hundred such purchasers who would come under the common manager as co-owners of the estate. You can easily imagine, Sir, the disadvantages of such a position, and, in order to obviate such difficulties, the first clause was proposed and accepted by the Select Committee—"nor shall they, without the sanction of the Collector by sale, mortgage, gift, or lease, assign their share of the property"

Then supposing, Sir, a co-owner is possessed of one pie in an estate which is under a common manager, he can, if he is viciously inclined, try to put an end to the common management by suing in the Civil Court for a partition of the estate, or by applying to the Collector for partition of the estate under the Estates Partition Act, although the other co-owners are quite willing to keep the common management intact. To make such conduct impossible, so that one person owning a very small share in an estate will not be at liberty to do an injury to the other co-owners who are benefiting by the common management, that clause (b) was proposed to the Select Committee and was accepted Now, these changes in the law were very carefully considered, and it was thought that if common management was at all feasible, such safeguards must be laid down so that common management might be effectual. My friend from Bihar has not had the experience of the actual difficulties of common management, and why these changes in the law are proposed, and therefore it is on theoretical grounds, Sir, that he is opposing this measure.

The Hon'ble MR. SAIYID WASI AHMAD said:—

Sir, as a similar amendment stands against my name (No. 205), I beg to support the motion that has been put forward by my friend, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur I have carefully heard my hon'ble friend the Member from Orissa, the Hon'ble Babu Janki Nath Bose, and the only ground on which he recommends this clause being passed by this Council is, that it is in the interests of the zamindars and for the good of the people of Orissa I was waiting to hear from him whether the principle to deprive the right of a person is good in itself or not. Sir, the day before yesterday we had a good many discussions, more so from my friend opposite, the Hon'ble Mr. Das, when he appealed to this Council that it would be outrageous to deprive a tenant of his right to sell his land in case he may be in need of selling it to support his poor children. I make a similar appeal to the Members of this Council on behalf of not big zamindars, but of petty zamindars who are at times really and honestly forced to sell their properties in order to save themselves, their people and their families What is the provision that you are making for them? As my friend the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur has said, it is not because a zamindar is unfit to manage his property that you slip in, but because he has the misfortune not to pull on well with one or two of his co sharers. But suppose he is, after the appointment of common manager, forced, on account of certain circumstances that may befall any person, to sell not the whole, but any portion of his property, why should you oppose that? What is the theory, therefore, why a man, after having this right proprietary right—over his own property, should be deprived of the power to deal with it in any manner he pleases, especially when he is in no way at fault Well, Sir, I do not know with what object a change of this nature has been introduced into this Bill, but it appears to me that the introduction of the clause itself is out of order, if I may be permitted to say so, because it does not contemplate to provide a law to govern the landlords and tenants. This particular section enacts for certain action to be taken in connection with two fighting zamindars Well, surely a Tenancy Act or a Tenancy Bill should not aim at a law that governs only zamindars and does not in any manner interest or affect a tenant. Have you made out a case that tenants are either directly or indirectly affected by means of this clause? If the tenants are not to suffer, then I do not see why a clause like this should be incorporated in this Bill? Then, again, look at the hardships upon some of the poor zamindars, petty zamindars, and I tell this Council from my own personal experience of Bihar—and I certainly think that cases in Orissa will not be wanting in this respect—when a dispute arises between one or two members of the same family holding joint-property, whether governed by Mitakshara law or Muhammadan law, it does not matter. What is the best way of avoiding that dispute? What does he do? The best way of avoiding that dispute is to apply for partition and be finished with so far as that particular person is concerned; and you are going to take away even the right of partition of the estate from that zamindar. I submit that absolutely no ground has been put forward, even by my hon'ble friend Babu Janaki Nath Bose, in support of such an enactment. I do not see why this right should be taken away from the zamindars if a common manager has to be appointed. Then, again, if you do not permit the partition, practically it will be like this, that the zamindar will have absolutely no hand in the management of his zamindari; he cannot really derive any benefit or any advantage of any sort from his own property; and it will be simply disastrous for the petty zamindars to have any such enactment. The argument has been advanced that the Orissa people are content; but my friend forgets that now Orissa is a part of Bihar; and we Biharees have as much interest in the welfare of Orissa as the people of Orissa themselves What will be our fate, then, apart from our interests in Bihar? Supposing rich people go to Orissa because it is part and parcel of Bihar and intend purchasing properties there, the operations of this clause will affect them seriously and very materially. I submit there is absolutely no argument in support of this clause. With these few words I support the amendment of my hon'ble friend, Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said:—

"Sir, hitherto my impression has been that the provision for the appointment of a common manager, existing either in the Bengal Tenancy Act or proposed to be enacted in the present Orissa Tenancy Bill, was for the protection of the interests of the tenants, and to safeguard the interests of the landlord and the tenants in the questions arising between landlords and tenants themselves. But it appears that these two clauses have been chiefly incorporated in this Bill for the protection of the interests of the landlords and landlords alone Now in this Tenancy Bill we would have expected only those provisions which would have safeguarded the interests of the tenants and the landlords in a certain dispute arising between landlords and tenants, but then these two clauses provide something else. Now my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose, tells us that these two provisions were accepted by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill on the application of the local zamindars. It appears that the zamindars of Orissa are very convenient people. They have got inherent rights they can sell, mortgage or lease away their properties; they can make an application for the partition of their shares. If they want that these natural and inherent rights which they possessed should be taken away from them and should be made dependent upon the mercy of the Collector, I can only say that these landlords of Orissa are fortunate. It would have been rather very good for these Orissa zamindars to make an application for the partition of their shares either in the Civil Court or in the Collectorate, and thereby all the disputes could have been avoided. But it is said that even these inherent rights they did not like to possess; they did not like to exercise those inherent and natural rights without the previous sanction of the Collector. Now I submit, Sir, even if any co-owner were to sell or mortgage or partition his share in the property, such transfers would not affect in the least the management of the estate by a common manager or by the Collector. The management would have to be continued irrespective of any transfers, any leases, any assignments, any gifts. No doubt the partition would go to affect the management by a common manager, because one share may be divided and the lands be separated, and so far as that portion of the land is concerned that may or may not be under the common manager. But then I submit that why should a restriction or limitation be imposed upon the inherent and natural rights which the zamindars of Orissa do possess? My friend the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose has put forward the case of a Mitakshara family; but then I put it in a different way, supposing in the one estate there are two Muhammadan zamindars and two Hindu zamindars of different families, and one of the Hindu zamindars dies, and there is a dispute amongst his heirs Now, why should the other three persons be deprived of their natural and inherent rights of mortgaging, selling, assigning their share or asking the Collector to partition their share. There is a dispute as regards a fraction of the sixteen-anna property. Now, so far as that fraction is concerned, the estate may be confiscated or kept under management; but why should the other co-sharers be deprived of their inherent rights? That is where I fail to see any reason, and there was no provision under the Bengal Tenancy Act, and I do not think, Sir, that it would be fair in principle to incorporate these clauses in the section, because that would be very hard on the zamindars of Orissa. Of course I have got no personal experience of Orissa. My friend, the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose, is perfectly right that the Bihar members have got no personal experience of the conditions of Orissa. Of course I am prepared to accept that, but I fail to see the reasonableness of these zamindars of Orissa making an application to cut away their rights or to put some restrictions and limitations upon their own natural and inherent rights. Assuming that some landlords of Orissa might have indiscreetly made such applications, but I am anxious to know the soundness of the principle; we are fighting on principle Instead of enacting law to define the relationship between landlord and tenant, you are enacting the provisions of Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act in this Bill. If the Orissa landlords are anxious for reasons known to them to have a curtailment of their powers and rights enact some other law for that. With these few words I beg to support the motion"

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"Sir, I beg to support this amendment, which attempts to do away with a most revolutionary clause of the Bill, and a clause which I submit is most dangerous; and I hope before this matter is finally considered, and this amendment is either accepted or rejected, this Council will consider the very serious question which this clause, or rather the addition to the clause and the amendment raised. To a lawyer such a provision as would have the effect of depriving a co-sharer of all rights of property, simply because the property has been placed under the charge of a common manager, would be opposed to all principles of jurisprudence, opposed to all well known principles of law. It is impossible to connect or to find out any connection between the interests of common management and this taking away from a co-owner of a property under common management the rudimentary elements of rights of property I find, Sir, from the fact that part of the clause is underlined, that it is one of the amendments, rather one of the improvements or additions made to the Bill, during the course of its passage through the Select Committee, and when I look to the report of the Select Committee with a view to see whether any explanation of this most extraordinary provision is suggested, I find it stated at page 5 of the report that "we have modified the provisions of clause 101, so as to strengthen the hands of the common manager and prevent mischievous interference by co-sharers with the object of management." I was startled to find, Sir, that this reason is given seriously by the Select Committee for this most revolutionary change. It is impossible to see how the taking away of the elementary rights of property from the co-sharer of a property placed under common management will make it impossible for co-sharers to mischievously interfere with the common management, or how it will strengthen the hands of the common manager. I am afraid, Sir, that when that part of the report of the Select Committee was drafted, the very drastic change made was evidently lost sight of, and the explanation given at page 5 cannot possibly refer to this most revolutionary change. I find the three hon'ble gentlemen who represented Orissa in the Select Committee have nothing to say about this most extraordinary clause, in two of the notes of dissent which were put before us to read. If this means, as has been suggested by the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose, that the zamindars of Orissa are perfectly content to keep in suspense all their proprietary rights during the indefinite period of the tenure of a joint manager—because I must say there is absolutely no limit to the length of time during which the common manager may hold his appointment—that if the zamindars of Orissa really desire that during this indefinite period all their rights of property should be kept in suspense, we may be surprised at the idea, but a sane legislature can certainly not support that idea and give effect to a clause like this

"It does not require any serious argument to point out the fallacy of this position. This Bill nowhere says it is to apply to Mitakshara families, but it would apply to all families and to all co-owners who would be found to have property within the limits of the Orissa Division, and within the limits of the Orissa Division there may be some—there are families—which are not wholly governed by the Mitakshara laws. I shall ask the Council for a moment to imagine what would be the possible effect of this clause being carried and made law? A joint manager is appointed with a view that such an appointment would avoid any inconvenience to the public or injury to private interests. The joint manager takes charge of the common estate, relieves the co-owners of the management with a view to avoid inconvenience to the public or injury to private interests, and this state of things is continued until the Collector is of opinion that this managership can be abolished without any inconvenience to the public or injury to private interests. The state of things may go on for a long time—it may go on for 40 years or 20 years, and during all this time the person who has a substantial share in the joint estate is not to deal with it as owner of that estate, but has, I suppose, to be relegated to the class of pensioners, and he gets an annual allowance or a monthly allowance, or some allowance from the common manager. During all these years his rights of ownership are suspended. He cannot sell, and, if he is about to die, he cannot make a bequest in favour of any person. He cannot, even if he has a desire to put an end to all disputes by partitioning the property and getting his share separated from the rest, be allowed to do that. Why? We have been told that this is for the benefit of the Orissa zamindars. I do not know what is the idea which Orissa zamindars have of benefiting themselves. If the Orissa zamindars think that for an indefinite period of time it would be a benefit to them to extinguish their rights and to be placed on a pension under the direction of the Collector and in the Collector's list and to be supplied by the pension periodically, they may be welcome to that, but it is an idea which we cannot endorse.

"I submit it is one of the most revolutionary measures for which there is absolutely no justification, and I hope, Sir, that the Council will adopt this amendment and reject this dangerous innovation in the Bill."

The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAIN BHANJA DEO said.—

"Sir, with regard to the Orissa zamindars, it has been discussed whether the estate ought to go under the management of the Collector or a Judge. There might be some difference of opinion on that, but I do not think, Sir, there can be any difference of opinion about omitting these two sub clauses. I do not know which zamindars of Orissa have actually approached Government to put in this clause, and I shall be obliged if I am enlightened on the subject. But certainly, Sir, these two are very mischievous clauses in the Bill, and I support the amendment. I believe there is a proposal for the partition of Bhingarpur, a large estate in Orissa The question is pending before the Judge If the amendment is not accepted, I fear the present provision will interfere with the proposal for partition."

The Hon'ble BABU BAIKUNTA NATH SEN said:—

"I need add only a few words in support of this amendment. Vested interests cannot be divested is an axiomatic principle and that would be the effect if this Council adopts the measure. There is no doubt that all the owners have power to sell, mortgage, give away, or lease away their property, and restriction on that is sought to be put by this sub-clause A (iii).

"Now, it is well known to every one that most of the zamindar class live from hand-to-mouth, and they have on occasions of extraordinary expenses to incur debt and then by economy to pay off that debt gradually. For instance, a death of a parent in the family necessitates the shradh ceremony which the son is in duty bound to perform, in the same way Hindu families on the occasions of marriages of daughters have to incur extraordinary expenses, and for these ceremonies they have to borrow money or sometimes sell away a portion of their property. Under this innovation they would be precluded from doing that and they would be put to very great inconvenience. On the other hand, the management is not in the least interfered with, if a man borrows money by mortgaging his share of the property. The management goes on as before, and the co-owner gradually pays up his debt or, if he sells his property, the purchaser will be in the same position because he stands in his shoes. The management is not interfered with, and he only gets the profits which the vendor was getting. As regards a gift, this clause has a far-reaching effect. It interferes, I beg to assert confidently, with the general testamentary powers of co-owners. A gift may be a gift inter vivos or a prospective one after one's death. If a co owner wishes to make a disposition by diverting a course of inheritance, he will be prevented from doing it. That is a right which will be affected by this provision. It has been observed by my Hon'ble friend, Mr Janaki Nath Bose, that the co-owners concerned are governed by the Mitakshara law. I am not in a position to contradict him. Assuming that there must be some cases in which zamindars have acquired properties over which they have right to control the devolution of property by testamentary disposition. What will be the effect of this new legislation? It will have a far-reaching effect of a dangerous and revolutionary character which no Council ought to countenance.

"Then, with regard to the second clause (B) 'partition.' According to the original clause 98 (inconvenience to the public), is a ground for the appointment of a common manager. In the case of a partition there will not exist such inconvenience. If there is a partition effected, each party enjoys the property separately and there will be no inconvenience to the public. It has been said by my friend that the majority of co-owners like the common manager to continue but one of them is a wicked and mischievous man and he applies for partition for his own purpose, in that case the majority can, if they like, keep the common management by consenting to the partition to the extent of the share of the party applying for partition · the other portion of the estate may remain intact. My friend to the left has drawn the attention of the Council to the reasons given in the report by the Select Committee as regards the provisions. The fallacy of the reason is apparent. The common management will not be interferred with, and this improvement, which is sought to be made by the Select Committee, goes to make a provision of a dangerous character.

"I submit, therefore, that this Council, before it gives its sanction to allow the provision to remain in the Statute book, should consider whether it should deliberately ignore the first principles of law and bring about a revolution; and whether it would interfere even with the testamentary powers."

The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"Sir, I claim that this is more than a mere 'matter of machinery,' and I hope after what has been said that it will be conceded that it is a very serious matter of principle which is involved in this case.

"We are not here to legislate for the benefit of enterprising Bihar investors who threaten that they will buy property in Orissa. I suppose Orissa will be able to take care of itself, and when the Bihar investor goes into the market he will find advantages and disadvantages counterbalance one another. But the anxiety of the Uriya who, according to my friend, Mr. Modhusudán Das, is not always able to take care of himself, is that step-motherly solicitude for its welfare was being carried further than any legislature or law court ever thought of. We are aware that in recent times, in the Punjab for example and other parts of the country, discount has been sought to be put on land alienation. That was an attempt, however, of a far narrower kind than is boldly attempted in this uncommon clause. We in this legislature thought that we were legislating for the ordinary interests which govern the relations between tenant and landlord in the ordinary spheres of life, but to attempt to divert the course of law in a way that this section seeks to do is an unheard-of thing, and if this legislature were to lend itself to it, it would be opening up enormous difficulties. Sir, the anxiety of the majority of co-owners to keep property together at the expense of inconveniencing a one-pice owner is not at all an exclusive monopoly in Orissa. In other parts of the country amiable heads of families are anxious that recalcitrant co-owners owning half-pice or a pice share of the estate should not embarrass a family by going away and seeking partition. When such an owner has come to the law court, the law court never said, 'You shall not get your partition because you are such an infinitesimal owner . . .' To minimise the evils of such situations the legislature in its wisdom has enacted various relieving measures; for example, if the majority the continuance of the management, often embarrasses the common manager and the District Judge, and they find it difficult to meet the demands of previous and subsequent creditors, specially when properties are attached and brought to sale, or a warrant of arrest is issued against one of the co-owners. The Association would therefore suggest that section 3 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, specially section 3 (3), may, with such modifications as may be deemed necessary, be introduced with advantage.

Now, Sir, I have before me a copy of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act and I will read from it to the Council. Section. 3 (3) of the said Act lays down that:—

So long as such management continues—

(a) the holder of the said immovable property and his heirs shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate their immovable property or any part therefor, or to grant valid receipts for the rents and profits arising or accruing therefrom;

(b) such property shall be exempt from attachment or sale under such protest as aforesaid, except for or in respect of the debts due, or liabilities incurred to Government, and

(c) the holder of the same property and his heirs shall be incapable of entering into any contract which may involve them or either of them in pecuniary liability.

The Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, you will see, goes very much further than our Bill. In our Bill we deal with immovable property only, but the Landholders' Association wanted to restrict the power of the co-sharers to enter into any pecuniary debt whatever.

Their opinion continues as follows:—

The Association would further beg to suggest that the common manager should also be vested with the power of preparing schemes for the settlement of debts with the approval and sanction of the Collector, as provided for in section 11 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, and that, in all important matters, such as mortgage, sale, or settlement of debts the orders of the Collector should be made appealable to the Commissioner as provided for in section 10 of that Act.

As I have said before, it has come as a great surprise to me that, in spite of these opinions having been authoritatively promulgated by the Association, they have now been repudiated by the President of the Association, if I am right in believing that the Hon'ble Raja of Kanika is the President of the Association. I do not know whether the Hon'ble Mr. Das belongs to this Association or to the Orissa Association. But I do know that the Orissa Association as well as the Orissa Landholders' Association was in favour of restricting the powers of the co-sharers further than we have done in this clause.

This is what they say.—

Therefore the Association propose to add the words "nor shall any portion of the estate or tenure be attached or sold in execution of a money-decree against one or more of the co-sharers" after the words "assign their share of the property—

In other words a co-sharer should not be allowed to incur any private debts.

I think, Sir, we have good reason to feel aggrieved that, when we have acted upon the suggestions of the Orissa Associations, the Orissa members should now turn round and complain that we have put into the Act provisions which will interfere with the exercise of their rights, provisions about which they have not been consulted.

Sir, one or two Hon'ble Members have referred to the question of testamentary rights. The Bill, I may explain, contains no prohibition against the testamentary disposition of property.

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

What about gifts?

The Hon'ble MR. McPHERSON said:—

A gift is not a bequest. There is nothing in the Bill to bar bequests.

I do not think, Sir, that I have anything further to say on the subject of this sub-clause. I have explained it sufficiently to the Council, and I think the Council will agree with me that the amendment which has now been proposed and has unexpectedly been supported by the Orissa members should be rejected.

whole of the common management, he would refuse sanction; but if, on the other hand, the exercise of the rights was proposed for a reasonable purpose, it would naturally be sanctioned. All the objections that have been taken to this clause are based on the false supposition that the Collector is an unreasonable and despotic individual who is not swayed by common sense or by common feelings of humanity.

Not only do we claim that the Collector is a reasonable individual, but we give you the safeguard that he is supervised in this work by the Commissioner. If the Collector refuses sanction in any case where he ought not to have done so, then in the ordinary course the aggrieved parties will go to the Commissioner, who will consider their objections and overrule the Collector if he has done wrong. From the beginning we have recognised that the right of partition should not ordinarily be refused to the co-sharers, because partition may obviate the dispute which causes the necessity for common management. The only reason why this provision was introduced into the section was to prevent some petty co-sharer, who had no desire to consult the good of the joint family but merely wished to cause mischief, from putting in an application for partition, just at a time when the joint estate is beginning to weather the gale to recover stability. An application for partition in respect of a one pice share, put in at an inconvenient moment, may involve the whole estate in a great deal of expense and trouble, and the object of the common management may be entirely wrecked. We have no desire by this sub-clause to prevent for all time the partition of estates which are subject to common management But it may be reasonable to delay the partition till the estate has recovered from the effects of previous mismanagement, or till it can be released under section 102 The Collector will be the best judge of that. He may refuse an application for the time being, but admit it on renewal, and it should be remembered that the parties can refer to the Commissioner, if they think that the Collector has acted unreasonably in refusing. The point I wish to emphasise is that all these precautions to secure the success of common management were put into the Bill at the urgent and repeated request of the Orissa zamindars and their local associations

Such being the intention of the sub-clause and the history of the case you will be able to judge of my surprise, when both the Hon'ble Raja of Kanika and the Hon'ble Mr. Das got up in this Council and took exception to those provisions on the ground that they had been put into the Bill without the Orissa zamindars being previously consulted. Unfortunately, neither the Hon'ble Mr. Das nor the Hon'ble Raja of Kanika have got up their case thoroughly. They have not got hold of the true facts. They have not looked at the opinions on the Bill forwarded by the Orissa Landholders' Association, of which I believe the Hon'ble Raja of Kanika has the honour to be the President. I do not know, Sir, whether the Hon'ble Mr. Das is a member of the Orissa Landholders' Association, he is more probably a member of some Orissa Raiyati Association or possibly of the Orissa Association However that may be, we have got here the opinions both of the Orissa Landholders' Association and the Orissa Association and you will see that I am correct in saying that these provisions in the Bill have been put into the Bill on the suggestion of the two Orissa Associations. The Hon'ble Mr Das began to read us a portion of the opinion of the Orissa Landholders' Association, but he did not go very far, perhaps it would have been wiser of him to glance down the page and see what the Association really said

I will read you their remarks —

The present clause 101 (3) seems to take away the power of transfer or mortgage which the common manager under section 98, clause (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, used to exercise under the control of the District Judge The withdrawal of this right would be prejudicial to the interest of the co-owners It often happens that, to protect the estate, it becomes necessary to sell a portion or to raise money by mortgage, and co-owners often do not agree among themselves in the matter This right must of course be exercised under certain restrictions, and the Association suggests that the common manager may be vested with powers conferred on managers under sections 17 and 18 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act with such modifications as may be deemed necessary

The words "otherwise assign" in this sub clause are not exhaustive and would not include the raising of money by other means, such as by notes of hand, without in any way charging the property. The liberty of co-owners of contracting any amount of debts during gentleman who represents the landlords in Orissa and Chota Nagpur, and we have just heard what he had to say on this amendment.

Orissa is backward no doubt, but that does not mean certainly that the people of Orissa are anxious to be divested of what are their lawful rights. I daresay they have been divested and robbed of their rights under the colour of legislation and sometimes under the colour of settlement duties. I am glad to hear that in this Council those other than Orissa Members have used the word "revolutionary," and that the work done in connection with this Bill has necessitated the use of that word. I have tried my best to impress on some responsible people the difference between taking away vested rights and preventing the acquisition of fresh rights legislation, but I do not see that my attempts have been successful. I find in one of the papers—paper No. 6, which relates to this Bill—a letter on page 9 addressed from the Hon'ble Mr. Janaki Nath Bose where he is described as Vice-President of the Landholders' Association. I know that the Hon'ble Member is not the Vice-President of the Landholders' Association, and he does not represent any landholders' association here.

The Hon'ble Mr. Janaki Nath Bose said :—

I can explain how that misprint came about. The Vice-President of the Landholders' Association is Mr. J. N. Bose, and as his initials and mine are the same, they have put me down as Vice-President of the Landholders' Association.

The Hon'ble Mr. Das, continuing, said :—

The present clause 103 seems to take away the power of transfer and mortgage which they exercised under the control of the District Judge. The withdrawal of this right will be prejudicial to the co-owner. I should like to know who has taken the trouble to take the views of the Orissa landlords on this subject? To me it seems to be a preposterous idea. One man has been living an extravagant life, and another man, his co-owner, may be living a thrifty life, because the extravagant man feels the necessity of having a common manager and his estate managed by a Collector, must the thrifty man, who can manage his estate well, be saddled with the pay of a common manager for the only reason that his neighbour is an extravagant man? Is he to undergo all that inconvenience because his neighbour is extravagant? This is really visiting the sin of the neighbour on another. Neither moral nor any legislative enactment will sanction this.

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said :—

This debate has sprung two surprises upon me. In the first place I think we are indebted to the Hon'ble Mr. Saiyid Wasi Ahmed for letting the cat out of the bag when he explained to us why the Bihar Members object to these new provisions which are proposed to be introduced. They are not so much concerned about the cherished rights of the Orissa proprietors, as about their own prospective rights in Orissa properties.

A still greater surprise to me, however, has been the language addressed to the house by the Hon'ble Raja of Kanika and also by the Hon'ble Mr. Das.

The position is this, Sir :—When this Bill was first prepared, the Bill contained no provision of the nature which is now objected to. The Bill was circulated to the local associations, and the local associations made various suggestions regarding this particular clause. We considered them in Select Committee, and on the whole the Government Members were reluctant to accept them. We did, however, accept them eventually in a modified form, adding the words "without the sanction of the Collector to the restraints proposed to be placed on co-sharers." We said we did not want to imposed on the co-sharer the unlimited restraint upon the exercise of his proprietary rights which the local association wished to impose upon him, but that we were willing to give the Collector a power of adjudication in the matter; that is, if the Collector thought that the exercise of his ordinary proprietary rights was proposed for mischievous ends for the purpose of wrecking the of owners desire that their property should not be partitioned by metes and bounds under certain circumstances, it can be put up for sale. Reliefs of that kind the legislature has tolerated, and I have no doubt under proper conditions will tolerate to a larger degree; but to say that because of unfortunate incidents a common manager has been appointed, a man's property should be tied up in a method of perpetuity foreign to the spirit of our law and legislation is a matter which the law courts and legislatures have always discountenanced, and to put it in its kindest way, such a thing is unheard of. We, here, by a short clause, are to introduce measures that is entirely alien to the spirit of the law of perpetuity The Bengal school was in advance of the Mitakshara school in matters of partition, and now that the Bengal and Mitakshara governed countries are to be separated, there seems to be in the air a subtle and far-reaching sort of reasoning by which the old school is to return to power where its authority is on the wane.

When the representatives of Orissa tell us that we have no experience about their internal conditions and that we have no business to speak of these matters, we feel ourselves situated somewhat like those placed between the deep sea and a well-known but rarely mentioned personage. And complaint is not lacking if there be want of seasonable interference by Bengal Members Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Modhusudan Das has complained with regard to one of the Members of the Select Committee, that he had never been near Orissa and knew nothing of the place That complaint does not apply to many of us, and certainly not to me. Many witnesses here will bear testimony that I have not only been to Orissa but know the place My ancestors came from there and I take a lively interest in all matters appertaining to that province and hope to do so for all time in spite of being separated from it, for Orissa has special and unique attractions for me. We seek to interfere when it is our duty to do so and because we all take great interest in that classic land. The Hon'ble the Raja of Kanika has said nothing to show that these fundamental changes in the law of the country with regard to ordinary landholders is required and we shall await the pronouncement of the other Orissa representative as to whether such a change is necessary for I find a difficulty in accepting in its entirety the doubtful dictum of the Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose in his latter day Vijnaneswar vein

The Hon'ble Mr. Janaki Nath Bose has referred to mischief making owners. If the sanction of the Collector is to be obtained, how is that to be a remedy against these mischievous evils if they have a real foundation in fact ? If those transfers are allowed, the transferee will have no higher rights or status than the owners themselves, and if so by reason of the mere transfer the transferee cannot harass common management. If the owners do not think it worth while to keep together their property, are they to be compelled to do so against their will or interest for nearly all time to come ? Not only for marriage expenses and shradh expenses is it that money may be required, but there may be other bona fide demands for money which can be raised only by mortgage or by sale. Transfers at critical moments ought not to be discountenanced and we have no right to say —" You are not to protect your interests by raising money because the common manager has the property " Take another case—the case of that obnoxious person in Hindu society,—a widow who cannot get enough out of her infinitesimal property to maintain herself. But for this clause she would under the legal necessity provisions of the Hindu law be able to raise money for her maintenance or for the spiritual benefit of her husband. All this will be denied to her, because by this piece of legislation she will not be able to raise money while there is a common manager. Is it possible that such a state of things is to be tolerated ?

Having regard to these things, I think the Council ought to set its face against a clause like this and ought not to accept it.

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

I find the Orissa zamindar has been made to take the position of a raiyat here. He is not here himself, and therefore people evidently imagine that everybody has a right to represent him and say what the Orissa zamindar wants and what the Orissa zamindar does not want. There is on my left the Hon'ble

The Hon'ble Mr. Das said :—

Sir, I wish to say a few words in respect of the personal remark against me.

The President said :—

What is the remark made against you ?

The Hon'ble Mr. Das said :—

I was in the Select Committee—

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said :—

I do not remember, Sir, having said anything about what was done by the Hon'ble Mr. Das on the Select Committee. I asked if he belonged to the Orissa Landholders' Association or to the Orissa Association.

The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahai Bahadur said :—

"I do not wish to make any long reply to the points advanced by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, but I beg to urge before the Council that this is a Bill, as will appear from the preamble, to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the law of landlord and tenant in the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore in the Orissa Division. How these powers which are proposed to be given to the Collector and how these provisions depriving the landlord of their rights—which are said to be in the interest of the landlords alone—should find a place in this enactment? Can you, Sir, in an enactment like this introduce all the provisions of the Court of Wards Act and the Encumbered Estates Act ? It is absurd. So long as there is something governing the relations of the landlord and the tenant, you have a right to include them in this Bill. I will not say whether the Hon'ble Member in charge has made out a case that these powers should be taken away from the co-owners and landlords—I think he has not; but I do urge that these provisions should not in any case find a place in the Bill which is now before the Council. If you think, Sir, that the powers of co-sharers should be curtailed or that some law should be passed depriving them of the right of their property or compelling them not to mortgage, sell, or preventing them to apply for partition, you ought to have a separate Bill with which the tenant will have nothing to do."

A division was then taken, with the following results :—

(Amendment 143 as amended in Council.)

The Hon'ble MR. MCPHERSON, with the permission of the President, moved that in consequence of the acceptance in Council of the modified form of amendment 143, by which sub-clause (3c) was inserted in clause 60, the following amendment should be made in line 5 of sub clause (3b):—

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Chapter XA.

213. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that Chapter XA be omitted.

214. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that Chapter XA be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, when the Revenue Settlement of Orissa was made between the years 1890 and 1900 the records prepared during that period showed that some portions of land were set apart for certain communal purposes, and in the kabuliyat executed by the zamindar it was stipulated that he should be considered responsible for reserving those lands for the communal purposes. It is not necessary for me to go into the details of the different purposes for which these lands had been set apart, but they were generally of this nature—grazing ground, cremation ground and reserve tanks—the importance and necessity of which are felt and admitted by all. In moving this amendment I should mention here, first of all, Sir, that it is not my intention to say that those lands which have been entered in the kabuliyat should be excluded, or that any portion of them be excluded. Of course there was a contract between Government and the zamindars in respect of those lands, and that contract was put down in writing in the kabuliyat. The zamindar was responsible, and under certain circumstances the Collector could take action to prevent any infraction of the terms of the kabuliyat. After the revenue settlement, Sir, came the revision settlement, the object of which I do not understand, I must confess Whether they were made to correct the records having reference to these changes which property had undergone between the date of the last record and the date when this revenue settlement record was prepared, or it was to correct certain entries which were erroneous either due to clerical mistakes or otherwise, or whether it was for both. I do not know exactly, but I suppose for the purposes of my argument, I should say that they cover both. Now, then, during this revision settlement, Sir, some of the lands over and above—that is the point to which I should draw the attention of Hon'ble Members and of Your Honour—over and above what had been entered in the kabuliyat as public grounds, if I may be pardoned for using such an expression, over and above these certain other lands were entered. The question is whether that would really come within the province of the revision settlement work. Revision settlement work, to me, ought to mean a revision of work which was necessary on account of changes in rights in property between the last record made during the revenue settlement and the date of the subsequent record made on the spot. Consequently, if the revision settlement officer undertook to make an entry in the revision settlement records, primâ facie it would show this, that at the time of the revenue settlement they were not public grounds, i.e. communal land, they were not used at the time of the revenue settlement for those purposes but must have come into such use during the interval between the revenue and the revision settlement. Now the difference between 1900 and 1906 was six years. Now, supposing during these six years there was some change, some lands which were not actually communal lands at the time of the revenue settlement were found to be used for the purposes of the community at the time of the revision settlement. The question would naturally suggest itself, was the use of such a character as to be recognized as an easement, understanding by that term all that every lawyer understands? There was an interval of six years, and even if we suppose that from the day that the revenue settlement officer left the village and the day when the revision settlement officer visited the village again this land was used for this public purpose, will that make it an easement? It may be that it had been used for communal purposes only for three weeks, only for three months, before the time when it was recorded by the revision settlement officer. Who were the persons who recorded all this? Amins. I particularly refer to the Hon'ble Member who will be on the Bench of the High Court a few days hence, and ask him whether the determination of questions of easement can be left to amins on Rs. 10 or Rs 12, and whether the Hon'ble Member will carry those ideas to the High Court Bench? Then these are the people who are entrusted with this work, and what is the result? I have actually a specific case where a chaukidar on his nightly visits used to sit down under a tree occasionally, and the amin went and said, 'This is sarbasadharan land in public possession,'—because the chaukidar used to sit there every night; where he finds one morning some cattle going into a tank for the purpose of drinking water—the cattle might have been there by trespassing—the amin goes and says, 'well, the cattle get water here, so it is sarbasadharan, used for cattle drinking.' What has been the result, Sir? The result is, I got a telegram yesterday that in one case the Secretary of the Orissa Association had to go into Court, and the Court set aside this record, but look at the expense. And I may tell you, Sir, that before I left for this place—that was only on the 18th—I saw actually notices of three thousand men of the district of Puri—printed notices—in the hands of the pleader, to be sent to the Collector for civil suits in respect of sarbasadharan entry; that is in one district. And really this is revolution; pardon me, Sir, this is really, actually, making over the right of inquiry into rights of a most complicated nature to amins on Rs. 10 and Rs. 15. I beg to inquire whether an amin understands what an easement is. He understands very well what it is to lie down at ease, to make an easy life of it, but whether he understands what easement means, that it is not a tangible thing—easement is a thing which one cannot handle; it is not like property; it is not like a table; it is not part of a property. It is only the right to use a property, which might be with another person in a certain way. Unless the property be in another person, there cannot be easement. I am willing to pay one thousand rupees if anyone will produce an amin before me who will tell me that the idea of easement means that the property must be in another person, so that you might have an easement over it. Well, Sir, what will be the social result of this? The social result will be that the zamindar will not allow any land to be used by the community. He would keep a tight hand and would say, 'Here are my rights to be invaded in a most arbitrary manner, and I shall not allow you to use anything.' And that certainly would not tend to a happy state of things. And then, Sir, are we to legislate here on speculative lines, leaving the people to determine the right law in the civil courts? Legislation, which depends upon remedial effects to be produced hereafter by civil court decisions, does not deserve the name of legislation. The people have a right to say that we want the legislature to think over the matter and to pass the law so that we might be saved the ruinous costs of litigation; but when the legislature says, 'We need not stop to enquire what the result of this will be upon the people, to what length this will prolong litigation, we will pass the Act—we have no time to look into these things. There is the 1st of April coming, and we must pass this' Therefore, I say, what is the result? Now there are three thousand men going to the civil court in one district; another telegram I received yesterday said (this was from Cuttack), 'My clients have given notice to State Secretary for making such suits' Now what is all this? Are we going to be ruined by litigation? It is said, Sir, very often, that it is this pernicious class of pleaders who multiply litigation. Well, amins do not make any bargain with pleaders.

"Then, Sir, I find this was one of the sections or clauses with reference to which I said that the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson has been ransacking all parts of India and putting on the back of the poor Uriya whatever he finds, anything likely to give a bend to his back—something oppressive, give him a bad character, tell them you are a very turbulent people you must have the worst laws, it is difficult to manage you; Bengal can be managed; Bihar can be managed; but you people cannot be managed, and so you must have laws from all parts of the world. It is only unlucky he has not imported anything from the Andamans; he brings things only from Madras? What does the Madras Act say? He does not look into the circumstances in which an Act of this nature was justifiable in Madras; he reminds me of some of my countrymen who imitate certain things because they are English, without knowing that they are not at all suited to the conditions of this country. You often find some of my countrymen cutting the tails of their horses because Englishmen in India do it; they forget that there are no flies or mosquitoes in England. The poor animal wants his tail here to drive away mosquitoes.

"In Madras, Sir, when the settlement was made Government had put aside some land as common land, and therefore when the Act was passed Government had every right, perfect right to say, 'Well, no assessment was made on these lands, they were exempted from the assessment of revenue, they were our lands, and you, zamindars, have no right to these lands, and consequently they must be set apart now for communal purposes.' But here, what is the state of things in Orissa? You have assessed every bit of land and you have included them in your kabuliyat, only exempting such portion as is particularly mentioned in the kabuliyat, and now you say you have a right to determine communal land. I do strongly object to Government saying what is communal and what is not communal. Government is perfectly justified, would be perfectly justified, in making a contract with the zamindar, asking the zamindar for such land, and if the zamindars were asked, I am sure, in 95 per cent. of the cases they would say, 'Very good, have this piece of land which has been used for communal purposes.' But that is one way of doing things, and there is the other way of assuming Government have a right to it. If you want for the community, the best thing would be for somebody, not an amin, to go and inquire which land should be set aside and for what purpose? What do the villagers say? The villagers have been using it. Your right is based on the present use of the land. There has been no quarrel, no dispute about the land, and the people are living in a happy state of things. Is it not desirable, Sir, that a particular inquiry should be made on the spot and something recorded which would cause no disturbance of the peace hereafter.

"The Madras Act says this:—

Threshing floors, cattle stands, village sites and other lands situated in any estate—I am reading section 20 of the Madras Estates Land Act—which are set apart for the common use of the villagers, shall not be assigned or used for any other purpose without the written order of the District Collector subject to it (?) which are assigned, which are set apart for common purposes.

It may be desirable—I am reading from a speech by the Hon'ble Mr. Forbes when this Act was introduced—that I should explain in a few words what is the position of Government with reference to it. The position that the Government take in this matter is that the village communal lands which were in existence at the time of the permanent settlement were not included in the permanent settlement as being lands exempt from land revenue at the time.

"Well, there lies the difference, and it is an essential difference that makes all the difference between the two cases. Then, Sir, sarbasadharan; what does that mean? That means universal common. Now we cannot have anything like that; it must be a right which must be ascertained at the time. Sarbasadharan in a village—in a village, Sir, we have all sorts of castes, and there are the forbidden castes. The Brahmins have some tanks. Well, the Brahmins and Kayasths and some other people are allowed to bathe and drink water, the same is true of a well. You describe it as sarbasadharan, and the next day a mehtar says I have a right to go there; sarbasadharan will not exclude him. Well, Sir, these are some of the instances Then, what is said when a man uses this sarbasadharan land for some other purpose. The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson, in speaking of waste lands the other day said, 'Some eleven years afterwards the zamindar wakes up one morning when the raiyat has been on the land for some years and says, "Well you must go; you are a trespasser."' Well, that is said of the somnolent zamindar, but what of the Collector? The Collector does not sleep; he is vigilant; he has agencies all throughout;—but it is said if at any time within 30 years—he sleeps for 30 years—a man uses the land, the sarbasadharan land for some other purpose, at the end of 30 years the Collector rises; he wakes up to see what an abuse has been made of the common land.

"Now we are asked that we should rely on Collectors who should sleep and find out the state of things after 30 years. Should they really be entrusted with this work? Surely they should never be entrusted with works of this nature. This is one argument. There is another side of it, too. Clause 103A reads:—

When, in the sarbasadharan portion of a record-of-rights, prepared and finally published under Chapter XI, or under any other law for the time being in force, an entry has been made that any land has been set apart for the common use of the community, or for the exercise of certain rights by the community, such land shall not, without the written order of the Collector of the district, be assigned or used for any purpose which interferes with the purpose for which it was set apart.

"A common man must evict within six months. The common man is generally a bajiaftidar, and the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson has told us what his position is Perhaps his annual income is Rs. 22-8, but he still enjoys the respectability of a zamindar, though he might come to Calcutta and work as a coolie here. This man has got some land, and this land is taken away by the Collector for public purposes. The Legislature is very kind when it allows 30 years to the Collector, and only six months to this poor man. I should be the last person to say that that reservation of communal rights should not be made, and these are recommended by all classes of people. But about these communal rights—we must inquire what rights have been enjoyed. Suppose there is a piece of land which has never been used for communal purposes. A man has his own house on it and he lives there for 30 years, and at the end of that period the Collector says you must give up the land. But how can he remove from there within six months? Suppose a land is set apart for certain purposes. Afterwards it is found that there was a tank there which was filled up. The zamindar says, 'Let us dig another tank here which we will use afterwards for some purposes.' All are agreed to that. Nobody makes any complaint. But even here the Collector has got the power to interfere. I do not say that in no instances Government interference should not be introduced. But I do say that in a matter like this, first of all an attempt should be made to inquire into the true state of things.

"We must remember, Sir, that this Council is on the eve of its life. The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson has told us that this Bill is the parting gift of Bengal to Orissa. But what is he going to make a parting gift of? A number of law suits? Will this Government undertake to pay all the costs of litigation in the new province? You legislate here without inquiring into the state of things which you have brought about during the revenue settlement operations. You say the system must be introduced in Orissa, because it exists in Bengal and in Madras. I am in a position to say that three thousand men are going to sue—I saw the notices (printed notices)—, and I am sure that by this time they are in the hands of the Collector of Puri. Think of the idea of thousands of men going into litigation. The Hon'ble Mr. Maddox has seen enough of Uriya life. I may not be a friend of the Uriyas, but he claims to be. Now, is it right, is it at all desirable, is it in the interest of society, is it in the interest of the good name of this Council that this measure should be passed at once? Why not leave this to the other Council? Are we on the eve of a revolution that a legislation of this kind should be passed at once?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Norman McLeod said:—

"May I rise to a point of order, Sir? The Hon'ble Member is bringing in irrelevant matters into his discussion."

The President said:—

"No; the Hon'ble Member is quite in order and may proceed."

The Hon'ble Mr. Das said:—

"For these reasons, Sir, I submit that this chapter should be omitted from the Bill."

Chapter XA.—I beg to move that this chapter be omitted.

The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha said:—

"I rise to support the amendment moved by my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Das.

"The whole of this chapter proceeds on the assumption of the authenticity of the sarbasaadharan portion of the record-of-rights, where the communal lands have been entered. But the fallacy of this assumption has been exposed by the Orissa Association (see page 283 of the Collection of Opinions) and referred to by Babu Raj Kissore Dass, Manager, Jaggarnath Temple, Puri, in his letter dated the 13th January, 1912. But if this chapter is to be retained at all, its provisions should be made in consonance with the landlord's kabuliyat with a view to ascertain the communal lands which the landlords by their agreements with Government have bound themselves to maintain as such in the village, instead of to the sarbasadharan portion of record-of rights where entries about communal lands have been made by mistake or neglect of officers of the Settlement Department. To compel a landlord to set apart a certain land as communal land on the basis of the erroneous entry in the record-of-rights and then to prosecute him under clause 249 of the Bill would really be unfair and unjust. It is not denied that provisions should be made for the conservation of communal lands. They are necessary for the preservation of health and cattle, but those provisions should not be based upon erroneous record, and care should be taken that in the solicitude for the conservation of these lands people's private lands are not taken on the pretext of their being communal. No doubt, by clause 103D the Collector is empowered to set aside a wrong entry in the sarbasadharan portion of the record-of-rights, but at the outset the landlord is at a disadvantage and, as experience has shown, it is difficult for him to set aside an entry once wrongly made. The provisions of the Penal Code and of the Code of Criminal Procedure are comprehensive enough to cover any encroachment on communal rights. Hence Chapter XA is not at all necessary, and the effect of the clauses comprised therein would be to put the landlords and the tenants at loggerheads, and thus there would be an incitement to the tenants to take as much land as they can from the landlord on a slight pretext. And their combination would be effective so far as evidence is concerned in a Court of Justice as against the landlord's own lands. This chapter in the long run would be injurious to the interests of the landlord."

The Hon'ble Mr. Cumming said:—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Mover of the amendment was speaking on amendment No. 214 that Chapter XA regarding communal rights should be omitted; but the first portion of his speech was directed to the amendment No 116 which referred to the agreement made by landlords at the time of the Revenue Settlement He, however, agreed that communal rights in Orissa should be preserved, and I am glad to see that the Hon'ble Member who spoke next also was of the same opinion. These views they have also given in their Minutes of Dissent. The Hon'ble Mr. Das was quite correct in stating what was intended by the expression 'communal rights.' It is intended to refer to grazing grounds, tanks for drinking purposes, cemeteries, burning grounds and other waste lands on which the community can and does exercise some common right. In explaining this to the Council, I think the Hon'ble Member did not sufficiently explain the arrangements under which these entries have been made. At the time of the original Revenue Settlement they were made by the consent of the landlord, and the entries that were subsequently made at the time of the Revisional Settlement were made under the authority of an amending section of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Mr. Taylor, whose settlement work is so well known in Orissa, has stated that there were very many lands which were omitted at the time of the original Revenue Settlement, and regarding which there was no doubt as to the propriety of their entry.

"Now, Sir, some reason should be adduced why Government should interfere in this matter at all. It was found in one case in Orissa that a grazing ground had been consecrated by a holy man, and that a curse had been announced against all encroachers This apparently was effective, because it was found that the present reserved area was practically the same as the original ground. But an arrangement of this kind cannot be made as the general arrangement for the whole of Orissa. What is everybody's business is nobody's business. It may be urged that the private parties interested should take action in a matter of this kind. But to this there is an objection. If the zamindar is receiving rent for the land upon which an encroachment has been made, it is not his interest to interfere. Or, again, in the case of raiyats it is perhaps too much to expect such a general exercise of public spirit on their part in matters in which they are not individually concerned. The present Commissioner of Orissa has advised Government that it is generally agreed that measures should be taken to preserve communal lands and that Government should take the initiative. It has been shown that in a great many cases action has been taken with no result at all. There is no procedure. Notices are issued, and after months of notices and counter-notices the Collector finds himself in the same position in which he started. For all these reasons, Sir, this chapter has been inserted in the Bill as it at present stands.

"If the Hon'ble Members who have spoken would admit the propriety of preserving these rights, they are quite correct in saying that sufficient safeguards should be provided against abuse. I submit, Sir, that safeguards have been and are being provided. I have already mentioned that at the time of the original settlement the entries were made with the consent of the landlords. I remember making such entries myself, and I can assure the Hon'ble Members that there was no case of interference or encroachment on any zamindar's rights. The orders of Mr. Maddox, the then Settlement Officer, were quite clear on the point. As regards the later proceedings, namely, those of the Revisional Settlement, as I have also explained, the entries were justified because it was legal to make in the record-of-rights an entry concerning any right of way or other easement attaching to the land. There is, therefore, no doubt as to the legality of these entries. As a matter of fact, it was found at the time of the Revision Settlement that new entries had ordinarily been made in consultation with, and with the approval of, landlords. Many of them had given their signatures, and those who were not willing to give their signatures had given their tacit approval. Indeed, a good deal of trouble has been taken to insure accuracy in this respect. No one of course will claim that absolute accuracy can be obtained when one is dealing with a large number of entries. As for the assertion that entries regarding communal lands are the work of the amins, the procedure is these entries have been inserted by responsible gazetted officers. Besides, it must be remembered that objections could be taken and suits instituted against such entries. And now, in addition to that, under a new clause 103 D, which was inserted in the Select Committee, opportunity is given to the Collector of the district to correct any incorrect entries which may be brought to his notice or to strike out any entry regarding lands which may no longer be used for the common good of the community

"It is also not the case in section 103 A that the lands are being transferred to the Collector The proprietary right still remains with the zamindars. What section 103 A really means is this That when such entries have been made, such lands shall not, without the written order of the Collector, be assigned or used for any purpose which interferes with the purpose for which it was set apart. The chapter then goes on to say that, if the lands have been occupied by any trespasser and that if the matter is brought to the notice of the Collector, he may issue a notice, and that after the issue of this notice the Collector may take action and may have the trespasser evicted. Ample provision has been made for appeal both against the action of the subordinates of the Collector and against the orders of the Collector himself. Such, then, are the provisions, and I do not think that it can be said that these err on the side of harshness. It was stated by the Hon'ble Member who spoke first that strong penal provisions have been brought in from other provinces I would remind the Hon'ble Member that the present Manager of the Jagannath Temple at Puri has stated that any measure to preserve communal land cannot be too drastic. I consider, Sir, that the provisions in this chapter are quite salutary, and that they are not excessively harsh. I would therefore call upon the Council to reject the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Maddox said :—

"The Hon'ble Mr. Das has in his speech appealed to me. I only wish I could follow his arguments more clearly. I did not gather whether he wished us to let the somnolent Uriya zamindar still sleep or whether, if we did so, he would send the pernicious pleader to the Andamans. The Hon'ble Member has doubts about the correctness of entries made by the amin on Rs. 10. I would point out that these entries were attested by responsible gazetted officers. He also objects to new easements being entered. I would point out to him that section 102 of the Bengal Tenancy Act under which the previous records were made is quite different from section 102 as revised by the Amending Act of 1907 under which the revision record was made. There is a great difference between them, as an examination of clause 105 of the present Bill will show. The Council is asked to secure this record now which is to the benefit of the Brahmins, the Karans, and the Pans, as well as the zamindars also."

The Hon'ble Mr. Das said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox says that I did not speak intelligently enough, or rather I was not intelligible enough to him. This is the misfortune we Indian members suffer from talking in a foreign tongue. All that I can say is that I have done my best always to make myself understood. The question is not who supervises these entries. Am I to understand that a responsible officer actually goes to the spot and sees, day after day, for which purpose a particular land is used and, on firsthand information thus gathered, defines the kind of easement which the public have acquired in it, or am I to understand that the amin reports a piece of land to be sarbasadharan and it is then recorded as such? The fact is that sarbasadharan record is made without defining the kind of easement. Sarbasadharan means that the property belongs to the public, and that very fact will create great confusion, for, as the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has said, what is everybody's property is nobody's property. Therefore, I say what everybody claims to be his right is really nobody's right at all. One man says that he will graze his cattle here, another says that he will use it as a park, because it is sarbasadharan We must really define the word, or it will lead to confusion. Everything will depend on the interpretation of the word given by the responsible officer in charge of the work. Something is considered as sarbasadharan, say in a portion of a zamindari. Surely one zamindar's consent is not enough Suppose there are four co-sharers in the zamindari. One of them, to spite the others, declares that a portion belonging to another co-sharer is sarbasadharan. Will that be taken as such? I mention this as something that might happen, and this will lead to confusion and disputes. I have seen I said notices to Collector ready to be delivered and printed with envelopes addressed by three thousand men. Am I to understand that these three thousand men are rushing to the ruinous expense of litigation without any grievance at all, and is not a change of that nature entitled to the consideration of the Council? Yesterday, I received a telegram from a man in which he says, 'I have got removed and altered by the civil court, and I have given notice with regard to other entries.' I have, Sir, given a typical instance. A chaukidar sits under the tree at night, sometimes in his nightly rounds, and the amin comes and says this is sarbasadharan. These people have no idea. The question is that you entrust this duty to these classes of people. I should only repeat that when you are marking what is communal lands care should be taken not to have this done by the amins. I have not the slightest objection to a man being put in jail for six months for trespass on communal land and I should be the last man to sympathise with him; but it would not be fair nor wise to record as such lands which are not really communal On these grounds, I think that this amendment should be accepted."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 103 A.

210. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the following be substituted for clause 103A, namely:—

"103 A. When in the sarbasadharan portion of a record-of-rights of a village, prepared and finally published under Chapter XI, or under any other law for the time being in force any entry has been made setting apart land with the consent of the proprietor for the common use of the community or for the exercise of certain defined rights by the community or land which the proprietor has in the course of a settlement of land revenue engaged by the terms of the kabuliyat executed by him to preserve as grazing grounds, cremation grounds and reserved tanks, such land shall be placed under the control of a panchayat appointed by the Collector for the purposes of this chapter, and it shall be the duty of such panchayat to see that the said land is not used for any purpose which interferes with the purpose for which it was set apart."

Encroachment of communal lands

He said:—

"I do not intend to go over the same grounds again. All that I wish to say is what the Royal Commission on Decentralization stated in their report. I find that the Royal Commission on Decentralization recommended that the panchayat system should be introduced. Of course, it may be found true that we have no such men of public spirit here, as the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox and the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson say. That may be true In the absence of such spirit or interest, I think it should be the duty of Government to encourage and stimulate the development of the spirit by giving them a chance. There is very little to be done in connection with this. Panchayats have got great powers, and it is in the contemplation of Government to give them much more powers and a much more responsible position In every village, I suppose, the Hon'ble Mr McPherson and the Hon'ble Mr Maddox have come across, there is a hut called bhagabatghar. It belongs to everybody. Everybody meets there in the evening, and that is a sort of the village club But what the amin generally does when he comes he would record it as sarbasadharan. But it is really a small hut built by the zamindar or some respectable person of the village, and all enjoy the privilege of meeting there in the evening. You cannot call that communal As regards the infringement of the right who can be the best judges? I suppose the panchayat or the people who live in the village. The appointment of the panchayat should be left in the hands of the Collector At any rate, if they are likely to neglect their duty, I am sure they will not sleep for 30 years during which at least six Collectors will have come and gone. In a much shorter time they would find out that there is an infringement of the right of the people The difficulty is that competent people cannot be found to undertake this duty, but the fact also is that the people do not understand what rights they have. Directly the panchayat is appointed the matter would be discussed in the village and people will understand such rights. Everybody will understand, 'I have got a right to these lands. I have a right to take water from that place,' and so on, and this will develop the right idea of easement of a community over lands and other places. At present they say 'I have been grazing cattle on this land because simply the zamindar permits it' But when this panchayat system is introduced he will understand that he has got a right to do so. Now it has been admitted, I suppose, by the reports and letters which the settlement officers have placed before the Council that with the revisional settlement the raiyat has understood his rights. So if you leave everything to the Collector, let not the initiative be left to the Collector, because the Collector will not be at the place for 30 years but the panchayats will. For this reason the initiative should be left in the hands of the panchayat, and nobody would be better able to judge of these matters than the panchayat. I may read another extract (paragraph 20, page 669 of the Decentralization Commission's report) 'It is most desirable to constitute and develop village panchayats for the administration of certain local affairs within the villages. This system must, however, be gradually and continuously worked. The headman of the village, where one is recognised, should be ex-officio chairman of the panchayat, other members should be obtained by a system of informal election by the villagers' So it is really the idea of Government, I suppose, to develop a spirit of local self-government and not only that, but to develop a sense of responsibility in the people, and this is certainly a thing which any civilized Government should be proud of I think, for these reasons, that the rights of the people should be entrusted to some people in the village who would be the best persons in whose hands the rights may be safely left."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said:—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment. I have already explained the general position, and the reason why certain powers are entrusted to the Collector. It is not a fact that the proprietary right is taken away from the zamindars. With regard to these communal lands, the proprietary rights of the zamindars still remain. The lands are simply regarded as subject to certain rights of user on the part of the community I do not think that the zamindars of Orissa would be grateful to the Hon'ble Member if this amendment were carried, whereby the control of such lands, the proprietary right of which belongs to individual zamindars, would be placed in the hands of the panchayat. Undoubtedly the panchayat, as representing the local interests and rights of the community, can and should take proper care regarding the conservation of such lands; and I am sure that a Collector would welcome any report made by a panchayat on which satisfactory action could be taken. On behalf of the zamindars, I think the Government should oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble MR DAS said :—

"Sir, I am sorry I could not follow the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming, but so far as I understand he thinks this would be taking away the rights of the zamindars. I do not know if there is anything like that in this proposal. I do not make any further remarks than this that the right which belongs to the public, whatever be the nature of that easement, should be left and entrusted to the panchayat, and what is entrusted to the panchayat would be nothing more or nothing less than what the Collector should be entrusted with under this clause. I do not mean to say that the zamindars should be deprived of the proprietary rights. However, if there is any defect in the wording of my amendment, I am quite willing to leave it in the hands of the Hon'ble Member in charge to correct it. I think the amendment ought to have been accepted

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President withdrawn :—

216. If motion No. 213 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the following proviso be added at the end of clause 103 A, namely :—

"Provided that the land mentioned as sarbasadharan land in an entry of the record-of-rights tally with those mentioned in the landlord's kabuliyat executed in favour of Government in regard to the preservation of communal rights, and that in no case shall any entry in the record-of-rights override any condition mentioned in the kabuliyat."

Clause 103 B.

217. If motion No. 214 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the following be substituted for the first paragraph of clause 103 B., namely :—

"If, on the complaint of any member, made with the consent of the majority of the members of such Panchayat, it is proved to the satisfaction of the Collector that any person occupies any land referred to in section 103 A, for any purpose which interferes with the purpose for which such land was set apart,......."

218. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S Das moved that the following be added as an explanation to clause 103 B, namely :—

"Explanation —The planting of trees and the growth of fodder on land reserved for grazing shall not be deemed to be interference with the purpose for which such land was set apart."

He said :—

"Sir, my humble labours during the last two days discussion have convinced me that I have been trying to strike blood out of a piece of genuine granite from the rocks of Scotland. I would simply ask the Hon'ble Member in charge whether he is prepared to accept my amendment"

The HON'BLE MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, in this matter the Government is prepared to accept this amendment but with the omission of the following words 'and the growth of fodder.' The amendment would then read as follows :—

"Explanation.—The planting of trees on land reserved for grazing shall not be deemed to be interference with the purpose for which such land was set apart."

If the Hon'ble Member is prepared to accept it in this form the Government is equally prepared to do so."

The HON'BLE MR. DAS said :—

"Very well, I accept this."

The motion was put in the altered form and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 103 F.

219. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "three years" be substituted for the words "six months" in line 3 of clause 103 F

220. The Hon'ble Mr M. S. Das moved that the words "one year" be substituted for the words "six months" in line 3 of clause 103 F.

He said :—

"Sir, I would ask the Hon'ble Member whether, referring to the circumstances of the case, would it not be reasonable to give one year's time to a man instead of six months, and I hope the Hon'ble Member will accept my amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment. I see no reason at all to extend the term from six months to one year."

The HON'BLE MR. DAS said:—

"I will then withdraw it."

The motion was, then by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 104.

221. If motions Nos 191 and 194 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "District Judge" be substituted for the word "Collector" in line 4 of clause 104 (2) (c).

Clause 105.

222. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "bajiaftidar tenure-holder, bajiaftidar raiyat," be substituted for the word "bajiaftidar" in line 2 of clause 105 (b).

Clause 109.

223. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das moved that the words "but the previous entry shall be admissible as evidence of the facts existing at the time such entry was made" in lines 4 to 6 of the proviso to clause 109 (3) be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, I think the previous entry would be evidence of the facts existing at the time. The idea was that each entry must be evidence till it was replaced by another."

The HON'BLE MR. KERR said :—

"Sir, the Government cannot accept this amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. DAS said :—

"I will then withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion, of which several Members had given notice, was taken into consideration. In the ordinary course, the motion would have been moved by the Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, since his name stood first in the List of Business; but at his request the President allowed the Hon'ble Mr. Das to move it, and he moved it accordingly:—

Chapter XII.

224 The Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, to move that Chapter XII be omitted.

225. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that Chapter XII be omitted.

226. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that Chapter XII be omitted.

227. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that Chapter XII be omitted

228. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that Chapter XII be omitted

229 The Hon'ble Mr M S Das to move that Chapter XII be omitted.

The HON'BLE MR. DAS said:—

'Sir, on more than one occasion from my seat in this reformed Council and in the old Council, I expressed the opinion that the principal duty of a non-official Member of this Council was to communicate to the Government the views and wishes of the people to Government, and to interpret the views of Government to the people. This is by no means an insignificant duty in a country where, by reason of difference in creed, colour, civilization and in fact everything which goes to make up a nation's life, there is a gulf between the rulers and the ruled

As regards the first part of my duty, I beg to draw the attention of Government to the fact that out of the 5 non official Members who served in the Select Committee, four have recommended the deletion of this Chapter. The only Hon'ble Member who has not written a note of dissent is a gentleman from Bihar—the Hon'ble Saiyid Zahir-ud-din. I beg permission of the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson to borrow his felicitous language in referring to this gentleman:—'It is difficult to understand what was the cause of the lively interest in the Bill taken by him. If I may be allowed to use a homely phrase, the official Members, numbering seven, all of whom except one were connected with the settlement work in Orissa, were old enough to take care of themselves.' If veteran settlement officials, supported by the Legal Remembrancer and an expert especially nominated for the occasion, stand in need of succour from a gentleman from Bihar, surely the two Orissa Members—the one an old man with one foot in the grave, and the other however worthy of the responsibilities of his seat here, the youngest member in this Council—ought to be pardoned for their gratitude for any help which is offered to them from Bihar or Bengal in an unequal fight with an illustrious galaxy of officials with the Hon'ble Mr. MacPherson, a pocket edition of a highlander, as their leader.

There was a meeting in Cuttack on the 17th instant. This was a meeting of raiyats convened by me to know their views and wishes on Chapter XII. It was attended by over three thousand raiyats, some of whom had come from villages 20 miles away. The meeting was attended by about five thousand men. The unique feature of this meeting was that about scores of raiyats spoke at that meeting. Some of them were pictures of indigence and poverty. They gave unanimous expression to their feelings and opinions. They do not want this maintenance of records The two settlements have impoverished them while in operation. The arbitrary and incorrect records made have resulted in civil suits which are still pending. Like the mosquito which sucks blood, and when it has its fill it injects a poison which produces irritation, the settlement Amin left behind him the germs of civil suits.

The raiyats in one voice said "if the Amin comes again to our village we shall leave our house and hearth and migrate to distant lands where we might have rest." I know this fact was communicated to His Honour by telegram. I invited the Commissioner and the Collector to this meeting so that they might hear what the raiyats had to say on this subject They did not attend the meeting. I believe this was not necessary, for they know that no one, except a few men whom the settlement would provide employment, recommend this maintenance of record.

The zamindars, the raiyats and the educated public do not want Chapter XII. So much for non-official opinion.

Let us turn to official opinion. The District and Sessions Judge writes: If the maintenance operations could be carried through by superior and trusted officers all would be well; it is the low paid Amin, the official who comes into the closest contact with the people, who is the source of trouble. Going from village to village, he assumes a most important position in the eyes of the villagers, and, as general arbiter of their fate, has to be placated accordingly. Complaint is made that the amins are apt to foment land disputes by pointing out small divergencies from the map which would otherwise pass unnoticed.

We are told that the raiyats would welcome the maintenance of the land records; I would rather say that at the most they are quite indifferent about the subject. The landlords are, of course, opposed to it, owing to the expense and trouble it entails. They long for a rest, and I am sure the rest would be acceptable to the raiyats.

During the Revenue and revenue settlement operations, the Amin has opened the vital parts of the poor raiyat, and he is in sore need of rest for the healing of the wound.

I asked the Government to lay on the table letter No. 2151 B., dated the 23rd November 1911, by the Commissioner of Orissa to the Board of Revenue and a letter written by the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson to the Board of Revenue on the subject of maintenance of record.

Both these letters are referred to in papers circulated to Hon'ble Members of this Council. My application was disallowed. I also asked whether Government would examine officials as witnesses under Bengal Legislative Councils Witnesses Act of 1866, with a view to ascertain their opinion on Chapter XII. This request was disallowed.

I have reasons to believe that among the Hon'ble Members (I mean official Members) of this Council there are gentlemen whose evidence on oath and the letters referred to above, if produced, would have established that Chapter XII should be deleted.

The Hon'ble Babu Janaki Nath Bose, who was appointed by nomination as an expert for the purposes of Bill, has recorded his opinion that this Chapter should be deleted. When I moved that this Council should not proceed any further with this Bill my motion was opposed on the following grounds —

"that this Council has in it a large number of Members, official and non-official, who are intimately acquainted with Orissa or have special interests in Orissa."

The question of the maintenance of records was under the consideration of Government just before the end of the last century, and there must have been a great deal of correspondence in which I have reasons to believe the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox took part.

Will the Hon'ble Member-in-charge of the Bill lay before the Council all letters and reports written by the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox on this subject? If my request meets with a fate which my application for Hon'ble Mr. Maddox's letters met, I should be justified in inferring, under the ordinary rules of the law of evidence, that the production of these documents will go against the present decision of Government to make this Chapter law. I am justified in presuming that the Hon'ble Member-in-charge of the Bill and the Hon'ble Member who was the settlement officer, are not in favour of this Chapter.

The other ground on which my motion for postponement was opposed, is that we have in this Council Hon'ble Members who have special interests in Orissa. As far as I know, the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan and the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha own estates in Orissa. Both these Hon'ble Members desire the deletion of this chapter.

I said at the outset that it was my duty to interpret to the people of Orissa the policy and views of Government. When Chapter XII is passed into law, as I fear it is the intention of Government, the Orissa public will naturally remark that Government declined to postpone the consideration because they had in the present Council official and non-official Members who had special knowledge of and special interest in Orissa; how is it then they have gone against the views of those Hon'ble Members and their own trusted officials?

Will the Government be pleased to omit this Chapter from the Act, leaving the question of maintenance to the new Government? The Bill has been so drafted that this omission will not affect the rest of the Act, except a few verbal alterations which the Council may leave to their indefatigable worthy Secretary.

Sir, the question of maintenance has been under the consideration of this Government for several years. Successive Lieutenant-Governors have taken up the question and, owing to the complex nature of the question involved in it, did not bring it before the Council. It is a serious measure, affecting the interests of millions. In its present form it is opposed by the mass. The consequences of a legislative measure which affects the masses, when persisted in against their reasonable objection, seriously affects peace and order, which should be the first aim of Government to secure. In a measure like this the responsibilities of legislation and administration should be combined in one Government. Divided responsibility is inequitable if not iniquitous. In the division of responsibility under such circumstances the responsibility of legislation becomes an utter absence of responsibility, when disastrous consequences result from the administration of the law. Is this Council prepared to run the risk? Is it necessary to do so? Is it necessary that this Council, oblivious of its past history which show anxious deliberation of measures to allay unrest in Bengal, should at the close of its life, after the Hon'ble Members have been photographed, beaqueath to a new Government the seed of unrest?

Sir, His Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor, in his anxiety to secure the well-being of his subjects ordained that Bengal, where there was unrest, should be separated from Behar and Orissa, where unrest is hitherto unknown. Are we showing due regard to the wishes of His Majesty when we make over to the new Government a legislative measure containing the germs of unrest? In the name of the millions of Orissa, where you have spent a great portion of your public life, I entreat and beseech Your Honour to postpone the enactment of Chapter XII I entreat Your Honour, in the name of those millions of poor Uriya raiyats whom Your Honour has seen during your long period of service in Orissa; I entreat Your Honour in the name of those poor people who have been actually impoverished by the itching palm of the Amin, to omit this Chapter, and not only that, but the anxiety of making over a thing of this nature to a Government which has not yet come into existence requires us to be careful before we pass this into law; in the name of history I entreat Your Honour, in the name of the anxiety which this Council spent when the unrest in Bengal was uppermost in its mind, to consider well whether a measure like this, when the responsibility of administration does not lie upon this Government, should be passed at this stage of the life of this Council. And, Sir, may I lastly appeal to Your Honour that where there is peace, where there is order, let us not make over a thing which at least show signs of unrest hereafter. So that, Sir, when this Act comes in, when this chapter is introduced, should there be any unrest, should there be any sufferings amongst the poor masses, should the operation of law increase the sufferings of the poor masses, it might not be said this Act was passed during the last days of a Government which did not have the responsibility of administration, and consequently, they did it without a proper realization of their share of the responsibility. On those grounds, Sir, I specially appeal to Hon'ble Members, whether official or non-official; when you have the interests of millions, let us stop to consider whether millions of poor men whose condition, as I said, it is not possible for us to realize—let us consider whether this measure is necessary. Specially, I wish to bring to the notice of Hon'ble Members several schemes with regard to the maintenance of records have been put forward before Government, this is one of the schemes. An experiment was being made in Orissa; the result of that experiment is not very satisfactory, at least it is not satisfactory to the raiyat. It is not the only possible scheme in order to have a maintenance of record. It may be that this matter has been pending before Government for a long time, and certainly before it takes shape, before it is finally forged on the anvil of legislation, it ought to receive more consideration, still more consideration, at the hands of Government, who will be charged with the responsibility of putting the law in practice, who will be charged with the responsibility of the administration.

The HON'BLE SIR BIJAY CHAND MAHTAB, MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said :—

"Your Honour, I had a similar motion, but I allowed Mr. Das to open the debate on the subject, not only because he would be best able to tell us the condition of Orissa, but because of his age and experience Of course, I can well understand the position of Government in this matter, that to have no maintenance at all is a thing that the Government cannot probably accept, but my argument against the retention of this Chapter I shall say in a few words and they are these:—that no explanation has yet been given as to how, during the last 27 years in Bengal, the Bengal Tenancy Act has worked without this Chapter. We have had not this maintenance Chapter in Bengal, nor in Bihar Of course now that we shall have it in Orissa, my Bihar friends will have to look out, as much as ourselves, that when the Bengal Tenancy Act is amended, we shall have this Chapter thrust on us. I do not know what my learned friend, the Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Zahiruddin, has to say to this, probably he will give his usual nod as he used to do in the Select Committee, and that of course in the other way. But what I intend to say in this connection is this:—that individual officials in Bengal are against this maintenance. The Government of India, I understand, have taken up a position regarding this maintenance in the same way that they took up in the Calcutta Improvement Trust Bill on the question of the 15 per cent., compensation, and regarding which my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas voiced so ably on behalf of the Government. Knowing that—of course I know what the fate of our amendment will be, but I still would ask the Government to consider that, when in Bengal we have not had this maintenance Chapter for so long, whether it is right to extend it to Orissa at this juncture, whether or not we could gather more opinion on this question of maintenance before pressing it forward. On these general grounds, I support the motion, although I also feel I cannot lay too much stress on this point, one cannot very well argue that you should not have maintenance at all; but at the present juncture, I do not see the necessity of having this matter pressed forward at the Government of India's request. I therefore think that the Chapter should be deleted."

The HON'BLE RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO said :—

"Sir, I beg to support this motion. Mr. Das has very ably and strongly pointed out how the provisions of this Chapter will prejudicially affect both the tenants and the landlords and how they will be harrassing to both. The scheme of periodical maintenance of records was first proposed, I believe, during the currency of the last Provincial settlement of Orissa, and it was discussed by high officials for a series of years. Most of the high officials were intimately connected with the administration of Orissa, and had intimate knowledge of the people opposed to its introduction. They also pointed out that the cost of working such a scheme will be enormous, and that neither the Government nor the people would derive any appreciable advantage, proportionate to the cost to be incurred. When at last the scheme came out of the legislative anvil in the shape of separate Chapter in this Bill, and presented before the public, all the public bodies and most of the high officials condemned it and opposed its introduction. The official who is now at the head of the administration of Orissa is we presume, from the non-production of his letter, opposed to it. The people, at a mass meeting held on the 17th, had given expression to their opinion strongly against this measure. Why then in the teeth of unanimous protest this Chapter is going to be introduced, which will not serve the interest of any party but prove harrassing to all? In the opinion of all, the people need rest after two long protracted settlement and revisional settlement proceedings. How these proceedings have affected both the landlords and the tenants, have been graphically described in the opinion submitted by the different public bodies—and I need not repeat them.

Is this measure introduced into Orissa so that it may serve as a precedent and a justification for its introduction in those parts of Bengal and Behar where records-of-right have been or will be prepared? The principle of following as precedent the legislative measures introduced in other parts of India has been adopted in the manufacture of this Bill. I should earnestly draw the attention of my colleagues of Bengal and Behar to this, and I hope they will take warning."

The HON'BLE BABU HRISHIKESH LAHA said:—

"I rise to support the amendment which has been moved by my hon'ble friend, Mr. Das. This amendment also stands in my name.

This Chapter which relates to the maintenance of a system of land records, has been inserted in the Bill as has been explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, with a view—

(a) 'To protect the rights of those who possess interests in land,
(b) to furnish information which will form the basis of assessment of land revenue,
(c) to furnish information when required for administrative purposes,
(d) to furnish up to date agricultural statistics.'

by the 'framing of special edition of record of-rights for any area, either yearly or any other interval of time' as provided in clause 148. The tendency of this clause, therefore, is to make the settlement of Orissa perennial. If the object of the maintenance of a system of land records be to maintain peace, order and harmony among the landlords and tenants, as is clear from the provision (a) mentioned above, then a more cumbrous and clumsy piece of machinery could not have been invented to crush them out altogether. The very reverse would be the case if this system were brought into operation. Peace, harmony and security of rights would have to make room for discord and disunion. It would prove a prolific source of hardship, injustice and oppression, and consequent dissatisfaction among the people. All the evil passions would be stirred up, and they would be kept up by suits and proceedings in the civil, revenue and criminal courts. The effect of the enforcement of this Chapter would be to sow the seeds of litigation broadcast over the land, open a wide door to perjury and fraud, give rise to endless corruption among the subordinate amlas and throw the agricultural population into a sea of trouble, expense and loss. The amins and the underlings of the settlement departments who would be entrusted with the measurement of lands in order to adjust contentious claims, would have a good time of it and would reap a rich harvest by fomenting dispute. Experience has shown that it is not safe to let loose such a corrupt set of men among the peaceful, contented and poor people of Orissa. They have to attend the revenue settlement at the end of every fifty years; and also the revisional settlement within that period, leaving their ordinary avocations and other duties, and at the same time to meet all expenses and undergo all sorts of trouble to secure their rights. This is enough to make a peaceful people most discontented, but to impose upon them the fresh burden of annual or periodical land records would prove simply disastrous. All the objects enumerated in the statement of Objects and Reasons can be better secured by the record-of rights themselves, if certain safeguards be provided for the giving of information to the officers employed for that purpose with regard to succession, transfer, or reclamation to be noted in the last record-of-rights, such note forming part of record. The mere idea of measurement is so much associated with trouble, expense and anxiety, that it would be extremely harrassing to the people if the system of the annual maintenance of the land records be thrust upon them. The evils of the maintenance scheme would far outweigh the benefits that are expected to result from it. To let loose the evils of settlement operation upon a poor but contended people, in order to secure information for the purpose of assessing revenue which could be gleaned from existing materials, would not, to say the least, be justifiable. The finality and authenticity of the record-of-rights would be taken away, though its completion has been brought about at an enormous expense. Under these circumstances, it would be a wise policy to let the people of Orissa alone, and save them from the infliction of a yearly or periodical land records. This Chapter, therefore, should have a quiet burial."

The HON'BLE MR. KERR said:—

"Sir, the Chapter which we are now considering is apparently regarded as the most contentious matter in the whole Bill, and I rise at this stage not to explain the views of Government or my own views on the subject of the maintenance of records generally, but mainly in the hope that I shall be able to clear up a few points, which will lessen the amount of heat and controversy which appear to have been introduced into our discussion of this question. I must confess frankly at the outset that I am not in a position to deal with the matter with perfect freedom, because many important questions in regard to the maintenance of records are still under discussion with the Government of India, the most important being the question of the periods at which maintenance, or as I should prefer to call it, periodical revision of the records, is to take place. But these questions, as I shall show, do not arise in connection with Chapter XII of this Bill. Many years must probably elapse and many experiments will have to be made, before a final decision can be come to or a final scheme of maintenance be adopted Meanwhile, we want a simple and elastic procedure which will enable us to carry on proceedings for the revision of record-of-rights with less trouble and expense than we have hitherto had to incur, and we merely ask the Council to give us such a procedure, and not to come to any decision on the various schemes which have been put forward. I should like, in the first place, to clear up a few misconceptions. I have had a good deal of experience of this so-called maintenance work myself. About 15 years ago, I carried out what was probably the first experiment in Bengal, under the guidance of my hon'ble friend who is now the Chief Secretary, and was then my Settlement Officer. About five years ago, as Director of Land Records, I started the revision settlement of Orissa. I do not propose to give the Council any of my experience in connection with Orissa, as my hon'ble friend Mr. McPherson has had more recent experience of the work than I have had, but I have taken part in most of the discussions which have been held on this subject, and my experience has been that those discussions and the work of maintenance have always been rendered unnecessarily difficult and controversial, by the fact that many of the people who were taking part in them did not really know what was meant by the word maintenance, and that those who did know what was meant by the expression, did not mean the same thing as other people who were working and discussing the subject with them. The word maintenance is in fact one of those unfortunate words which arouse all the angry passions in human nature, simply because it does not convey a clear meaning or an identical meaning to everybody, and because it arouses, in the minds of many, apprehensions for which there is no justification. The idea of a maintenance recorder conjures up an individual with a record in one hand and a pen on the other, who is always lurking about the corners of fields ready to jump out whenever any transaction take place between landlord and tenant in regard to a field, and to make the most he can out of the parties to such transactions. There is an even still more horrible expression which is sometimes used in discussions and correspondence on this subject. I mean the term continuous maintenance. That term brings up the idea of the same individual with a record in the one hand and his pen in the other, rushing round the country and trying to keep his record up-to-date from moment to moment and altering it with due formalities whenever an old man dies or a little child is born into a co-sharing family These are the sort of ideas, I think, which have given maintenance such a bad name among a large part of the agricultural population of the province, but I need hardly say that Government never intends anything of the sort by the introduction of maintenance schemes, and I will try and explain briefly, what purpose the provisions of the Chapter which we are now discussing, are intended to serve. I would point out, in the first place, that the word maintenance finds no place in the Chapter itself. What section 143 authorizes Government to do is to revise the record-of rights at such intervals as may be found necessary. Now, I would ask the Council in discussing this matter, to drop the word maintenance altogether, and to confine themselves to the question of revision. I suppose everybody will admit that records-of-rights must be prepared in this country. It has been the settled policy of Government to prepare such records for the last quarter of a century, and I do not think the wisdom and necessity of that policy will be questioned by any responsible person. At any rate it is too late to do so now in regard to Orissa, because a record-of-rights has already been prepared for the whole of Orissa. Now, it is quite obvious that once you have prepared a record-of-rights, it cannot stand good for all time. It must be revised and brought up-to-date from time to time, or else it would become absolete. It would not be referred to by the landlords and tenants or by the courts, and it would be of no use in carrying out its main purpose, which is to prevent disputes, to secure the landlords and tenants in the enjoyment of their legal rights and privileges, and to cheapen and simplify the decision of any disputes which may arise regarding these matters. For this purpose, the records must be reasonably up-to-date. It is, thus, clearly advisable that from time to time you should revise your record and bring it up-to-date. Such revision, as Hon'ble Members from Orissa are aware, has already been carried out in that province, but there is no special provision of the law enabling revision to be made, and the consequence was that we had to do the Orissa revision under the provisions of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which were used for the purpose of framing the original record. Now the main objection to this is, that Chapter X is unnecessarily cumbrous for the purpose of revising a record which is recent and not very much out-of-date. I need not worry the Council with details of the procedure which has to be followed under Chapter X, but it is sufficient to say that Chapter X provides for two publications of the record in the course of its preparation under the Chapter, which corresponds to Chapter XI of this Bill which we have just passed. Now, before the first publication of records, disputes between landlord and tenant are decided by an attestation officer, who is of the status of a Deputy Collector or a Sub-Deputy Collector. When the first publication is made another opportunity is given to the parties to raise objections and disputes; after these have again been decided with rather more elaboration than at the attestation stage, there is a second publication and after that second publication opportunities are again given to the parties to raise objections and disputes, which are tried with all the formalities of a civil suit, and appeals against the decisions in these last disputes lie to the Civil Court and to the High Court. There is, moreover, a provision in Chapter XI which allows the Local Government to recover the costs of the preparation or revision of a record-of rights made under that Chapter, from the parties Now, all this procedure is unnecessarily elaborate, as I have said, in the case of a record-of-rights which is of fairly recent date, and in a part of the country where there has been no very rapid development of cultivation or material changes in agricultural conditions since the original record was prepared. The consequence is that Government has found the need of a simpler and cheaper, and more expeditious method of revising a record-of-rights than it has hitherto possessed. This is the primary explanation of Chapter XII, for which the Hon'ble Maharajah of Burdwan asked. Hon'ble Members will see that that Chapter provides for only one publication of the revised record. After that publication, objections will be heard and the record corrected accordingly. But there will be no further publication and no further opportunities for raising disputes. The only appeal will be in the case where the Land Records officer has settled rents on the ground of alteration of area in a tenancy; but the Land Records officer will not be empowered to alter rents on any other grounds.

Now, I think that leaving aside for a moment all controversial points in connection with maintenance, the Council will agree with me that it is advisable that Government should have this cheap and simple method of revising records-of-rights in cases where a more elaborate procedure is not required. This, as I have said, is the object of this Chapter, and I would ask the Council to accept it as such, and I need hardly say that the Council, by passing this Chapter, does not in any way express approval of any particular scheme or form of maintenance or revision of the records. All it does is to give Government power to direct revision to be made in a simple and economical way, where it is satisfied that revision can be efficiently conducted on these lines. I would add, as another point which is not without importance that this Chapter XII contains no provision, as Chapter XI does, enabling Government to recover the cost of revision from the landlords and tenants concerned. It is intended that the cost of revision should be borne by Government, and that the landlords and tenants should not be required to pay, as they are in the case of an initial record-of-rights prepared under Chapter XI I should like to stop here, but from the remarks which have fallen from previous speakers, the Council would perhaps like me to give some indication of the views of Government as to the proper periods at which a record-of-right should be revised. Well, as to this I regret to say that I cannot give the Council any information, for the simple reason, as I have already explained, that Government has not yet made up its mind on the subject. We are still in correspondence with the Government of India. Various schemes of revision have been proposed, annual revision, biennial and triennial revision, quinquennial revision, revision after 15 years, revision after 20 years and revision once in a generation. At the present moment, an experiment is being made with triennial revision in Orissa, but it has not gone far enough to enable us to say whether it is likely to be feasible as a permanent arrangement. The simple fact is that we have had so little experience of this revision work so far that it is not possible for us to say what a suitable period for revision would be. I may give it as my own personal opinion, that annual revision is too expensive an undertaking and is, moreover, not required in the existing circumstance of the province, but I must warn the Council that this is only my personal opinion, and that I have no authority to speak on behalf of Government in regard to this matter. It is understood, however, that some objection has been taken to the wording of section 143 (a) as implying that Government is committed to a scheme of yearly revision. This impression is quite wrong, and in order to remove it, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, will move at the proper time the omission of these words and the substitution of a provision allowing revisions to be made at such periods as as may seem suitable to the Local Government. As I have already said Government is not committed to any particular scheme A scheme which has appealed to me and to a good many other people, is one under which an officer of the Sub-Deputy Collector class would be appointed for each thana or similar area, to look after the land records and to deal with most questions affecting the relations of landlord and tenant. He might also try rent suits or at any rate uncontested rents suits, or simple rent suits where no questions of law were involved He would, in fact, be in charge of the administration of the Tenancy Act in the particular area in his charge, and would keep the land records up to-date, so far as was necessary to enable him to carry out his work. I myself think—it is only my personal opinion—that portions of the records might have to be revised more frequently than others For instance, the records of proprietary rights might perhaps be revised every year, while the records of tenant rights might be revised every five or ten years. Again, it is extremely probable that the varying conditions in different parts of the country might make it advisable to make the revision period different in different places. For instance, in a country where cultivation was rapidly extending, it would be advisable, both in the interests of the landlord and of the tenants, to revise the record fairly frequently. In a more settled part of the country, where cultivation has reached its limits, it might be sufficient to revise the records or portions of them at longer intervals. I wish it to be clearly understood that these remarks must not be taken as indicating any settled conclusions on my own part and still less on the part of Government as to any particular scheme of revision, but I am merely mentioning different schemes to show the difficulties which surround the whole question, and which make it essential that the provisions of the law on the subject should be as elastic as possible What I ask the Council to do is to accept the view, that once land records have been prepared revision is necessary sooner or later, and that we do not at present know what periods would be suitable for revision in different parts of the country, but that we do want a revision procedure which will enable the work to be carried out as expeditiously and cheaply as is consistent with accuracy, and that we require such a procedure not less in the interests of Government than in those of the landlords and tenants. This Chapter prescribes a procedure which has been found suitable in certain experimental work which has been carried on in Orissa during the last two or three years. It is permissive and elastic but not unduly elastic, and I would ask the Council to accept it as fulfilling the objects which I have described above, and which I think will be admitted by all reasonable people to be very necessary objects, although there may be room for difference of opinion as to the precise procedure to be followed and the precise periods at which revision should be undertaken. But such questions do not arise now, and there is no need to decide them now. As I have already explained, Government can direct a revision of the records as often as it likes, under Chapter XI of the Bill. All that Government now asks the Council to do is to provide a simpler procedure than that of Chapter XI, which can be put in force, if and when required, so as to give the minimum of trouble to landlords and tenants, when revision operations are undertaken for their benefit."

The HON'BLE MR. MCPHERSON said.—

"Sir, my hon'ble friend, Mr. Kerr, has undertaken the task of expounding the policy of Government in the matter of maintenance, of explaining the objects and advantages of Chapter XII of the Bill, and of conducting its main defence I intervene in the debate in order to tell Members what has been my practical experience of the working of the maintenance scheme. I have been in supervisional charge of the experimental operations in Orissa for the last three years. I have seen the recorders working in the villages amongst the raiyats, I have checked their work in the fields, I have watched the attestation of the recorded changes by the maintenance staff who are gazetted officers of the Subordinate Executive Service, and I have discussed the value of the work both with landlords and tenants, not in the Council Chamber or Committee room, but under the open sky I can assure the Council as a result of my personal observation that, in actual working practice, this business of keeping the land records up-to-date is not regarded with the unmitigated aversion and horror that have been displayed towards it in Council. The contrast between the theoretical dread of an innovation, and the experience of it in actual practice reminds me of the universal horror which, not so long ago, was felt in India towards the Kala-pani. Now, that long sea voyages have become common experiences in the lives of Indian gentlemen, the Kala-pani has lost its terrors.

Let me, Sir, relate my personal experiences of experimental maintenance. When I have wandered over the fields with the recorder and the raiyats, I have found the latter highly interested in the work I have asked them whether they like it or not and they have said 'we do like it, because we get all our transfers and successions recorded at once, and there can be no dispute.' I have asked —'Does it not worry you to come out to the fields and follow the recorder about?' They have replied 'It is not much trouble, as it only takes 2 or 3 days, but we think it would be enough if he came round every second year or every third year, as there is not much to record every year.' I have asked them, apart from the recorder, if the recorder takes money from them and they have almost invariably replied 'No,' sometimes, no doubt, with a twinkle of the eye, which indicated that the recorder was not above the usual custom of this country but not a bad fellow for all that. Sir, we have heard much from the Hon'ble Mr. Das about the misdeeds of settlement underlings, and, though I cannot vouch for the absolute integrity of the field staff, I think that they have been painted blacker than they really are If you call together a meeting of raiyats and invite them to recite their grievances, promising them at the same time not cakes and ale and their travelling expenses, you will find no difficulty in collecting a crowd and getting together many a piteous tale of woe. Before each day is over many disappointed litigants leave a Settlement Camp. If the Hon'ble Member had only issued his invitations sooner and spread his net further, he might have had a crowd of forty thousand instead of only four. I ask the Council to attach no importance to the argument against maintenance based upon this so called mass meeting of raiyats. I do not know if the Hon'ble Member has ever watched maintenance work in the field or the process of attestation at a maintenance camp I know from his published writings that he has paid a visit in the dead of night, to a revision settlement Camp and has painted a picture of distress which excites my wonder. My experience, Sir, has been different. I have paid hundreds of visits to attestation camps at all hours of the day and night, and I have never found anything but cheerful and interested crowds in attendance. The hardship of night attendance is to the officer and his staff rather than to the people. The officer must work about nine hours a day to get through his programme He is ready to begin at 8 or 9 A.M., but most Orissa raiyats prefer to attend after midday, and to go on till the hour of their midnight meal approaches.

I have not confined my observation of the maintenance experiment to the raiyats but have also consulted landlords I have discussed the work in a friendly informal way with some of the Balasore zamindars who have had the experiment going on in their estates for nearly three years now Though on the whole, most of them would prefer to be without it, they are not keenly opposed to it. A much respected Zamindar of Balasore, Raja Baikuntha Nath Dey, has told me that he appreciates its many advantages, but would prefer to have some sort of compulsory or State-aided registration by the zamindars themselves Another influential Zamindar, Babu Radha Charan Das, who was hostile when the revision settlement started, pronounced in favour of maintenance when I asked his opinion in September last. Let not then the Council imagine that a wholly new and terrible thing is being sprung upon the people of Orissa.

It is not reasonable to suppose that the Supreme Government should select Orissa as the jumping-off ground for an absolute leap into the dark What is proposed for Orissa has been in vogue for many generations in other parts of India. It was indeed the usual and universal practice in India, long before the days of British rule, to employ a village recorder to keep the land records and accounts up-to-date. The practice has continued uninterrupted in many parts of India. The disuse into which the practice has fallen in Bengal may be ascribed, without hesitation, to the introduction there of the permanent settlement The subject began at once to receive less attention from the ruling power, because there was no revenue involved To its neglect may be ascribed much of the dispute, and difficulty and litigation that have arisen in the agrarian economy of Bengal We have gone some way by our surveys and settlements to make up for the past neglect Government wants, by this measure, to take power to go one step further. It is no innovation that is proposed, but a return to the old order of things, a return to the arrangement that now obtains in all the temporarily-settled provinces of India It was in the highest degree natural that Government should select Orissa for the experiment, as Orissa is a temporarily-settled area. Let any member of this Council go to Sambalpur to-morrow and he will see maintenance actually at work with the cheerful and interested acquiescence of landlords and headmen and tenants. In Orissa the experiment could not be tried, till Government had first brought the ten-year old records up-to date. Government has spent 12 lakhs of rupees during the last five years, in bringing the records of Orissa up to date, in order to pave the way for maintenance. All this has been done with the, sanction of the Secretary of State, who has closely followed the work. I would therefore, entreat Hon'ble Members of this Council to pause before they vote for the exclusion of this Chapter which is purely permissive, and will not be set in motion except at those intervals of time which appear to the Supreme Government and the Local Government to be suitable, on a joint consideration of the results of the experimental work now in progress. Many important factors have to be taken into account before any decision is come to. There is first the question of finance, which alone makes it highly improbable that the periodical revision of records can be conducted at intervals of less than three years. There is the question of its effect on the district administration, the relief on the one hand that it may give to the judicial and revenue courts, and the closeness of touch that it may induce between the officers of administration and the people, while on the other hand there is the burden of work that it may throw on the district officer Even more important is the effect it may have on the people. We have to consider what they feel about it, when they know what it really means, whether it causes them undue harrassment and what are the compensating advantages. You, the non-official Members of this Council, have told Government very plainly what you think about the maintenance scheme. You have given us your opinions in your notes of dissent from the report of the Select Committee, and in your speeches in this Council. The local associations have given us their opinions, all of which are adverse, and the Hon'ble Mr. Das has organized, for our benefit, a mass meeting of raiyats who have given us their opinions. All these opinions will be duly considered by the Local Government and the Supreme Government. Would it not be wise to stop short here? Would it not be in the interest of your own views to say—" These are our opinions. The Chapter, however, is permissive. We know that Government will take our opinions into account in weighing all the arguments for and against maintenance, and we trust Government not to enforce the Chapter unless there are other considerations which outweigh those advanced by us, and in any case not to enforce it except at reasonable intervals of time" This attitude, in my opinion, would serve your purpose better than an absolute rejection of the Chapter, which might be interpreted by the Supreme Government as pure obstructiveness.

With these words, Sir, I support the Hon'ble Member on my left, in opposing this amendment and I would counsel the Hon'ble Mover to withdraw it.

The HON'BLE MR. DAS said :—

"Sir, I will begin where the Hon'ble Member in charge ended. I am really surprised to know that giving expressions of opinion on a matter like this should be considered as mere obstructiveness on the part of the Government. And it is on this ground that I am asked to withdraw my motion on this Chapter. All that the Hon'ble Member has told us is that at the present time the Government is in an indecisive state of mind; it does not know what agency is to be employed in carrying out the experiment It does not know what the result of that experiment will be in Orissa. The whole thing is in a nebulous state, if I may say so There is also no knowing what the decision of the Government of India will be as to the details And yet when it comes to my amendment, I am asked to withdraw my amendment. Why, if anybody is to withdraw, it is the Government. The officials do not know what they are going to do. They do not know what agency they are going to employ. They do not know what would be the result of the experiment They do not know at what intervals the operations are to be introduced. And yet we are told that before this Council breaks this Bill must be passed into law. What does it mean?—Pass a thing which is purely abstract, which may not be fit for anything, make it over to another Government and let that Government work it as it likes. That, Sir, really is the position which can be gathered from the statement of the Hon'ble Member in charge.

He has told us that he has visited places where he found something "super"—I do not remember the exact wording—but it was something "super." Well, Sir, I do not know whether there is anything "super" in the ministerial staff of the Revenue Survey Office. He has also told us that he found the raiyat contented. I do not of course say that everybody is discontented. The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson also noticed the twinkle in the raiyats eye about the recorder's attempt to take money. I know a great deal more of the meaning of that twinkle than he does. It meant plainly 'what do you see, can you see anything'?

I do not know what the Hon'ble Member in charge means by his reference to the mass meeting. He asks the Council not to take any notice of such meetings. They did not have hot cakes at the meeting which was recently held, but I certainly wrote, when convening the meeting, that those who were very poor and could not afford to pay their railway fare and have to come from a long distance would be provided with the cost of their journey. And I think, I was quite right It would have been quite unreasonable to expect raiyats to come from a long distance in three days notice. It is all very well for Government officials to order the raiyat to come and run about without the least thought as to their convenience But I thought it my duty to provide them with their costs. Sir, I do not like to take up the time of the Council any more. The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr has told us that the procedure adopted in this Chapter is not as long as it is in the other Chapter, and this will be a very short thing, a very short operation. Now, I say, the danger lies in the very shortness of it. It gives greater opportunity to the man to make incorrect entries, and their incorrect entries go undetected. It is not right to make short work of a thing when other people's rights are concerned. We have got a graphic description from the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr of the man with an ink pot in one hand and a pen in the other going about the village and making entries. If we have a man of due sense of responsibility it would be all right. It is the position and the character of the man and his sense of responsibility that we want. Government thinks that such men can be had in plenty, as if it is the easiest things in the world to get a man of character, with a low pay. How much does Government propose to pay for the sense of responsibility of these men? As I have said, and as Mr. Adami has also said, it is the man of character and position that is wanted. If the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson would accompany me to a village—it may be any village in the district of Cuttack—and take the people unawares as it were, without giving any notice, I can shew him a state of things which is anything, but desirable. It would not require hot cakes to gather about 10 or 20 thousand Uriya men in Calcutta—in the grounds of Belvedere, if he likes. And I will ask Mr. McPherson to question them as to what would be their condition under this Chapter. Are we to encourage amins and touts. It is the ignorant raiyat who will suffer. I may not be a friend of the Uriyas, but I will ask Mr McPherson to go and ask the poor Uriya raiyat whether he likes these provisions. He may have some idea that these provisions are something very different from the revision settlement, but it is the same revenue settlement But he must be told plainly what it is, it would be no use preying on his credulity begotten of ignorance. If I withdraw my amendment, I would not be the friend of Orissa as I consider myself to be."

The motion was then put and lost

'The Council was then adjourned to Wednesday, the 27th instant at 11 A.M.'

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 143.

*230. If motion No 224 be not carried, the Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, to move that for the words "either yearly or at any other intervals of time" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 143 (1) (a), the following be substituted, namely :—

"twenty years after the final publication of the record-of-rights in that area, or, on every subsequent occasion, at an interval of 15 years"

231. The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR moved that the words "at reasonable intervals of time not less than at an interval of five years" be substituted for the words "either yearly or at any other intervals of time" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 143 (1) (a).

He said:—

"Sir, I think that the proposal which I make is a reasonable one. I submit, Sir, that to give power to correct the records yearly is ridiculous, both landlords and tenants will have no peace If it should be undertaken at all, it should be undertaken at intervals of five years. I therefore beg to move this amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"I have already given reasons why it is necessary to have fairly elastic provisions in this chapter, particularly in regard to the periods at which revision of these land records is desirable. As I said on Saturday we are at present without sufficient experience of revision operations to lay down what would be a suitable period at which they should be carried out, and I have also explained that it is highly probable that that period will differ in different parts of the country, where different conditions prevail, and also possibly regarding different portions of the record. The record of proprietary rights must be kept fairly well up to date, whereas the record of tenants' interests can be left for a longer time without revision. I also said that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill would move an amendment to this clause which would leave it open to Government to authorise the revision of records at such periods as may be deemed suitable hereafter. This provision of the Bill must be fairly elastic and it would be unwise to tie ourselves down by the law to any specific period of time I therefore oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

232. If motion No 227 be not carried, the Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud din to move that the words "at an interval of fifteen years or more" be substituted for the words "either yearly or at any other intervals of time" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 143 (1) (a).

233. If motion No. 228 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "at intervals of at least fifteen years" be substituted for the words "either yearly or at any other intervals of time" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 143 (1) (a).

* This and the following numbers refer to the order of the amendments in Annexure A to the List of Business

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said.—

"With your permission, Sir, I desire to move a small amendment to sub-clause (i) (a) of clause 143. I propose that for the words "either, yearly, or at any other intervals of time" the following words be substituted—

'at such intervals of time as it may deem suitable.'

"The insertion of 'yearly' as an alternative is held to be objectionable by some Hon'ble Members who are willing that the chapter should be applied at such intervals of time as may appear to Government to be suitable on a consideration of the results of the experimental work, but do not wish to express any sort of approval of the system of annual maintenance. I appreciate the force of this view, and can see no objection, to the proposed alteration which I recommend for the Council's acceptance."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

Clause 144.

234. If motion No. 229 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "be liable to pay a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, for further disobedience, shall be subject to the penalties provided by Chapter X of the Indian Penal Code" be substituted for the words "be subject to the penalties provided by Chapter X of the Indian Penal Code" in lines 3 and 4 of clause 144 (3).

Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Sir, may I be permitted to modify the above amendment? At the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, I propose that after the words 'for disobedience thereof' in line 3 of clause 144(3), the following words be inserted, viz., 'be punishable with fine which may extend to Rs. 50 and shall in the event of subsequent disobedience,' etc."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"I accept the amendment in this modified form."

The amendment was put in the altered form and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 148.

235. If motion No. 228 be not carried, the Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "or was commenced more than two years before the date of the application, and the landlord has not, during that period, instituted a suit to eject the tenant from the land so reclaimed, or unless such suit has been dismissed" in lines 3 to 8 of proviso (ii) of clause 148 (1) be omitted.

The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha being absent, the following amendments, standing in his name were held to be withdrawn:—

236. If motion No. 225 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the word "twelve" be substituted for the word "two" in line 4 of proviso (ii) of clause 148 (1.)

237. If motion No. 226 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the word "six" be substituted for the word "two" in line 4 of proviso (ii) of clause 148 (1).

238. If motions Nos. 225 and 236 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the word "six" be substituted for the word "two" in line 4 of proviso (ii) of clause 148 (1).

239. The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO moved that the word "four" be substituted for the word "two" in line 4 of proviso (ii) of clause 148 (1).

He said :—

"Two years is too short a time to ascertain and detect unauthorised cultivation and institute suit for ejectment The landlord gets 12 years under the ordinary law. Why should this be curtailed ? The retention of this short period will encourage clandestine cultivation"

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"I am unable to accept this amendment for the reasons which I fully explained when dealing with clause 54A. The ordinary period of limitation prescribed in clause 54A is four years That applies to areas in which no maintenance of records is carried out. Where records are regularly maintained and maps are revised at intervals of three or five years, the landlord can have no practical difficulty in detecting even the smallest encroachments on waste land, if he takes a little trouble. If he wants to sue for the ejectment of persons who are already his tenants from additional lands reclaimed by them, he may reasonably be expected to take action within two years. The provisions of the clause, it will be borne in mind, apply only to persons who are already tenants. When a limit of two years has been prescribed for the jungly tracts of Chota Nagpur, two years is surely not too short for densely-populated and highly cultivated Orissa, with a system of maintenance or periodical revision in force.

Permanently settled areas are exempted from the operation of this special provision, and are left to the operation of clause 54A, because they were not concerned with the bargain that was struck with temporarily-settled proprietors and obtained no benefit from the private land concession."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 151.

240. If motion No. 229 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "but the previous entry shall be admissible as evidence of the facts existing at the time such entry was made" in lines 4, 5 and 6 of the proviso to clause 151 (2) be omitted.

Clause 153.

241. The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO moved that the words "relating to a rent settled under this Chapter" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 153 be omitted.

He said.—

"Sir, appeal is confined only to an order relating to settlement of rent. Other disputes affecting right and title may arise and no provision for appeal has been made against orders deciding such disputes. In Chapter XI there is provision for appeals and civil suits. In the absence of any distinct reference to Chapter XI, this Chapter taken by itself will be construed to mean a complete codification so far as proceedings relating to maintenance of records are concerned. This will seriously prejudice the parties who will have no remedy against orders deciding disputes relating to title."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said:—

"The effect of the Hon'ble Member's amendment would be to make all the orders passed by an officer revising land records appealable to higher authorities. This would destroy one of the main objects of the Chapter XII which is to make the procedure in revising land records as simple as is consistent with efficiency. We are providing an appeal against an order settling a rent as that is an important matter, but as regards the rest of the operations under this chapter they merely result in a record in which the entries are presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved. The real appeal against them will come when those entries come before the Court, or are taken advantage of in some other way. In the case of 90 per cent. or more of the entries they will be left as they stand, and there is no object in encouraging people to appeal about them. In the case of the remaining 10 per cent. if there is any dispute, the matter may very well be left over until the necessity arises to come before a proper Court. To allow an appeal would unnecessarily complicate the procedure and lengthen the operations and add to the expense and trouble caused to the agricultural community. I must therefore oppose this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 162.

242. The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO moved that the word "nij chas" be inserted after the word "nij-jote" in clause 162 wherever it occurs.

He said:—

"Sir. I beg to propose that the word nij-chas be added after the word nij-jote. Nij-chas is used in many permanently-settled estates to refer to proprietor's private lands in the same sense as nij-jote or khamar. Unhappily the distinction between nij jote and nij chas was made in the temporarily-settled area at the time of the last Revenue Settlement. Clause 163(a) in the Bill provides that in the temporarily-settled area nij chas will be included in the category of proprietor's private lands, but no such provision has been made for the permanently-settled area. There has so far been no distinction between nij-jote and nij-chas lands in the permanently-settled area, though my opinion is that such distinction should not have been made even in temporarily-settled areas, the local meaning attached to nij-chas lands should have been enough to record them as proprietor's private lands.

If the word nij-chas is added here, it will not affect the temporarily-settled area. Sub-clause (1) of clause 163(a) limits the nij-chas area to become proprietor's private land and sub-clause (2) restricts that no further nij chas areas shall be held as proprietor's private land.

As to the permanently-settled area, if the word nij-chas be not included in this clause, large areas which are actually proprietor's private lands will be excluded just because they are called nij chas In many of the permanently-settled areas no record of rights has been prepared and so there has been no record of nij-chas lands in accordance with the principles applied in the last settlement. Nij-chas lands in the permanently settled areas need not be the same as the nij-chas lands of the temporarily-settled area. The latter is recorded after inquiry by the Settlement Officer, but the former in some cases is only a name for a proprietor's private lands."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"Sir, it will save the time of the Council if I intervene early in the debate on this amendment and explain to Hon'ble Members what is the effect of the proposals that have been incorporated in the Bill on the subject of proprietors' private lands and what the intentions of Government are. I have already explained the position with considerable fullness in my introductory speech.

Cultivated lands in the direct possession of proprietors may be of two kinds. They may either be the old demesne lands which were set apart for the maintenance of proprietors and are referred to in the old Regulations as nankar, khamar, nij-jote, —see for example sections 37-40 of Regulation 8 of 1793,—together with such lands as have come by local usage to be regarded as belonging to the same category, or they may be lands which have belonged to what may be called the raiyati stock and have come into the hands of proprietors by purchase, abandonment and the like. Varying names are used in different localities to indicate the two classes of lands. In the Bihar settlement, the two classes are distinguished by using the word zirat for the privileged class and the words bakasht malik for the non privileged class In Orissa the words chosen at last settlement to mark the distinction were nij-jote and nij chas It was perhaps a little unfortunate to use the word nij-chas because it is so like in etymology to nij-jote, that people confuse the two in ordinary conversation It might have been better to have used the work hal-chas which was at one time thought of as an alternative. The point however is not of importance. So far as the result is concerned, the classes might equally well have been distinguished by the labels 'X' and 'Y', 'X' signifying privileged land and 'Y' non privileged The important thing was the distinction in significance The true nij jote is privileged in this way that it may be let out to village raiyats for a term of years or from year to year at any rent the parties may agree upon, without any danger of the raiyat acquiring occupancy rights. Subject to contract, the proprietor can take it back at any time, and can vary the rent or the cultivator as he pleases. The non privileged land is on the same footing as the privileged, so long as it remains in the proprietor's own cultivation, but if he lets it out to village raiyats, he loses his absolute control over it. He may let it out to begin with at any cash rent he chooses, but after the raiyat has acquired occupancy rights, the rent cannot be varied except in accordance with the Act, and if the initial rent is a produce-rent, the raiyat may apply for its commutation under section 40 of the Act It thus becomes an object with the proprietor to keep as much land as he possibly can in the privileged category. He has more freedom of action with regard to it. He can let it all out at a rack-rent and need not be hampered by the inconvenient restrictions of the tenancy laws It is for this reason that in Bihar, proprietors claim all their land, regardless of its history, as zirat or khudkasht It is for this reason that the champions of the Orissa zamindars claim that there is no distinction between nij-jote and nij-chas, and that the Settlement Department made a great mistake in drawing such a distinction 15 years ago. Sir, the Settlement Department made no mistake in this matter at the last settlement, and this is not a case in which ex-Settlement Officers have come forward with palliative measures to redeem or conceal the effects of previous errors. When Act X of 1859 was in force throughout the Province, Orissa and Bengal were on the same footing as regards private lands. The words used in section 6 of the Act—"But this rule does not apply to khamar, nij jote or sir land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure and let by him on lease for a term of years or year by year"—applied equally to both. Before the last revenue settlement of Orissa took place, the Bengal Tenancy Act had been passed. It sought to put an end to the controversy about khamar lands by a compromise which was favourable to the landlord. It said—we will give you not only the old demesne lands and lands regarded as such by local usage, but also lands now in your possession which you have given proof of your intention to cultivate yourselves, by keeping them in your continuous cultivating possession for more than 12 years The new Act had not been extended to Orissa when the settlement came on, but it was thought desirable to work in the spirit of its provisions in making the distiction between the privileged and the non privileged area.

Working on this basis the officers of settlement recorded about 40,000 acres as the nij-jote of proprietors and proprietary-tenureholders, and about 130,000 acres as their nij-chas or non-privileged. The whole subject is discussed at page 50i of Mr. Maddox's Settlement Report, and I will here point out that I made a mistake in my speech of 9th January when I said that under the influence of the Bengal Tenancy Act all the lands in possession of proprietary tenureholders were classed as nij chas. What was in my mind was that as the law stands, that is, since it was held by the High Court that the extension of the settled raiyat sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act to Orissa had repealed section 6 of Act X of 1859, all the private lands of proprietary tenureholders are legally devoid of the special privilege that attaches to proprietor's private lands. Both at the revenue settlement and at the revision settlement, the old nij-jote lands of sub-proprietors have been scrupulously recorded as such, and the passing of this Bill will merely confer on them the protection which it is desirable to accord them. That the sub-proprietors have lost nothing in actual practice may be gathered from the fact that against 4,860 acres of recorded nij-jote of sub-proprietors in Balasore and Cuttack, there is now a recorded nij jote area of 4,830 acres.

Against the 40,000 acres of nij-jote and 130,000 acres of nij-chas recorded at last settlement, we have now 10 years later in the revision settlement recorded 38,500 acres of nij jote and 139,000 acres of nij chas. That is, the proprietary classes retain 96 per cent of their privileged area and have increased their non-privileged lands by 7 per cent., the whole amounting to about one eleventh of the total cultivated area of Orissa During the revision settlement there was naturally a good deal of attention directed towards the non-privileged area. It was open to any raiyat to whom in had been let out for cultivation to claim it as his raiyati land and it says much either for the affection which subsists between landlord and tenant in Orissa or for the power which the former has over the latter that compartively few claims were made. We have a shrewd suspicion that the great bulk of the privileged and non-privileged area alike is cultivated through tenants holding on produce-rents. When the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox made his enquiries in 1909, a good deal of representation was made to him regarding the nij chas lands. It was urged that the temporarily-settled proprietors and sub-proprietors of Orissa were comparatively poor men, that they were increasing in numbers, that they depended on their nij-jote and nij-chas lands for their subsistence and for the punctual discharge of their revenue demands, and that they should be treated more generously in this matter than the permanently-settled proprietors of Bengal. Government had already been considering the desirability of protecting the old nij-jote lands of sub-proprietors, which, as the law stood, were not protected, and when in response to these local representations, Mr. Maddox came forward with a proposal that the privileges of nij-jote land should be attached to all that portion of the recorded nij chas of the last revenue settlement which is still found to be in the cultivating possession of proprietors and sub-proprietors, Government considered the proposal sympathetically and recommended it for the acceptance of the Supreme Government. The proposal has been accepted and embodied in the Bill, and as I have already explained in my opening speech, it will mean the transfer of about one lakh of acres from the non-privileged to the privileged area. The proposal was received enthusiastically, as one can well understand, by the proprietary body in Orissa which had never hoped for this good fortune. Its result will be that the proportion of privileged land will be higher in Orissa than in any other part of Bengal.

When the Bill was circulated to the Local Associations, they, of course, approved of the proposal, but, note the strangeness of human nature, having got far more than they could ever have hoped for, they began to ask for more. And so we have had proposals that the concession should be extended to all classes of tenureholders, to baziaftidars and bahal tankidars and kharida jamabandidars and so forth. We have been asked to apply it to all the recorded nij-chas of the last revenue settlement, regardless of the fact that raiyati rights may have accrued in portions of that area, in other words to confiscate rights that have grown up under the law and to ignore the originally proposed test of continuous cultivating possession. We have even been asked to insult ourselves by making a solemn admission in this legislative measure that our former nij-chas record was all a huge mistake. This is Government's return for offering to the Orissa proprietors a concession that is immensely greater than has been allowed to proprietors in any other part of Bengal. The return is such as almost to make Government repent that the concession was ever proposed.

With these words I would ask the Hon'ble Mover and other Hon'ble Members who propose to modify clauses 162 and 163A to reconsider their position and withdraw their amendments. None of them with one exception are acceptable to Government, which has already offered the maximum possible and does not mean to budge from the position that has been taken up in the clauses as they came from Select Committee.

"The exception to which I refer is amendment No. 250, which will be accepted by Government in a modified form. The object of this amendment is to secure that the results of the concession will not be dissipated by anything that may have occurred since the final publication of the record. Whatever transactions may have occurred will be considered as having reference to privileged land. It is right that this should be allowed, because the concession has been before the public of Orissa for at least three years. As a matter of fact, it will not have any very material effect, because the proprietors will take care that no claims are made by under tenants in respect of lands entitled by the new provision to be nij-jote

"As regards this particular amendment now under consideration, I would only remark that I cannot accept the proposed addition of nij-chas to the enumeration of the names by which privileged lands in the permanently-settled areas are known. It would be dangerous to make the addition because the word nij chas has been earmarked in Orissa to denote the unprivileged area. The Hon'ble Mover need be under no apprehension that any land which is by origin or custom entitled to be placed in the category of proprietor's private land will be excluded from that category, because the local people may be in the habit of calling it nij-chas. The framers of the record will look to the history of the land and not to its name only."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

243. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words and figures "26th July, 1911" be substituted for the words and figures "21st August, 1906" in lines 4 and 5 of clause 162 (2).

244. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that clause 162 (3) be omitted.

Clause 163A.

245. The Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, to move, that, for clause 163A., the original clause 163 of the Bill, as introduced in Council, be substituted.

246. If motion No. 245 be not carried, the Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, to move that the words "In any area" be substituted for the words "In temporararily-settled estates" in line 1 of clause 163A (1).

247. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "nij-jote" be inserted before the word "land" in line 1 of clause 163A (1) (b).

248. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S Das to move that the words "by mistake" be inserted after the word "recorded" in line 1 of clause 163A (1) (b).

249. If motion No. 248 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "by mistake" be inserted after the word "recorded" in line 5 of clause 163A (1) (b).

250 The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "and" be omitted from the end of clause 163A (1) (a) and inserted at the end of clause 163 (1) (b), and that the following be added as sub-clause (c), namely:—

"(c) this sub-section shall be deemed to have been in force at the time when the records-of-rights specified in clause (b) were published."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"I beg permission to move amendment 250 (above) in the following modified form.—That the following sub-clause (1a) be inserted after sub-clause (1) in clause 163A, namely:—

"(1a) Any land recorded as nij-chas in a record-of-rights finally published between the years 1906 and 1912, which falls within the category of proprietor's private land under the provisions of clause (b) of sub section (1), shall be deemed to have become proprietor's private land with effect from the date of the final publication of such record."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said:—

"I accept this amendment."

The latter motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 164.

251. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "under section 13A, 13B or 13C" in proviso (ii) (a) of clause 164 be omitted.

252. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Sankar Sahay Bahadur to move that proviso (ii) (c) of clause 164 be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson said:—

"With Your Honour's permission I beg to move here the amendment which is numbered 12A on the Separate List, which you have already permitted me to move, viz.".

12A. That the following be substituted for proviso (ii) (a) to clause 164 (c), namely:—

"(a) registered under section 13A, 13B, 13C or under any law previously in force, or".

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

253. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "whether tenure-holder or raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajiaftidar" in line 1 of proviso (ii) of clause 164 (2).

New Clause 201A.

254. The Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, in the absence of the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha, moved that the following clause be added after clause 201:—

"201A. All suits and proceedings under this Act shall be instituted and tried at a place to be fixed, with the approval of the local Government, at the head-quarters of a district or of a sub-division of a district, as the case may be, and to be known as the court-house of the Collector."

Place of suing

He said:—

"It is well-known what hardship and inconvenience the parties have to undergo when they have to attend the officer on tour from camp to camp, and it is therefore absolutely necessary that the form of administering justice must be at a fixed place. People who are not litigants themselves can form no conception of the trouble to which the parties are subjected. If the Bill had provided for the trial of rent suits by the Civil Court, this amendment would not have become necessary, but as all these suits will be tried by Revenue Courts, we cannot but insist that some provision should be made for their trial at head-quarters of districts or sub divisions, even though it involves increased expenditure by the appointment of more officers. It often happens that a party with a just case has to come to a compromise because either he is not rich enough or does not like to incur the trouble and inconvenience of a long journey in the interior from his place of abode. It sometimes leads to failure of justice. The officer on tour is occupied with many matters, and he cannot therefore bestow that undivided attention which is necessary to form a calm judgment. This is a real grievance of the people which should be redressed. The necessity for this amendment is therefore obvious."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"I cannot agree to the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Member. He has told us in his speech of the great trouble and difficulty which landlords have in going to remote places in the mufassal to have their cases tried, but we have heard very little regarding the great trouble and expense which raiyats experience in coming into the head-quarters of the district or subdivision in order to have their cases tried. I think that the expense in one case may fairly be taken to be counterbalanced by the expense in the other, and that this Council need not attempt to decide between the two claims. Apart from this question of expense, which is by no means the most important, it is clear that on the merits of the case by far the greater number of disputes relating to land can most easily and expeditiously be settled on the spot. Unfortunately, the staff at the disposal of Government is not at present such as to enable all suits between landlord and tenant to be tried in the village concerned. The great majority of such cases must, I fear, continue to be tried at the head-quarters of districts and subdivisions, but I look forward to a time when the mufussal agency at the disposal of Government will be strengthened, and a much greater number of land suits, than at present, will be tried on the spot. I regard the advantages of this measure as infinitely greater than any disadvantages which the landlords or their pleaders may be put to in a few isolated cases. All difficult cases raising points of law, in which legal advice is necessary, would as a rule be tried at head-quarters. The motion of the Hon'ble Member would entirely destroy the possibility of reaching the ideal to which we look forward, and I trust the Hon'ble Member will not press his motion, but will leave it as at present to the discretion of the courts, subject to the control of superior authority to decide the place at which suits relating to land should be tried, having regard to all the circumstances of the case and the general convenience of the parties."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 207.

255. The Hon'ble MR. M. S. DAS moved that the words " where an appeal is not allowed" be substituted for the words " whether an appeal is allowed or not" in line 4 of clause 207 (i).

He said :—

"Sir, the clause as it is in the Bill, says:—

> 'the rules in rule 13 in Order XVIII in the first Schedule to the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1908, for recording the evidence of witnesses shall apply, whether an appeal is allowed or not.'

That rule says in cases in which an appeal is not allowed, the Judge shall make a memorandum of the evidence. But, of course, in cases where an appeal is allowed, a regular record of evidence should be kept. Here it is said, that whether a case be appealable or not there should be no regular record of evidence. Considering, Sir, that this evidence is to be recorded and these suits are to be tried by Deputy Collectors, whereas the Civil Procedure Code applies to the Civil Court, is it not desirable that this privilege, that is to say, making memorandum only and not recording evidence, should be given only in those cases where no appeal is allowed? Of course, where an appeal is allowed, evidence ought to be recorded in order to place the Appellate Court in a position to judge whether the judgment is correct or not. I simply ask what the Criminal Procedure Code has enacted, and I hope the Hon'ble Member will not oppose it."

The Hon'ble MR. H. MCPHERSON said :—

"I regret, Sir that I cannot accept this amendment because, if it were accepted, it would destroy much of the benefit that is derived from the special procedure provided for the trial of rent-suit cases. It is desirable, alike in the interests of landlords and tenants, that the disposal of rent-suits should be expeditious, and that proceedings should not be prolonged unduly. In the vast majority of cases, the issues are of the simplest nature.

This is especially the case in an area that is fully equipped with a record-of-rights Under the Bill, as it stands, it will be the duty of the trying officer to record all the substance of the evidence in writing. And this should be sufficient for the purposes of appeal. An officer who prepares his records in a perfunctory manner will incur the displeasure of the appellate court, and may have his cases remanded. We have not heard that the working of the corresponding provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act has caused any injustice or inconvenience in Bengal, where it has been in force for 30 years, and I do not see why we should anticipate any such in Orissa

"Moreover, if reference be made to section 60 of Act X of 1859, it will be seen that no innovation is being introduced.

"Section 60 says regarding the examination of the parties, that the substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing in the vernacular language of the Collector and filed with the record.

"I would also note that nearly all rent-suit cases are appealable, for the Collector tries very few himself, and that the practical effect of the amendment would be to destroy the whole of the value of the special provision."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 208.

256. The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD DIN moved that the following be added at the end of clause 208, namely :—

> " Provided that the plaintiff shall be entitled to recover the entire costs of the suit incurred by him, and that the decree shall specify the exact amount of money and costs separately payable to the plaintiff and the pro formâ defendent."

He said :—

" This clause is similar to clause 148(a) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and this new section was added in the year 1907. Since then, some little difficulty has been sometimes felt when the plaintiff brings a suit and prays for the recovery of rent, and during the trial some of the pro formâ defendants put in a written statement asking the Court to pass a decree for their share of the rent, separately. Then sometimes he gets a decree for his share of the rent, plus the costs. Now, I simply want that, if the special clause be added towards the end of this clause, the specific decree may be passed in favour of the plaintiff, or in favour of the pro formâ defendants, and also the proportionate amount of costs incurred by the plaintiff and by the pro formâ defendant. In some cases the plaintiff would be entitled to get the entire costs, although he would get a decree for his share of rent only. Suppose some of the plaintiffs are absent, the whole costs will have to be realized by the plaintiff because he has incurred the entire costs, although he will get the decree for his share of the rent. With the object stated, Sir, I propose that this provision may be added towards the end of clause 208."

The Hon'ble MR. CHAPMAN said :

"Sir, I cannot advise the Government to accept this amendment; first, on the general principle that it is unwise to legislate on the subject of costs. It is always desirable to leave the question of costs to the discretion of the courts. There are some cases in which a court may consider that a plaintiff is not entitled to have his costs, either with reference to the manner in which he has conducted his suit, or with reference to some other circumstances. That is the general objection. Also, I think that the Hon'ble Member has not quite understood the clause. The clause merely contemplates a decree for the plaintiff's share of the rent. The plaintiff shall have such a decree that there cannot be any amount payable to anybody but the plaintiff. I think he has misunderstood the clause; and, further, the clause only applies to cases in which it is impossible to ascertain what is due to the other co-sharers, so there cannot be any decree for any amount in favour of the co sharers I therefore advise that the Council do not accept this."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 219.

257. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "whether tenure-holder or raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajiaftidar" in line 2 of clause 219 (1) (c).

Clause 226.

258. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "bajiafti tenancy" be substituted for the words "bajiaftidar" in line 2 of clause 226 (2) (a).

Clause 227.

259. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajiaftidar" in line 2 of clause 227 (1).

Clause 228.

260. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "raiyat" be inserted after the word "bajiaftidar" in line 2 of clause 228 (1).

Clause 231.

261. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the word "bajiaftidar raiyats" be substituted for the word "bajiaftidars" in line 2 of clause 231 (3).

Clause 232.

262. The Hon'ble MR. M. S. DAS moved that the words "or the right of co-sharer landlords" be inserted after the words "decree-holders' right" in line 1 of clause 232(2).

He said:—

"I think there has been a mistake on my part, and I understand that there will be an amendment proposed to this."

The Hon'ble Mr Chapman said:—"I am prepared to accept this in a different form. I move that instead of amendment No. 262 (above) the following be accepted namely: That after the words and letter 'clause (c)' in sub-section (2) thereto, insert the words and figure 'of sub-section (1)' or the amount of any payment contemplated by proviso (i) or proviso (ii) of the said sub-section."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

263. The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das to move that the words "clause (b) and" be substituted for the word "clause" in line 2 of clause 232(2).

Clause 241.

264. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo to move that the words "transfer or" in line 1 of clause 241 (3) (d) be omitted.

265. The Hon'ble RAJA RAJENDRA NARAYAN BHANJA DEO moved that the words "custom or" be inserted before the words "local usage" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 241 (3) (d).

He said :—

"I have changed the words 'customs and' in the original amendment to 'customs or' in which form, I think, it will be accepted by the Hon'ble Member in charge."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said :—

"I accept it in the modified form, Sir."

The motion was put and agreed to.

266. The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo moved that the words "an occupancy-raiyat" be substituted for the words "a tenant" in line 1 of clause 241 (3) (g).

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said :—

"I accept it, Sir, because occupancy-raiyats are the only tenants who can apply for commutation."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 245.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

267. The Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, to move that the following proviso be added to sub-clause (1) of clause 245, viz :—

"Provided that this sub-section shall not apply to a non-resident raiyat who holds his homestead and holding under different landlords."

He said :—

"I understand, Sir, that no difficulty has arisen in Orissa, and as this is a matter which I really proposed because some difficulty has arisen in Bengal, I beg to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Schedule IV.

268. The Hon'ble Rai Sheo Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "three years" be substituted for the words "one year" in Schedule IV, article 2 (b) (ii).

5. The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson moved that the Secretary be directed to renumber the clauses and sub-clauses of the Bill, in consecutive order, and to make corresponding alterations in all cross-references thereto.

The motion was put and agreed to.

6 The Hon'ble Mr. H. McPherson also moved that the Bill, as settled in Council, be passed.

He said :—

"I have now the honour to move, Sir, that the Orissa Tenancy Bill, as amended in Council, be passed. I congratulate the Council on the conclusion of the deliberations which have engrossed its attention for four days, I congratulate it on the patience, good temper and, on the whole, fairness of mind that have been displayed throughout the debates. We have perhaps exchanged a few hard knocks in the course of our discussions but no bones have been broken, and we part good friends. I regard the Bill as a great legislative achievement which settles many vexed questions of law and procedure, and restores order and harmony to the agrarian economy of Orissa. It gives to that portion of the province the advantages of a self-contained agrarian code, and puts an end to many existing causes of dispute and unrest and strife. Many hard things have been said of the Bill in this Council, and there has also been some attempt to prejudice the public mind regarding it through the public press. We have been told that it is revolutionary, where it merely embodies existing custom. Insinuations have been made that it is the work of ex-settlement officers who recognize their own mistakes, and are anxious to remove them from observation. The debates have shown that no grounds exist for this insinuation. But the criticism which has least foundation of all, is that the Orissa public or the Council has been rushed by this legislation, and that public opinion has been stifled. I would ask the Council, in this connection, to compare the history and progress of the Bill with those of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, which was an equally long measure and supplied a complete agrarian code to a Division which is even more divergent from the rest of Bengal than Orissa is. The Chota Nagpur Tenancy Bill, after being before the public for twelve months during which it was considered in local committees, was introduced into Council in July 1908. It was considered in Select Committee for three weeks, and was passed at a single sitting of the Council, only five weeks after it was first introduced. The Orissa Bill, on the other hand has been before the Orissa public for more than three years. It was introduced in Council about eight months ago, circulated to local bodies, considered in Select Committee for nearly two months, and has now engaged our attention in Council for four long sittings.

Orissa will shortly be included within the boundaries of the new Province of Bihar and Orissa. It is asserted that the administrators of the new Province should have been consulted regarding the Bill. I am in a position to state that His Honour Sir Charles Bayley has been consulted regarding the Bill. The Bill and all the papers connected with it were laid before His Honour, and he agreed that it should be passed by this Council. Sir, as one who has had close connection with Orissa for ten out of twenty years' service, and is likely to have some share in the future administration of Orissa, I personally consider it a great cause for thankfulness that the legislative proposals of the last three years have been brought to fruition before this Council is dissolved, and that Orissa has had the benefit of all the wisdom and experience which remain behind in Bengal. To you, Sir, in especial, we owe a great debt of gratitude for the fairness and patience with which you have presided over our deliberations and for the guidance and assistance which your personal knowledge of Orissa has enabled you to bring to bear on our proceedings. With these words, Sir, I move that the Bill, as amended in Council, be passed."

The Hon'ble Sir BIJAY CHAND MAHTAB, MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR of BURDWAN said :—

"Your Honour : before this Bill is passed into law, I feel I ought to say a few words. First of all, let me congratulate the Government on having at last got a complete agrarian code for Orissa, and I hope that the new Act will ameliorate the condition of both the landlords and tenants in Orissa. I regret that the Government should have insisted upon the inclusion of the maintenance of Land Records Chapter in the Bill. Certain innovations have been introduced in this rent law, which do not exist in the Bengal Tenancy Act, and I apprehend that before very long we shall have some of the new provisions in this Bill thrust on us in Bengal. The maintenance of Land Records Chapter, the chapter dealing with communal rights and the express provision of the raiyati transfers of occupancy-rights will, if introduced into Bengal, have even more far-reaching effects than in the present case; but we must reserve our comments and judgments until the psychological moment arrives.

I take this opportunity of warmly thanking Messrs. McPherson and Kerr for the invaluable help and unfailing courtesy shown to us members of the Select Committee, during the meetings of that Committee. Although we shall have Mr. Kerr with us, I am sincerely sorry my friend, Mr. McPherson, is going over to Bihar, for I have a warm regard for him and shall miss him here: but I hope he will have a successful career in Bihar. The President of our Select Committee, the Hon'ble Mr. Slacke, is going to retire from the service, and as I have had the honour of his friendship, I cannot help saying how sad I feel that another old friend and well-wisher is leaving the province. Our sincere thanks are also due to Mr. Watson, the Secretary of this Council. His help in the Select Committee was invaluable, and I think we, one and all, non-official members of the Select Committee on the Orissa Tenancy Bill, have reasons to be particularly grateful to Mr. Watson for the printed proceedings of every day's meeting which he so kindly got ready for our discussion and reference, and which we found most useful."

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR said:—

"Sir, first of all I beg to congratulate the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill on the termination of his labours. We are grateful to him for his courtesy and his patient consideration, during the debate, of the amendments put forward by non-official Members.

Sir, coming to the Bill itself, which is about to become law, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill in his speech he made for referring it to the Select Committee called it a "non contentious" Bill. The amendments made by the Select Committee, the new clauses added by it, the various amendments which he himself allowed, which led to the redrafting of clauses after clauses during the passage of the Bill here, and lastly the four days vigorous work in the Council, hardly justify the Hon'ble Member's expectation that this was a non-contentious Bill

Sir, the new Bill contains many provisions, such as the right of transfer of occupancy-rights, which did not form part of the Bill as introduced in Council, and which it was distinctly said would remain untouched. With regard to such provisions of the Bill on which the sanction of the Government of India has not been obtained, and with regard to the revolutionary changes in the existing law, such as the law regarding the produce rent, regarding the transfer of jurisdiction from the Civil Courts to the Executive head of the districts in case of common mauzas, regarding the depriving of the co-owners of their rights to deal with their property by sale, gift or otherwise, and also preventing them from applying for partition and such other provisions, I do hope and trust that His Excellency the Viceroy will consider them before giving his assent to the Bill.

Sir, the motion before the Council is of a formal character, and under ordinary circumstances a motion like this cannot be resisted. But, Sir, is the position normal? If the opposition to this formal motion is unusual, the occasion is also unique The position is unprecedental and there is, as the lawyers would say, no case law or ruling to guide us in this respect. We have, therefore, to fall back on our own resources, viz., our common sense.

The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill in his speech of 17th January last said:—

'Under the circumstances, it is the Council's duty, I submit, not to leave this Bill as a legacy of trouble to the builders of the new province, but to apply earnestly to the task of shaping the Bill, so that it may well form a parting gift from Bengal.'

Sir, in the language of the Hon'ble Member in charge, you have shaped the Bill and the Bill you have shaped, the Bill which is the result of the experience of your officers, should form a parting gift from you. If you go a step further and pass it into law, your parting gift shall not only lose its graciousness, but probably the new Lieutenant-Governor and his Councillors will resent that on the last day of our existence we should pass it into law and thus issue a command on him to carry it out.

If we were sure that if the Bill is not passed immediately and the law put in force at once disastrous result will follow, the matter would have been different. But it is not shown that any immediate necessity is felt. Why not then hand over the Bill as considered by the Council to the new Lieutenant-Governor and let him and his Council pass it into law?

I therefore oppose this motion."

The Hon'ble MR MADDOX said:—

"I will only say a few words. I think, Sir, that Government is to be congratulated that remedies have been provided after the injustice that has been done to Orissa in the past. We have now framed a self-contained law which will remove the overlapping and the confusion created by the piecemeal introduction of sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act. I would only like to say, Sir, that we all wish Mr. Das a long and happy career to continue to carry out the ideals and the purpose which he has already stated here, namely, to communicate to Government the feelings and wishes of the people of Orissa, and to communicate to them the views of Government. I hope he will continue to do so for many years".

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said:—

"Sir, I congratulate the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, and those who were associated with him in carrying out this measure through the Council, on the earnestness of their wish and work, and I personally take this opportunity to express our gratitude to our worthy Secretary and to the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer, to whose intercession I owe the clause which will give a retrospective effect to clause 163A, and which occupied so much of my time when I moved for postponement of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has referred to hard knocks. I suppose old men are accustomed to hard knocks, and can stand those knocks at least as well as young men. Far be it from me not to appreciate the desire on the part of Government to do justice to Orissa My principal ground of complaint has been that, on account of the shortness of time at the disposal of this Council, many things would not receive the attention which I am sure they would have received at the hands of Your Honour and of this Council, if the life of this Council were a little longer. Nobody knew that we were going to have these administrative changes Consequently, we were not prepared for this state of things I will just mention one instance. When this Bill was referred to the Select Committee, I was bed-ridden, and the other Member for Orissa asked the Select Committee for the postponement of the discussion for a fortnight. I feel confident that, under ordinary circumstances, Your Honour would have granted the request, that is to say, had it not been that Orissa was to be transferred so soon. My position was that I was quite unable to do my duty towards the people whom I represent—that duty to which the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox has alluded. I could not say to the people of Orissa that I have done my best. Certainly, it was in the power of the Government to ask me to resign and appoint another person who could have taken up the work at once, the work, as I said before, being of a peculiarly difficult character.

It has been admitted that, on account of the Revenue Settlement and the Revisional Settlement having been made under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, certain errors were committed, and that one of the objects of this Bill is to correct those mistakes. Now, that in itself is difficult work Once the existing law has been disturbed, it is really a work of validation that is done, making valid things which were invalid at the time, and consequently it requires a great deal of time and attention on the part of lawyers to do that. I do not like to say anything more now, because perhaps I have been considered the greatest obstructionist in this Council to the easy passage of the Bill. All that I can say is that I do hope that the Bill will work as successfully as those who are responsible for it expect it to be. I do hope that there will not be thousands of cases over the communal land of Orissa, for the result in that case would be the ruination of the poor people I believe the people have a right to say to the Government 'Do not leave dubious points of law to be settled by law courts, when you are enacting a legislation,' for the law courts are expensive. People have to pay for case law while they don't have to pay for law which is passed on the anvil of legislation. It makes all the difference, and in the case of the poor people of Orissa the difference means a great deal. I regret very much I cannot divest myself of the feeling that there has been a certain amount of hurry and disputation in connection with this Bill. I do not like to use the word "rush" as I know it is not liked, just as the word "maintenance" was not liked, and raised angry passion when mentioned. I would, however, mention here that we have been under the necessity of hearing defences with regard to maintenance from one of the Members in charge of the Bill, but in spite of that I have been able, though at the last moment, to induce the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to give retrospective effect to clause 163A. What do these show? These show that the Bill had defects which could not be solved till the last moment. I do not like to say anything more. I only hope that it will prove to be a blessing to the people of Orissa, as it is expected to be by the Government."

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHEO NANDAN PROSAD SINGH said:—

"Your Honour, I beg to rise to support the motion that the Orissa Tenancy Bill be passed into law. In doing so, I must at the outset express regret that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill could not see his way to accept some of the important amendments moved by the representatives of Orissa and other non-official Members of the Council. I have also to explain why I had purposely refrained from taking any part in the discussion of the various amendments on the list. The chief reason that led me to that course was that I did not like to take up the valuable time of the Council unnecessarily, conscious as I was that the task of protecting the vested interests of the people of Orissa was in very able hands.

I have now to offer my congratulations to the Hon'ble Mr. McPherson in having piloted this important Bill through the Council in such a remarkably able way. I hope we will all join in wishing him a pleasant holiday on the conclusion of his labours. I may say that it is a matter of special gratification to the people of Bihar that he is coming to us Bihar with its needs and aspirations welcomes officials of such wide sympathies as he possesses. While supporting the passing of the Bill, may I express a hope that commutation cases, intricate, difficult and of far-reaching consequences as they are, will be placed in charge of officers of experience. I would also ask that the power of revision of record-of-rights may, in practice, be fixed at sufficiently longer intervals to minimise trouble to the parties concerned. Of course it must be admitted that when once a record-of-rights is prepared, it has to be maintained up to date by periodical revisions.

Now that our work in the Council is finished, and as the Council becomes functus officio in a few days hence, may I be permitted, Sir, to thank Your Honour most sincerely for your great and unfailing courtesy to us We, the people of Bihar, humbly hope that we may have the honour at some later date of welcoming you as our Lieutenant-Governor.

We are deeply grateful to Government for giving to Bihar her just rights True the people of Bihar and Bengal have been bound together from time immemorial under Hindu Kings, under Muhammadan Kings, and above all during the last 150 years of Pax Britannica. True the culture of my Bengali friends has been an incentive to the people of Bihar, and in the parting there must be a feeling of regret on these accounts. But now, as Bihar, which yields to none in its loyal devotion to the Crown, will stand on its own legs, I am confident it will not fail to occupy the position which is its just dues.

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said:—

"Sir, I rise to oppose the motion. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill should no doubt be congratulated on the happy and successful termination of the discussion and deliberations of the several clauses of the Bill, but I do not think I shall be justified in congratulating the people of Orissa on having this Bill passed into law. There are certain innovations in the Bill which do not find place in the existing laws of the country, the introduction of certain new clauses in the Select Committee, and even the re-drafting of certain clauses after the Select Committee had presented their report—all these, and the introduction of a new Chapter to which the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan has referred, ought to have taken a little more time for consideration. The postponement for the consideration of this Bill in this Council was twice asked for—on the first occasion it was proposed by the Hon'ble the Raja of Kanika, when the Bill was being referred to the Select Committee, and I had the fortune or rather the misfortune to support that motion; on the second occasion it was moved after the submission of the report of the Select Committee, when we found that out of the six non-official Members, five thought fit to submit notes of dissent, only one non-official Member agreeing with the official Members. We were under the impression that the motion for postponement would have been be accepted by the Government, because on the first occasion, when the motion was moved, Your Honour was pleased to observe that 'let the report of the Select Committee be presented; and if even then the Hon'ble Members think that the report is not satisfactory, and that further consideration was necessary, then the postponement may be asked for.' But unfortunately that request was not acceded to, even when it was moved for the second time.

When no less than 268 amendments were proposed, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill began to complain that very few of those amendments came from the Orissa Members, the majority having been proposed by Bihar Members, and it struck him as passing strange that Bihar Members should take so keen an interest in the discussion of the Orissa Tenancy Bill. I submit, Sir, that Bihar Members took a keen interest in the discussion, inasmuch as they form part and parcel of this corporate body, and as such they have as much right to propose amendments and to discuss amendments as any other Members in this Council. The next ground why the Bihar Members took a keen interest in the Bill was that, if in Bihar a Bill containing similar provisions be thrust in hereafter, it might not be said that the Bihar Members, in whose presence the Orissa Tenancy Bill was passed, did not raise any objection, and gave their implied acquiescence or consent to the passing of undesirable clauses to which the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan has referred to in his speech. Then the third ground for our taking interest in the discussion is that Orissa now forms part and parcel of Bihar, and therefore it is our duty now to see that our co-provincialists, the people of Orissa, do not suffer by any enactment passed in the present Council.

Now, as all our proposed amendments have been discussed, the Council should be asked to pass this Bill. But the rights which the people of Orissa hitherto possessed, the right of selling their property, the right of applying for partition in case of the appointment of common managers, the question of custom of occupancy-rights,—all these, I submit, should be considered by the new Government with its new Council. This Bill will now be passed into law, and we have seen the fate of our amendments all along; but at the same time, I think it is our duty to enter our protest against the passing of this Bill. With these words, Sir, I oppose the motion."

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR said:—

"I do not wish to give my vote on the motion without making a few observations. There is not the slightest doubt that the motion will be accepted, and the Bill passed When this Bill is passed and becomes law, it will be, as it were, the fourth edition of the Tenancy Act, the Bengal Tenancy Act, the Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy Act, the Chota Nagpur Te ancy Act and the Orissa Tenancy Act. This will be the fourth and therefore the latest edition, and would in future be considered as the best edition. There are certain apprehensions which naturally arise in the minds of those who will be governed by this Act This Bill, amongst other things, deals with four subjects, which have introduced innovations, one of which, I am forced to call, revolution. Transferability with regard to rights of occupancy and tenures have been considered and introduced in this Bill in a form which does not exist in the other Acts. Then the appointment of a common manager deals with the subject in rather a new way. Its enforced artificial disqualification of co-owners is a feature which seems to us to be very objectionable. I have to refer to the curtailment of rights and testamentary disposition, and I still maintain that position. Then the conservation of communal rights is a provision in this Bill that is of a striking nature. Sarbadasadharan lands, or enjoyment of communal rights, will perhaps, as has been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr Das, give rise to litigation. Then the chapter, as regards land records or the repetition of the record-of-rights will be a fruitful source, I won't say of oppression, but of distress on the part of the poor tenants. Annual repetition of the record of-rights would be perhaps an impossibility, because whoever has any experience with regard to these record-of-rights know that records can be completed within a period of three years. These are the main features in which innovations have been introduced and I am afraid hereafter, in the different provinces, the principles laid down regarding these four different subjects may be sought to be introduced. It is for that reason that I submit this voice of dissent with regard to the principles underlying these provisions. Though I am willing that the Bill should be passed, still my vote will be that the Bill be passed as it is with this note of dissent.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dip Narayan Singh said:—

Your Honour, I also beg to oppose the Orissa Tenancy Bill. It is not in any vindictive mood that I and my friends from Bihar have persisted in opposing this Bill even at this stage, but I hope and believe that we Biharis know how to fight hard, yet submit gracefully to a fair defeat. But, Sir, there is a lurking doubt in my mind that the fight has not ended as far as this Bill is concerned. I beg to put before the Council the doubt that has arisen in my mind. In the validating Bill that was enacted by the Law Member in the Viceroy's Council the other day,—if I am not mistaken,—it was enacted that all Enactments and Bills then prevailing should remain valid in the two provinces that come into existence on the 1st of April next. Sir, this Orissa Tenancy Bill was not then in existence, and I do not know how far the passing of this Bill by this Council to-day will be valid, unless it is ratified by His Excellency the Viceroy before the 31st March.

The President said:—

"It is not for us to discuss a sphere of action which appertains to His Excellency alone.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dip Narayan Singh said —

"I do not intend to do so, but we hope that it may be possible that this Bill even now may not become law."

The President said:—

"If the Hon'ble Member entertains any such hope, will he please retain it in his own breast? This is not a matter for discussion in this Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dip Narayan Singh said:—

"We have reasons for not supporting this Bill they have already been discussed by my other friends from Bihar, and I do not wish to take up any more time of the Council. With these few words, and in full agreement with the remarks made by my friend to the right as to the general tenor that has existed in this Council in the short time we have been here, I beg to oppose the passing of this Bill."

The Hon'ble Mr. McPherson said.—

"Sir, I do not propose to detain the Council by replying to the remarks which have been made regarding the Bill, or the various criticisms that have been passed upon it I wish only to refer to a few personal matters. I should like first to refer to Hon'ble Mr. Das's complaint that the proceedings of the Select Committee were not postponed till he recovered from his illness. As Mr. Das wanted an adjournment of one month, we had practically to decide between acceding to his request, or abandoning the Bill which we had already decided in Council should be proceeded with. We were, therefore, much to our regret, unable to accede to his request The attitude of the Hon'ble Members from Bihar has been brought up again by the Hon'ble Maulvi Fakhr-ud-din, but I do not seek to discuss the subject further. We have already had considerable enlightenment regarding the attitude of the Bihar Members. Finally, I wish to thank Hon'ble Members for the kind way in which they have referred to my connection with the Bill, and to say that if credit is due to any one for the passing of the Bill through Council, it is due in great measure to my hon'ble friend Mr. Kerr, who has taken a very heavy portion of the burden off my shoulders.

With these remarks, I beg to move that the Orissa Tenancy Bill as amended in Council be passed."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"Gentlemen of the Council, before I put the motion, I wish to say a few words with reference to my personal connection with the Bill whih I trust will now be passed. I wish to take my full share of the responsibility for initiating this Bill, and indeed for having brought it forward in Council and for its being passed by the present Council; and I wish to say that I think that possibly, (though, of course, a measure of this kind has many different origins). I had as much to do as any one individual with the origin of the Orissa Tenancy Bill.

For some years previous to 1908 I served in Orissa, and as my connection with Orissa has been referred to from time to time, I desire at once to disclaim the character of an expert on Orissa land-law. I have not served in that country long enough, nor been able to give sufficient concentration to Orissa land-law to be able to claim any expert knowledge of it, but I have served for some years in the division, and have helped to administer the law and have thus been fully conscious of what was going on. The matter which first came to my notice was the exceedingly unfavourable position in which certain classes of sub-proprietors and tenure-holders were placed. I instance the bajiaftiiars, for whom Mr. Das has expressed so much solicitude—solicitude which they in fact most justly deserve, and I thought of enquiring into the matter and of obtaining the opinions of people who have spent the greater part of their lives in Orissa. When the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed in 1885, it was passed with practically no reference to the special circumstances of Orissa. I do not think even that there was in the Council, as then constituted, any one with a special knowledge of the circumstances of Orissa and of its various classes of sub-proprietors and tenure-holders, of their rights; or their requirements, or of their relations with the zamindars on the one hand, and the cultivating raiyats on the other. These peculiar relations and circumstances of Orissa having thus not been specially considered in the Bengal Tenancy Act, there were thus no direct provisions of law which could be made fairly applicable to them. The result was that it came to be found that some of the classes to which I have referred were obviously suffering very much in their interests, and the general tendency was that they were being reduced to a lower status, and that, provisionally, sub-proprietors and tenure holders were being gradually pushed down to the position of ordinary raiyats. I succeeded in attracting the attention of superior authority to some of these grievances, and it was decided that a remedy was required, and it was then considered what form the remedy should take and how it should be effected. That, I think, goes back perhaps to 1906 or 1907. In the meantime, attention was constantly directed to the uncertainties of the law in Orissa Acts X of 1859, VI of 1862, and VIII of 1865, were still partially in force and governed the trial of rent suits, while a number of the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, had, subsequently to 1885, and in the hope of improving the relations between landlords and tenants in certain particulars, been introduced from time to time. It was, however, constantly found that the provisions and procedure one Act were in conflict with the provisions and procedure of another, and trained lawyers frequently were obliged to admit that they were unable to advise what the real law governing any particular case was; how far, for instance, the Rent Act of 1859 was still in force, and how far the new provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act modified or abrogated it. As each fresh difficulty arose, the simplest way to get over it appeared to be the introduction of another provision from the Bengal Tenancy Act, and constant pressure was put upon Government, both by officials and non-officials, to apply more and more of them to Orissa in the expectation of remedying the admittedly unsatisfactory condition of the land-laws. At that time I left Orissa and became Revenue Secretary to this Government, and it became apparent to me that we had arrived at a point of confusion that was undoubtedly most injurious to the interests of the people of Orissa, and that one of two things had to be done—either the Bengal Tenancy Act must be enforced wholesale, or Orissa must have a Code of its own.

I have already explained that, in certain particulars, and because of the special local requirements of Orissa, the Bengal Tenancy Act, applied wholesale, appeared to be clearly unsuitable, and it seemed to follow that Orissa ought to have a Code of its own. That Code would no doubt embody most of the leading principles of the Bengal Tenancy Act—the principles of which Act, it is admitted, have been carefully thought out, and have stood the test of time and are generally suitable to most of the relations between landlord and tenant. But every part of the country has got its local customs and peculiar agrarian characterics, and no one Code can possibly provide for all cases. It therefore seemed that a special Code should be prepared which, while embodying the general principles of the Bengal Tenancy Act, as far as they were applicable, would provide for the special circumstances and peculiar features of the Division of Orissa.

I made that suggestion, as Revenue Secretary, to Sir Andrew Fraser, and he thereupon set on foot the special enquiry made by Mr' Maddox, from which this Bill, which is now before us, has sprung.

I had very little to do with the exact form which the Bill has taken, but I do find satisfaction in the fact that I had something to do with the initiation of a movement that we are here to-day, so far as in us lies, to carry into effect.

I realise that a new self-contained agragrian Code is a matter of very great difficulty, and requires very close consideration; but I do not forget that this Bill has now been before Government for nearly four years, and has been, during that time, the object of the most exhaustive inquiries and the most earnest attention on the part both of officials and non-officials alike I admit indeed that very probably it may contain imperfections. I take it that few Acts have been passed which have not had their imperfections. A Bill of this size is unlikely to escape them, but I doubt if these are serious compared with the importance and effectiveness of the main provisions which are designed to afford much needed relief to the people of Orissa. I recognize the care with which the Bill has been discussed both in Select Committee and in Council. It has been very ably conducted by the Hon'ble Member in charge and by the other official Members who have assisted him, particularly the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr. I recognise also the very close attention that has been given to it by the non-official Members who took part in the Select Committee, and by those who have discussed its provisions in Council. With regard to the extremely critical attitude that has been taken by the Bihar Members, I think that it was perfectly natural that they should feel that what has been applied to Orissa to-day, may possibly be applied to them to-morrow. But, if I may venture a word of advice, I would impress upon them the desirability of remembering, now that their fortunes are bound up with Orissa, that different cases and different circumstances require different decisions, that one invariable Code cannot be made to suit all parts of a great Province, and that what is good for Orissa may not necessarily be good for Bihar, and that they ought, therefore, in dealing with the different parts of their new Province, to be prepared to broaden their point of view and to realise that certain remedies may be necessary and desirable for their neighbours, even though they may be unpalatable to themselves, and thus to refrain from being solely influenced by the idea that the same remedies may be forced upon them, and to oppose them on that ground alone. I am not indeed aware that they have any grounds for supposing that those provisions of the Orissa Tenancy Bill, which have been inserted because of their peculiar fitness to the needs of Orissa, will be forced upon them in future, but I do hope that to Orissa itself the Bill will be a real benefit, and that this law is will tend in future to straighten out many difficulties that have afflicted the people in the past."

The motion was put and agreed to without a division.

THE BENGAL MINING SETTLEMENTS BILL, 1912.

*7. The Hon'ble Mr. Cumming moved that the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the sanitation of mining settlements in Bengal be taken into consideration.

* These numbers refer to the order of motions in the List of Business.

He said:—

"Sir, at this stage it is not necessary to add anything to what was stated when the report of the Select Committee was presented."

The motion was put and agreed to

*8. The Hon'ble Mr. Cumming also moved that the clauses of the Bill be considered in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was put and agreed to.

†1. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur moved that after clause 3 (5, the following be added, namely:—

> "(5a) One of the persons appointed under sub-section (1) shall be the Civil Surgeon of the district in which the mining settlement lies."

He said:—

"Sir, my object in moving this amendment is simply this, that there always ought to be a Sanitary officer of the Government, and that the Civil Surgeon ought to be made ex-officio member of the Board. I find from the opinions collected that the Deputy Commissioner, Manbhum, the Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal, and the District Magistrate of Burdwan are all of the same opinion, and they also think that there ought to be a medical officer. The Civil Surgeon of the district is the chief responsible officer on behalf of the Government, and he is fit to know much better about questions of sanitation than anyone else. Of course with regard to the District Magistrate or Subdivisional Magistrate, the question stands on a very different footing altogether. I propose therefore that this amendment be accepted, and that the Civil Surgeon be made ex-officio member of the Board"

The Hon'ble Mr Cumming said:—

"Sir, I quite appreciate the propriety of the proposal of the Hon'ble Rai Baikantha Nath Sen Bahadur, but he appears to have overlooked the principle which I mentioned in presenting the report of the Select Committee, viz., that the Bill was to be as elastic and flexible as possible. To that end the original proposal that the District Magistrate or the Subdivisional Officer should be appointed by statute has been relinquished. It may however be said, as the Hon'ble Member has said, that a medical man should certainly be on the Mines' Board of Health. I quite agree with the Hon'ble Member, but it need not follow that the Civil Surgeon would in all circumstances be the officer whose services would most conveniently be available for appointment. There are such officers as the Deputy Sanitary Commissioner and so on, and it may be that an Indian Medical Service officer who has special knowledge of this subject of sanitation may be available.

"I therefore do not recommend to the Council the acceptance of his amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

‡2. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur moved that the word "shall be punishable on conviction" be inserted after the word "sub-section" in line 10 of clause 17(3).

He said:—

"Sir, my object is not to oppose the provision in the Bill for punishment for repeated breaches, but my object is simply to give legality to the provision. I beg to draw the attention of the Council to a cognate provision in the Bengal Municipal Act. Section 218 of Bengal Municipal Act lays down—

'Whoever, being an owner or occupier of any house or land within a municipality, fails to comply with a requisition issued by the Commissioners under the provisions of sections 202, 204, 206, 207 or 208(2), shall be liable, for every such default, to a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further penalty, not exceeding ten rupees, for every day during which the default is continued after the expiration of eight days from the date of service on him of such requisition.'

With regard to this provision, reported in I. L. R., Calc., page 565, there their Lordships have laid down this ruling—

'A rule has been granted to consider the order regarding the daily fine. There are several reported cases in this Court on the subject, and it has been held that an order on account of daily fine is illegal, inasmuch as it is an adjudication in respect of an offence which had not been committed when such order was passed.'

Then Their Lordships discussed the question and referred to other cases. In this connection I would also beg to draw the attention of the Council to the cognate provision in the Calcutta Municipal Act. The wording has been changed there—the wording of section 565 of the Calcutta Municipal Act is to this effect.—'Continuing offences in certain cases punishable after the first conviction with a daily fine. Whoever after having been convicted of certain offence continues to contravene the said provisions shall be punished for each day after the first during which he continues so to offend with a fine which may extend to etc

Now such being the case, my amendment simply proposes, in order to give legality to this further fine, that after the word "sub section" be added the words "shall be punishable on conviction": to lay down after the first conviction that there should be another prosecution and another conviction for the continuing offence I think the Council should consider whether or not such a provision is necessary in order to make it legal."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, it is possible that the Hon'ble Member has to some extent been under a misapprehension. The Bill does not contemplate that any one can be punished without a conviction, or that any one can be punished for any neglect which may take place in the future. On the contrary, it is definitely stated that the breach must be proved to have been persisted in, that is to say, it must be so proved in a court. But, apart from that, the Bill reproduces the exact words of the Indian Mines Act of 1901 As this is an Imperial Act, it was thought that we would be on sure ground in repeating the language of that Act ; and that if there were any departure from the language of that Act, it might hereafter be assumed in a court that the departure suggested a different meaning from that in the Mines Act The ruling based on the Municipal Act to which the Hon'ble Member has referred was considered. It is not intended that there should be any order directing a penalty regarding a future neglect ; as I have explained, it is regarding past neglect to which the second portion of the clause refers The intention of the Hon'ble Member is to make the language free from ambiguity. All I can say is that the clause is sufficiently clear as it stands, and that in the opinion of the legal advisers of Government the amendment is unnecessary."

The Hon'ble BABU BAIKANTHA NATH SEN said :—

"Sir, The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill considers that the amendment proposed is superfluous. The intention of the Government is that there should be a subsequent conviction Well, intention, according to the legal interpretation, has to be gathered from the word. Here in this case to which I have made reference the provision is that the breach would have to be proved. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill says that it must be proved in a Court of Justice. It may be considered hereafter that it must be proved before the Board—the Board to consider after proof of the conviction that there has been a breach. So that it is not safe to rely upon that. I therefore suggest that it be 'shall be punishable on conviction.' Then it has been urged by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that this provision is in the Indian Mines Act. Well, if there is such a provision and if there is this flaw, that would not make it legal in a subsequent Act ; and if the flaw is pointed out, it is much better there should not be any ambiguity on the subject. I think, therefore, that the Council should consider whether or not the amendment proposed by me should be accepted in order to make it unambiguous."

The motion was then put and lost.

*9. The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that the Secretary be directed to re-number the clauses and sub-clauses of the Bill in consecutive order, and to make corresponding cross-references thereto.

The motion was put and agreed to.

*10. The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that the Bill, as settled in Council, be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MAHARAJA OF BURDWAN said:—

"Your Honour, this is the last sitting of the Legislative Council of the last Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and it is not strange that sadness should creep into our speeches. Belvedere, which to many of us has been the haunt of many a pleasant, happy and instructive incident and association, will no longer be the residence of the Provincial Ruler. But I hope that this historical place will not be sold or utilized for any purpose not in keeping with its past dignity and traditions, and that although we shall in the future have to go to Government House for our "Ayes" and "Noes" as well as for paying our respects to our ruler, we may, when we have to pass by Belvedere, at least feel this satisfaction, that it is being utilized for some noble purpose associated with Bengal.

Your Honour. you will be relinquishing your high office very soon, but while we regret that fact, we rejoice to know that we shall still have you in our midst, and that you will be one of the three trusted advisers of our first Governor. It is befitting that our last Lieutenant-Governor should be a Bengal man, and one who during a difficult time has steered the barge of State in a manner well worthy of the traditions of the Bengal Civil Service, and I congratulate you, Sir William, very heartily on your success as our ruler during the past nine months.

The ship of the Nobleman who is to guide our destinies for the next five years will soon be leaving Madras for Calcutta, and I am sure I voice the opinion of one and all Bengal Members here in saying that we shall accord Lord Carmichael a hearty welcome to Calcutta. It is true we feel Calcutta's dethronement from the Imperial standpoint, but we fervently hope and pray that under the new state of things, under our first Governor and in our new Presidency, we shall be able to gather our forces together and by a genuine entente cordiale between the Muhammadans and the Hindus on the one hand, and the rulers and the ruled on the other, be able to maintain Calcutta's superiority and importance over all other Provincial capitals.

Now a word of farewell to my Bihari and Uriya friends in this Council who will cease to represent Bengal from the 1st of April. We have been linked together from a long time, and that is why we feel the parting so much. But as the new arrangements are expected to be conducive to the development of the newly created Province of Bihar and Orissa, I wish my Bihari and Uriya friends good luck and prosperity in their new environments."

The Hon'ble MR. NORMAN McLEOD said:—

"Your Honour, may I be permitted to add a few words to what has been so well said by my hon'ble friend the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan. On behalf of the European non-official Members of this Council, I fully endorse the deserved tribute he has paid to your Honour's occupancy of the Presidential Chair. We have to thank you for your unfailing courtesy, your uniform fairness, and from your keen insight in all the questions that have come before us, the help you have given us in arriving at proper conclusions in our deliberations. This Council, like several others, has been in the nature of an experiment, but I don't think it can be denied that, with ripened experience, it, and similar Councils, cannot fail to be of the greatest assistance in the proper administration of our great Empire. During the time we have been in existence we have learnt many and instructive lessons. I have always heard that words were given to us to express our thoughts. We have learnt that such is not the case; for we have often, in weariness of the flesh, listened to hours of speeches which have conveyed but few thoughts. This is a matter which ought to engage attention in framing the rules for the new Council, as the present waste of time is enormous. A few well chosen and considered words have always greater effect than hours of pedantic oratory—where the point of the argument is drowned in the overflow of utterance I would draw the serious attention of prospective Members of Council for their guidance, to the terse, crisp, conclusive and convincing statements made by our official Members We have also learnt that however bitter may have bean our debates, they have never interfered with the warmth of our friendships, and I do not think any one of us can say that we do not leave this Council with a better understanding of one another than when we joined it. We have learnt a still greater lesson, that in the heat of argument, the thrust and parry of wordy warfare, never for a moment has any one forgotten the courtesy of debate or the dignity of this Council It is, therefore, with much regret we sever our connection with the first and last reformed Council of a Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and we do so with every good wish for your Honour's continued welfare and to express the deep satisfaction of the mercantile community that Your Honour will remain at the right hand of our new Governor."

* These numbers refer to the order of the motions in the List of Business

The Hon'ble MR. GOLAM HOSSEIN CASSIM ARIFF said:—

"Your Honour, as it is the last day of this Council, I take this opportunity to thank Your Honour and the official Members of this Council for the courtesy and kindness shown to the non-official Members, and facilities given to them to discharge their duties. We have been obliged to put questions in this Council, some of which might have caused inconvenience and trouble of supplying us with the informations required, and they have in many instances redressed grievances, as far as practicable, implied in those questions.

We are parting to meet no more in this Council. We hope the different parts of the province about to be separated and constituted into independent provinces will go on prospering with passing years, and though some of us are sorry for the separation, none of us will have cause for further regret.

On behalf of Muhammadans of Bengal, and specially of Calcutta, whom I have the honour to represent, I beg to offer our thanks to Your Honour for the assurance given to them about the protection of their shrines and places of worship in the operation of the Calcutta Improvement Trust"

The Hon'ble MAHARAJA PRODYOT KUMAR TAGORE said:—

"Your Honour, I rise to associate myself with what has just fallen from my hon'ble friend the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, and to add that we all gratefully appreciate the courtesy and kindly consideration which we have uniformly received at Your Honour's hands since Your Honour became the President of this Council. If the legislative machinery has worked smoothly, this gratifying result has been due largely to the tact, ability and impartiality with which both Your Honour's predecessor and yourself have shown in presiding over our deliberations. We cannot forget that so far as this Council is concerned there has never been any interference—direct or indirect, overt or covert—with the freedom of debate, and we non-official Members have been permitted to give expression to our views, our wants and wishes, without any check or hindrance whatsoever. We shall always remember that if our views have not prevailed as often as we could have wished, they have, at any rate, always received the patient consideration of Government. No unseemly scene has chequered the even tenor of the proceedings of this Council, and the friendly and harmonious relations between the official and the non-official Members have never been ruffled. I can only hope that our successors may be no less fortunate than we have been."

The Hon'ble RAI SHEO SHANKAR SAHAY BAHADUR, said :—

" Sir, as this is not only the last meeting of this Council, but as we, the Members of Bihar and Orissa will never have an opportunity of sitting side by side with the Members from Bengal, I hope you will permit me to make a few observations We come from the backward province of Bihar, and we are not only backward ourselves, but one and all of us were new recruits to Council work, with no previous experience when we entered the Council two years ago. I beg therefore most respectfully to offer our sincere thanks to you, Sir, and to your illustrious predecessor, for the very kind and courteous treatment, and for giving us full latitude for our shortcomings, which I admit were manifold. We are also grateful to the official Members of this Council, from whom we have received all kindness. Our acknowledgments are also due to the non-official European Members, who were always indulgent towards us, and from whose businesslike treatment of all questions coming up before the Council we have profitted very much. Lastly, we owe a lasting sense of gratitude to the Members from Bengal, who, like the karta of the hitherto joint family, have always looked after our interest and assisted us in every possible way.

Sir, as a result of the royal boon announced at Delhi, which we all value so much, we have our own Lieutenant-Governor and Executive Council. I see there is a feeling that the Biharis have got much more than they deserved. For my part I am prepared to admit that this is so, and for this boon, we, our sons, their sons and son's sons, generation after generation, shall be ever bound in gratitude to His Gracious Majesty and to His Excellency the Viceroy. We hope and trust that with the help of the Ever Merciful Providence and under the able guidance of those Members of your service, Sir, who are going to the newly-created province, we shall in the language of His Excellency the Viceroy 'justify the policy of the Government of India by the maintenance of peace and order within our boundaries"

Sir, though this is so, and we are proud of the boon, nevertheless, the parting from old friends and old associates is painful indeed. I would, however, assure our Bengal friends that though in consequence of the growing largeness of the family and multiplication of its members, it has been considered for the peace and prosperity of both to separate the joint family and constitute two separate families, the junior branch will always, separated though we may be, remember with feelings of gratitude and veneration the senior branch who have had our interests at heart After all we are products of the beneficent policy of the British Government, and I will speak to my Bengali friends in the language of the Urdu couplet—

which, when translated, means—

> We are not only brethern, but you and I are of the same heart,
> And you and I are fruits of the same tree.

Lastly, Sir, I will ask them to continue to entertain the same brotherly feeling which they have hitherto entertained for us."

The Hon'ble SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

" Sir, I beg to express my deep sense of obligation to Your Honour for the unfailing courtesy and kindness which you have been always good enough to show us, and the patience and forbearance with which you have been good enough to listen to our arguments. It is with a sense of great regret that we have to part, Sir, from our Bihari and Uriya friends. Our death-knell has already been sounded: we have already received intimation that this Council will be functus officio from the 1st of April. This is the last occasion on which we meet under the roof of a common ruler, and as such it is with feelings of great grief and sorrow that we have to part from our Bihari and Orissa friends. Since the establishment of British Government 150 years ago, the fates of Orissa, Bihar, and Bengal have been linked together The Bihari and Orissa and Bengali gentlemen have always thought of each other in sorrow and joy, and they have received material assistance in weal and woe. We know very well that during the controversy regarding the Bengal Tenancy Bill, it was Bihar which was a tower of strength to us, and we have received material assistance, pecuniary and otherwise, from our Bihari friends, and as such a loss—whatever might be said in modification of the Partition—our loss has been more than counterbalanced by the creation of a new province, by taking off a larger slice from the old province, and by the dethronement of Calcutta. Under all these circumstances, I beg to express our deep condolences that this is the last occasion we shall have of meeting our Bihari and Orissa friends, and that we shall have no more occasion to meet under the guidance of a common ruler. However, we shall never forget the feelings, the deep feelings, of esteem and regard and admiration, which we have hitherto always entertained for our Bihari and Orissa friends. With these few words I beg to express my feelings of regret again at our parting."

The Hon'ble BABU KIRTANAND SINHA said :—

"I would like to associate myself with what has fallen from my honourable friends. The long deliberations of the Council have made most of us tired, but we are very sorry we will not have the opportunity to meet in Council with our Bihari friends, whom we shall miss very much in the new province of Bengal. On behalf of the landlords of Bengal, I thank Your Honour for your kindness towards us, and I thank the Hon'ble Members, both official and non-official, for their kind advice to us and the assistance they have given us."

The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN said :—

"Sir, this is the most critical time, and my heart is full. I had no desire to say anything on this occasion, but I think I will be lacking in my duty if I did not express my deep satisfaction of the services rendered by the official Members, and the help which we have received from time to time from Your Honour and Your Honour's predecessor in office. This is a time when my Bengali friends are proposing farewell to us, this is the last time we shall meet in the Bengal Legislative Council, and I feel, Sir, when I realise that there will be no more occasion to sit with my Bengali friends in this Council, that we are highly indebted to those Bengali friends, especially to those who are old Members of the Bengal Legislative Council, for we have received much help and much instruction from their work. In this Council, so to say, Bihar was wholly unrepresented before, and none of the Bihari Members had ever before the opportunity of working in this Council. We knew you, Sir, not because you happened to be in Bengal holding the post of Chief Secretary, then the high post of being a Member of the Executive Council, and then the highest post of being a Lieutenant-Governor. We knew you even before when you were for some time in our midst in Bihar. We knew your amiable disposition, we knew your courtesy, hitherto shown when you were in Bihar, and we express our satisfaction that, even in this Council, you have extended the same courteous feeling, the same sympathetic feeling towards us in the deliberations of this Council. No doubt we have been defeated from time to time in moving our resolutions, in moving our motions, and in getting unsatisfactory results, but we are alive to the fact that in spite of our defeat, the Government has been all along taking keen interest in those motions, and something has been done. Therefore, we think that the Members of the Bengal Legislative Council have done much work for the progress of their country-people. Now, I thank you very much, Sir, for all the help which you have given to the Members of the Council from time to time, and I thank my Bengali friends, especially the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, who has been bidding us farewell, for expressing his sympathy towards the members of Bihar."

The Hon'ble KHAN BAHADUR MAULVI SARFARAZ HUSSAIN KHAN said :—

"Your Honour, we, the Councillors of this Council, representing the different constituencies of Bihar, express to Your Honour, at this time of separation, the heartfelt thanks for your invariable courtesy, kindness, and your guidance. We are none the less thankful to the official Members for their having given a patient hearing to us, and for their sympathy with Orissa people. Your Honour, although we are now separating, we assure our Bengali friends that we are separating with a heavy heart, and the painful feeling of losing the co-operation of the most advanced community of India—I mean the Bengali community."

The Hon'ble MR. DAS said :—

"Your Honour, I do not know whether any Hon'ble Member present here to-day has been elected to this Council as often as I have been. We are just now at a critical moment in the history of this Council. Hon'ble Members have, to use the expression of the Hon'ble Mr McPherson, given and received hard knocks, but we have always felt that, collectively as a corporate body, we were a force a political force, a legislative force, with the President, as our leader and captain We are just at the point of that force being disbanded. Naturally, there is a feeling which can be better realised than expressed. The Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, in referring to the administrative changes which have been introduced, expressed his good wishes towards the people of Orissa and Bihar. I am personally very thankful for that expression. If the Maharaja will accept it, I should offer him in my representative capacity, the gratitude of the people whom I represent. As regards the expression of gratitude and felicitous expressions and greatful appreciation of the virtues in the President, I beg to associate myself with the greatest pleasure. Whether the administrative change which has brought about the severence will be good or not for Orissa is a question which only prophets can say, but the history of this Council, my connection with this Council, Orissa's connection with this Council is a matter of history,—at least will be a matter of history two or three days after, and history, Sir, stands on a much firmer basis than prophecy I am especially thankful to Your Honour for your remarks which go to show the interest you have taken in the people of Orissa during the time you were at the head of the divisional administration there. Before we part let me assure you, Sir, on behalf of the people of Orissa, that the people of Orissa will always watch your career and always entertain a hope, and join in the prayer, that you may still enjoy higher honours and occupy higher offices, and be a source of good to the people among whom you may live now. The people of Orissa will always call you as they have hitherto called you "Duke of Orissa," though the people of Bengal may call you Sir William Duke, and Orissa, though severed from Bengal, will have this satisfaction that the experience, which Your Honour gained in Orissa, has been of service in Bengal, Orissa also has been useful to Bengal in other ways, having contributed to some extent to the experience which officers like Mr. Maddox now possess in the high office he occupies. I wish to express Orissa's feelings towards this Council, towards Bengal and also towards Your Honour personally."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"May it please your Honour, I shall detain the Council for a few minutes. My position has been in this Council a position of some difficulty, for, in default of a constituency, I came here by the grace of Your Honour's Government, but I break no confidence when I say that I came with Your Honour's personal assurance that there should be no restraint upon my liberty of action Therefore, as one of the Members of Your Honour's Council, I am under a peculiar obligation to your Honour. I quite appreciate the discharge of our difficult duties as Members of this Council.

We have offended the susceptibilities, and, I am afraid sometimes, raised prejudices against us, but so far as we are concerned, we have tried to discharge our duties honestly and to the best of our light; that light probably has not always been quite so good as it might have been. My friend the Hon'ble Mr. MacLeod has made a novel statement which I have heard for the first time in my life namely, that speech was intended to express one's thought I was always under the impression, and it has been said by a very high European authority, that speech was made to conceal one's thoughts. I am glad to have a contradiction from my friend. In making that observation I do not mean to say that, so far as we are concerned, we did not try to make ourselves understood, but I am afraid from the tenor of the observation which my Honourable friend has made to-day that we failed to make ourselves understood Whether it was our fault or the fault of somebody else, that is a question which others must decide. But on an occasion like this, I do not desire to refer to matters controversial. My friends from Bihar and Orissa have expressed their regret on parting from us, but that regret cannot be so keen as ours is. The people of Bengal have been in association with them for 150 years or more One of my friends from Bihar has said that it was an overgrown family, and it was desirable that we should part and break up I accept that position; it is better for us to part in peace than in anger, though we part in sorrow. All that I do hope and pray for is that Bihar and Orissa may be as great as they desire to be, and that they may say hereafter that their association with Bengal conduced, in some degree at least, to the position that they may attain in future years; for whatever may have been our failings—and I as a Bengalee do not seek to minimise them,—it is undeniable that we Bengalees have a passionate fondness for our country, which exercises over us a degree of fascination which probably is unknown to the rest of India. If that passionate fondness also actuates my friends from Bihar and Orissa, I shall be very glad indeed. People have found fault with our devotion to our mother-land, and for our provincialism, as they have been pleased to call it. I shall be glad if that trait developes in our friends of the old province. We part with them in sorrow, and not only in sorrow is it that we part from our friends of Bihar and Orissa, but there are many faces around us in this chamber whom we shall miss in a short time. So far as we people of Bengal are concerned, we can assure them that we part from them as we do part from dear and well-beloved brothers For I tell you, Sir, from my place in this Council, that whatever may have been the differences between ourselves and the Members of your honourable and distinguished service, we have always recognized in them a high sense of duty and a keen and lofty desire to do good to the people over whom they are placed to serve, and in parting from them we part in sorrow. We wish them all prosperity and hapiness in future, and we pray that when they go away from my province they may have elsewhere the same affection, the same consideration, the same regard and the same devotion that they had in my province."

"I will not prolong these painful farewells, because they are painful, but the occasion is undoubtedly one which calls for some remarks, inasmuch as two things, one of them very young and one of them very old, are about to disappear together. The young one is our Council in its present form, which has lasted for little more than two years and in a few days will dissolve. The other is the historic connection between Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, which has now lasted, under the British Government, for over a century and a half, without counting the long period preceding, when those provinces were most often united under the same Muhammadan Government. The Council will rise, like the Phœnix, from its ashes and we need not spend too much grief upon it It is now two years or more that it has been in existence, and we have gained very much from its being a Council for the United Provinces of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, and from our having a large number of members from all portions of them, and thus having learnt to consider many questions from many different points of view. The debates have, I am certain, in that respect, been more interesting than they could have been in the Council of a Province which was entirely homogeneous. That advantage we shall lose for the future, and we say good-bye with regret to the representatives of Bihar and Orissa—a regret which is qualified by the fact that we know that they believe that the separation is for their own good and, in many ways, for their advancement. It is undoubtedly well for them that, in the past, they have been connected with Bengal and that they shared the same advantages. That connection has certainly been a great advantage to them, though it may well be that the time has now come when it is best for them to stand by themselves and to make their way by their own efforts. There is one consolation, at any rate, to us of Bengal (as about to be reconstituted), which perhaps has attracted too little notice hitherto, and that is that we shall recover a certain provincial precedence and importance, of which we had hitherto been deprived, not from any fault of our own, nor from any fault of Bengal, but, on the contrary, from the great increase in its importance, and in its progress, which resulted curiously in the Imperial altogether overshadowing the provincial aspect, and in the province taking a lower place than it might have otherwise claimed. I refer to the constitutional or historical aspect. From the commencement of the Dewani till 1774 there were Governors of Bengal with Councils of their own, who exercised a somewhat vague and indefinite supremacy over the other Presidencies. From 1774, under an Act of the previous year, the Governors became Governors General of Fort William in Bengal, and so continued for 60 years During this period the supremacy of Bengal was unquestioned, for we find that the whole of the present Empire of British India (excepting the two sister Presidencies), as it was added to from time to time and consolidated with our earlier possessions, was incorporated in the Presidency of Fort William. From 1834 to 1854 the Governors-General were no longer the Governors-General of Fort William but Governors-General of India, while, however, they continued to be Governors of Bengal. Then came the famous Act of 1853, by which power was taken to appoint a Governor over the Presidency of Bengal—a power which has not been put in operation until after the lapse of 59 years,—but instead, under the alternative provision, a Lieutenant-Governor was appointed, and for these 59 years the province has been administered by a series of Lieutenant-Governors of whom I have the honour to be the last In that way the Province of Bengal, in a certain sense, undoubtedly lost supremacy, and fell from a position which before it had undisputedly enjoyed. At the end of the 18th century that position was unchallenged, seeing that the Governor-General was himself the Governor of the Province; but when the time came that the Governor-General ceased to be Governor of Bengal and the province passed under the administration of a Lieutenant-Governor, it fell from the rank of a "Presidency" to that of one of the "Provinces' of India, like the old North-West Provinces, now the United Provinces, or the Punjab. One immediate and obvious advantage which we shall derive from the changes which are now so imminent, is that the Province of Bengal will recover that precedence and position which it enjoyed 100 years ago, and I trust that the knowledge of that fact will inspire us, when we come together again in the new Bengal Council, to do our duty manfully in the hope and confidence of establishing our province as once again the premier Presidency of India."

The Council is now adjourned.

Offg. Secretary, Bengal Legislative Council.

The following Act of the Governor-General in India in Council received the assent of the Governor-General on the 26th March, 1912, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No VII OF 1912.
